ACADEMIC COSTUME

The pageantry and color at commencement exercises reveal a record of academic achievement of the various individuals taking part in the exercises. The following brief description is given so that the audience may more readily interpret such achievement.

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, met at Columbia University to draft a code which would serve to regulate the design of gowns and hoods indicating the various degrees as well as the colors to indicate the various faculties. This code has been adopted by most of the colleges and universities in America and its use has made identification of scholastic honors an immediate activity.

Three types of gowns are indicated by the code. Those worn by the bachelors have long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. Doctor's gowns are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. The velvet facing of bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood.

Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree. If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hoods and indicates the department or faculty to which the degree pertains.

Historical associations of color have been continued to signify the various faculties. Arts and letters can be recognized by the white, taken from the traditional white fur trimming of the Oxford and Cambridge Bachelor of Arts hoods. Red, long traditional of the church, indicates theology. The royal purple of the King's court signifies law. The green of medicinal herbs immediately identifies a medical degree. Philosophy is signified by the color of wisdom and truth, blue. Because through research untold wealth has been released to the world, science is identified by golden yellow. Oxford pink indicates music, and russet brown, the color of dress worn by ancient English foresters, indicates forestry.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Science in Agriculture should be maize, representing agriculture, rather than golden yellow, representing science.

At Michigan State University, it is customary to identify the bachelors graduating from the different departments of study by tassels of the official department color as established by the Intercollegiate Code.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

Michigan State University, one of the leading land-grant universities and the first agricultural college in America, strives for excellence in affording liberal and practical education for its students in a broad range of human endeavor.

MSU also serves people of the state, nation and world through its numerous research, extension and international programs.

Now in its 121st year, Michigan State University has grown from three buildings and six faculty members to one of the largest universities in the nation. It has more than 3,000 faculty engaged in teaching, research and public service, 409 campus buildings, and more than 5,100 acres of land of which 2,010 acres are in existing or planned campus development.

Founded in 1855 to educate youth for the major occupation of that day — farming — MSU has broadened its offerings to meet the educational needs of today. The University now has a Graduate School and 17 colleges — Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Human Ecology, Human Medicine, James Madison, Justin S. Morrill, Lyman J. Briggs, Natural Science, Osteopathic Medicine, Social Science, University College, Urban Development, and Veterinary Medicine. Some 165 programs of instruction are available to undergraduates; 76 departments offer graduate studies.

MSU is unique nationally in that the Colleges of Human Medicine, Osteopathic Medicine, and Veterinary Medicine are located on the single campus.

The Honors College, which enables superior undergraduate students to waive normal graduation requirements and undertake individual programs, attracts many of the nation's finest young scholars. Michigan State University also is a prominent sponsor of the National Merit Scholarship Program, comprised of an unusually select group of scholars.

One of the many innovations in higher education made by Michigan State University is its system of academic-residence halls. Incorporation of classrooms and faculty offices with living, dining and recreational facilities has given these giant dormitories a stimulating academic environment. Each of these nine halls is the center of curricular and noncurricular activities, creating a "college within a college" atmosphere.

The "small college within the larger university" concept was introduced at MSU by the establishment of the Justin S. Morrill College, which offers a limited enrollment liberal education program with an international emphasis. The concept was expanded by the establishment and opening of the James Madison College and the Lyman J. Briggs College. James Madison offers a curriculum for the study of public policy problems within the framework of the social sciences and related disciplines. Lyman Briggs makes available a liberal curriculum for students especially interested in science and mathematics.

Today, almost 45,000 students attend the University at East Lansing. About 85 percent are from Michigan; the remainder includes nearly 1,200 foreign students from 90 countries.

In the land-grant tradition it pioneered, Michigan State University is concerned with research and service as well as teaching. All colleges and the Agricultural Experiment Station are engaged in a wide range of research. Approximately 3,000 individual projects are in process. The University's research tools include the Control Data 6500 computer, a cyclotron of the sector-focused type capable of accelerating protons to 50 MeV (60,000 miles per second), and the MSU Observatory which houses a 24-inch reflecting telescope, a computer and related equipment. Modern facilities include the following buildings: chemistry, biochemistry, psychology research, veterinary medicine, plant science research, natural resources, food science, pesticide research, and life sciences.

Through an agreement with the Energy Research Development Administration, MSU has become a national center for basic research on plants and their reactions to radiation; involved is a $2 million building, a staff of approximately 90 persons and an annual budget of approximately $1 million.

