ACADEMIC COSTUME

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, introduced an academic costume code which by design of gowns and hoods would indicate the various degrees, and which by colors would identify the various faculties. Three types of gowns are indicated by the code. Those worn by the bachelors have long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. Doctor's gowns are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. The velvet facing of bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood. Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree. If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hoods and indicates the department or faculty to which the degree pertains.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Science in Agriculture should be maize, representing agriculture, rather than golden yellow, representing science.

At Michigan State University, it is customary to identify the candidates graduating from the different departments of study by tassels of the official department color as established by the Intercollegiate Code.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

Michigan State University, a leading land-grant university and the first agricultural college in America, strives for excellence in providing students a broad curricula of liberal and practical education. MSU also serves people of the state, nation and world through its numerous research, extension and international programs.

Now in its 130th year, Michigan State University has grown from three buildings and six faculty members to one of the largest universities in the nation. It has more than 3,000 faculty/staff engaged in teaching, research and public service, 432 campus buildings, and more than 5,300 acres of land, of which some 2,100 acres are in existing or planned campus development. More than 40,000 students now attend the University at East Lansing, of which about 85 percent are from Michigan.

Founded in 1855 to educate youth for the major occupation of that day — farming — MSU has broadened its offerings to meet the educational needs of today. The University now has a Graduate School and 14 colleges — Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Human Ecology, Human Medicine, James Madison, Natural Science, Nursing, Osteopathic Medicine, Social Science, and Veterinary Medicine.

At the center of all major universities is a cluster of disciplines which comprise the liberal arts and sciences. At MSU, this center consists of three colleges — Arts and Letters, Natural Science, and Social Science. Providing outstanding undergraduate and graduate degree programs with majors in traditional disciplines, these colleges also have special programs which enable students to obtain a broad, multidisciplinary education. In addition, in collaboration with the College of Education, the three colleges prepare students to become teachers in the secondary schools of Michigan and the nation. These colleges touch the lives of all undergraduate students at MSU by providing the general education that constitutes approximately one-quarter of the undergraduate program. The Honors College, which enables superior undergraduate students to waive normal graduation requirements and undertake individual programs, attracts many of the nation's finest young scholars. Michigan State University has enrolled more National Merit Scholars in the past 15 years than any other public, four-year university in the nation.

MSU adds to the store of knowledge with a wide array of outstanding research activities which are supported by a multimillion dollar sponsor-funding program. Some major facilities include the Pesticide Research Center, which presents a model program of multidisciplinary research and teaching; the Plant Research Laboratory, operated with the U.S. Department of Energy as a national plant biology center; and the MSU W. K. Kellogg Biological Station, which has been designated as a National Research Preserve. In collaboration with both the National Science Foundation and the U.S. Department of Energy, the National Superconducting Cyclotron Laboratory at MSU will examine the nuclei of the heaviest of elements.

Benefits of the University are brought to the public by the Agricultural Experiment Station, Lifelong Education Programs, and the Cooperative Extension Service. Their programs provide technical information and formal course work for many Michigan citizens. The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, one of the finest conference centers in the nation, annually hosts nearly 60,000 adults who come to the campus for some 600 conferences and other educational meetings.

The University's land-grant concept of service is international. Supported by grants from the federal government and private foundations, MSU maintains research and educational assistance projects on a worldwide basis. International projects have given many faculty members overseas experience, adding a new dimension to their teaching.

With more than a century of educational achievement behind it, Michigan State University continues to apply its academic and physical resources to the problems of today and to the challenges of the future.

HONORARY DEGREE

M. PETER MC PHERSON

As a graduate of Michigan State University committed to public service, you have used your education, superior talents and vigorous approach to leadership to serve the national purpose and to bring a higher quality of life to the many millions of people living in developing countries of the world. Born in Grand Rapids and raised as a member of a family with strong ties to this University and to the State of Michigan, you demonstrated as a student at MSU in the early 1960's, through your class presidency, participation in debate, membership on Student Council, and as a political science major, the same strong capabilities which have led you to leadership of this nation's efforts to provide economic development assistance to Third World countries.

From your initial years as a Peace Corps volunteer in Peru in 1963, your concern with the poor and your determination to be of assistance to them have not wavered. Having earned your law degree from American University in Washington, D.C. in 1968, and having served as a lawyer both in federal agencies and in private practice, you attained recognition early in your Washington years by service in the White House rising to the level of Special Assistant to President Gerald Ford and Deputy Director of the Personnel Office for White House appointments.

You were appointed by the President of the United States as a member of the Board for International Food and Agricultural Development in 1977, as a recognition of your dedication to the needs of developing countries, particularly related to famine prevention and improvement of nutrition. In view of this substantial record and your commitment to the belief that the most effective way to assist people of the Third World is to help them develop the means to help themselves, it seemed natural for you to accept appointment by President Reagan in 1981 as administrator of the Agency for International Development.

In this capacity, you have sustained and expanded the partnership of American universities in the pursuit of assistance to people and institutions in developing countries. You have placed a much stronger emphasis on science and technology as it relates to development and on the importance of research applicable to developing countries. You have led the way toward more effective use of land-grant universities and established new procedures to strengthen cooperation between your Agency and leading universities in the development field. You have continued and also initiated programs to benefit the rural poor and meet basic human needs in poor countries.

For your truly significant contributions to this nation's assistance to economic development throughout the world, for your continued nurturing of your roots in the State of Michigan, and for your national leadership demonstrating outstanding qualities of humanity and dedication to public service, your alma mater Michigan State University is proud to award to you the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Laws.
