ACADEMIC COSTUME

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, introduced an academic costume code which by design of gowns and hoods would indicate the various degrees, and which by colors would identify the various faculties.

Three types of gowns are indicated by the code. Those worn by the bachelors have long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. Doctor's gowns are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round, and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. The velvet facing of the bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood.

Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree (e.g., green and white for MSU; burnt orange and white for the University of Texas; blue and gold for UCLA). If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hoods and indicates the department or faculty to which the degree pertains.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Science in Agriculture should be maize, representing agriculture, rather than golden yellow, representing science. Generally, the code for the velvet of the hood is the same as listed below for tassels.

At Michigan State University, it is customary to identify the candidates graduating from the different departments of study by tassels of the official department color as established by the Intercollegiate Code.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

Michigan State University, a leading land-grant university and the first agricultural college in America, strives for excellence in providing students a broad curricula of liberal and practical education. MSU also serves people of the state, nation, and world through its numerous research, extension, and international programs.

Now in its 134th year, Michigan State University has grown from three buildings and six faculty members to one of the largest universities in the nation. It has more than 3,000 faculty/staff engaged in teaching, research, and public service; more than 400 campus buildings; and more than 5,200 acres of land, of which some 2,100 acres are in existing or planned campus development. More than 42,000 students now attend the university at East Lansing, of which some 86 percent are from Michigan.

Founded in 1855 to educate youth for the major occupation of that day — farming — MSU has broadened its offerings to meet the educational needs of today. The university now has a Graduate School and 14 colleges — Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Human Ecology, Human Medicine, James Madison, Natural Science, Nursing, Osteopathic Medicine, Social Science, and Veterinary Medicine.

At the center of all major universities is a cluster of disciplines that constitute the liberal arts and sciences. At MSU, this center consists of three colleges — Arts and Letters, Natural Science, and Social Science. Providing outstanding undergraduate and graduate degree programs with majors in traditional disciplines, these colleges also have special programs that enable students to obtain a broad, multidisciplinary education. In addition, in collaboration with the College of Education, the three colleges prepare students to become teachers in the secondary schools of Michigan and the nation. These colleges touch the lives of all undergraduate students at MSU by providing the general education that constitutes approximately one-quarter of the undergraduate program. The Honors College, which enables superior undergraduate students to waive normal graduation requirements and undertake individual programs, attracts many of the nation's finest young scholars. MSU is proud of its record in producing Rhodes Scholars, a total of thirteen (ten in the last sixteen years); the university also has provided six Marshall Scholarship winners. These British scholarships are two of the most distinguished and prestigious academic awards that an American student can receive. Michigan State University also is a prominent sponsor of National Merit Scholars.

MSU adds to the store of knowledge with a wide array of outstanding research activities that are supported by a multimillion dollar sponsor-funding program. Some major facilities include the Pesticide Research Center, which presents a model program of multidisciplinary research and teaching; the Plant Research Laboratory, operated with the U.S. Department of Energy as a national plant biology center; and the MSU/W. K. Kellogg Biological Station, which has been designated as a National Research Preserve. In collaboration with both the National Science Foundation and the U.S. Department of Energy, the National Superconducting Cyclotron Laboratory at MSU is examining the nuclei of the heaviest of elements.

Benefits of the university are brought to the public by the Agricultural Experiment Station, Lifelong Education Programs, and the Cooperative Extension Service. Their programs provide technical information and formal course work for many Michigan citizens. The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, one of the finest conference centers in the nation, annually hosts nearly 60,000 adults who come to the campus for some 600 conferences and other educational meetings.

The university's land-grant concept of service is international. Supported by grants from the federal government and private foundations, MSU maintains research and educational assistance projects on a worldwide basis. International projects have given many faculty members overseas experience, adding a new dimension to their teaching.

Michigan State University is a member of the Association of American Universities, National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, American Council on Education, American Council of Learned Societies, International Association of Universities, Association of Graduate Schools, Council of Graduate Schools, and the Committee on Institutional Cooperation.

HONORARY DEGREE

CLIFTON R. WHARTON

As economist and educator, your influence has spanned several continents and affected the lives of people from many lands. A linguist and leader in international development and education, your commitment to people in the developing world and in the United States is a vivid thread running through a brilliant career as a teacher, researcher, and administrator.

After receiving your baccalaureate degree from Harvard University, you completed a master's in international affairs at The John Hopkins University and subsequently a doctorate in economics at the University of Chicago.

You began your career in a Rockefeller-supported Latin American development organization. Interviewing you for that job, John D. Rockefeller III skeptically looked over your credentials and asked, "This is fine, but what can you do?" To which you replied, "I can think!" You have been doing that exceedingly well ever since.

In 1957, you joined the Agricultural Development Council, a private non-profit organization sponsoring education and research programs in Southeast Asia. You directed the Council programs in Malaysia while teaching and doing research at the University of Malaya. During this period you trained many of today's leading Southeast Asian economists and agricultural economists. In 1970, you left the vice presidency of the Agricultural Development Council to become the fourteenth president of Michigan State University. After eight years in East Lansing, you moved to the State University of New York to be chancellor of the largest university in the United States.

In early 1987, you became the chairman and chief executive officer of the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association and the College Retirement Equities Fund (TIAA-CREF), an organization that manages the retirement investments for the majority of United States academic institutions, including Michigan State University.

Your leadership has resulted in significant innovations for these institutions. At Michigan State University and nationally your role in developing life-long education can only be described as pioneering. With your talented spouse, Dolores, you made the arts central to the life of this University. You led the effort to build a modern performing arts center at MSU.

At the State University of New York, you quickly became a unique leader for higher education in the state, reforming the governance and rationalizing the structure of a complex university that comprises 64 campuses and 380,000 students.

You have restructured the organization of TIAA-CREF in your first year and a half there, and are well along in revamping its programs to allow faculty greater flexibility in the management of their retirement equity.

U.S. presidents, major American corporations, and foundations have recognized your creativeness and sought your leadership and counsel. Equitable Life, Burroughs, Ford Motor Company, the Public Broadcasting Service, Time, Inc., the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the Aspen Institute and the Rockefeller Foundation, among many, have asked you to serve on their boards.

In recognition of a distinguished career in higher education, international development, and public service, Michigan State University is proud to award you the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

ALMA MATER Traynor

M.S.U., we love thy shadows
When twilight silence falls,
Flushing deep and softly paling
O'er ivy-covered halls.
Beneath the pines we'll gather
To give our faith so true,
Sing our love for Alma Mater
And thy praises, M.S.U.