Benefits of the University are brought to every county in Michigan by the Cooperative Extension Service and the Continuing Education Service. Their programs, on and off campus, provide a wide range of technical information and formal course work for hundreds of thousands of Michigan citizens. The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, one of the finest conference centers in the nation, annually hosts nearly 50,000 adults who come to the campus for some 600 conferences and other educational meetings.

In broadening the scope of educational opportunity, MSU is building on its long experience in continuing education to develop a Lifelong Education Program which will offer University resources to persons who are educationally or economically excluded from the traditional campus programs; to those who seek new skills or wish to update present skills; and to those who wish through education to make their leisure time more productive. The Program also will enable the University to cooperate with local communities in assessing, developing, and expanding their continuing education projects.

Michigan State University's land-grant concept of service is international. Supported by grants from the federal government and private foundations, Michigan State University maintains research and educational assistance projects on a world-wide basis. International projects have given many faculty members overseas experience, adding a new dimension to their teaching.

With more than a century of educational achievement behind it, Michigan State University continues to apply its academic and physical resources to the problems of today and the challenges of the future.

HONORARY DEGREES

CLARK KERR

Your exceptional career as an economist, educator and administrator has brought you widespread recognition. Your research and publications in labor economics have given new insights into the problems of industrial relations, and your active participation in the arbitration process has met with uncommon success. As a teacher and scholar at the University of California at Berkeley and other institutions you have demonstrated unusual ability to stimulate interest in learning. Your administrative endeavors, especially as Chancellor and President of the University of California from 1952 to 1967, have effectively shown the extraordinary breadth of your talents. In your previous capacity as Chairman of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, and in your present position as Chairman of the Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education, you have acted with energy, creative vision and a wise understanding of the educational process. Studies produced by the Council have provided insights and guidance on such important topics as the Federal role in postsecondary education, making affirmative action work, and a national policy on tuition. Because of your strong sense of social responsibility and the valuable contributions which you have made to educational and cultural life in America, Michigan State University is pleased to grant you the degree of Doctor of Laws.

CORETTA SCOTT KING

Your record of unwavering dedication to the goals of justice, equality, and humanity has been matched by your steadfast ability to translate these goals into social realities which benefit all people. You have received many honors, both in this country and abroad, for your notable contributions to the cause of civil rights and human relations. You have courageously continued the great endeavor of Martin Luther King, Jr. to show that in a world disrupted by violence and political division the only lasting solutions arise from the healing processes of stable moral principles, humane understanding and a universal compassion. Yours is a life of service, dedicated to the welfare of your fellow man, whether in a remote and humble school for the underprivileged or as an emissary of peace in the world's capitols. In all your endeavors you stand as a witness to nonviolence, equality, and to what is best in America and mankind. Because of your unusual accomplishments, all of which bear the mark of a humane and compassionate woman devoted to the highest values of our religious and moral tradition, Michigan State University is pleased to grant you the degree of Doctor of Laws.

GRACE OLIVAREZ

In the progress of your career as an educator, lawyer and administrator, you have made many contributions to the social and cultural well-being of your fellow citizens. During your years in the radio and television industry, you developed a special interest in the everyday concerns of people — their problems of security, social status and equal justice. Because of your own Mexican-American heritage you have had a continuous devotion to the educational and cultural advancement of the nation's Mexican-American population. You have exercised exemplary leadership as the first Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity in Arizona and as Director of the Institute for Social Research and Development at the University of New Mexico. In carrying out those important responsibilities, and in your present position with the State Planning Office of New Mexico, you have given clear evidence of your integrity, humanity, and concern for human rights. In recognition of your outstanding achievements in furthering the social progress of people in the Southwest and throughout the nation, Michigan State University is pleased to grant you the degree of Doctor of Science.

EUGENE N. PARKER

Since your graduation from this university in 1948, you have earned an outstanding reputation as an imaginative, inventive astrophysicist. During the last two decades you have been a leader in developing advanced astronomical theories; at times your insights have gone far beyond existing knowledge in your field. Your revolutionary work on solar wind, first proposed in 1958, is a notable example of your achievements that have transformed the study of astronomy. Your pioneering research paper demonstrated early in your career the kind of remarkable contribution to science that you would continue to make. The brilliance and importance of your work has been recorded in your nearly two hundred articles in leading professional journals, and you have been justly honored as a Distinguished Senior Professor at the University of Chicago. In recognition of your many contributions to the advancement of astronomy and astrophysics, and because of the credit which you have brought to yourself and this institution, Michigan State University is pleased to grant you the degree of Doctor of Laws.
