ACADEMIC COSTUME

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, introduced an academic costume code which by design of gowns and hoods would indicate the various degrees, and which by colors would identify the various faculties.

Three types of gowns are indicated by the code. Those worn by the bachelors have long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. Doctor's gowns are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round, and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. The velvet facing of the bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood.

Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree (e.g., green and white for MSU; burnt orange and white for the University of Texas; blue and gold for UCLA). If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hoods and indicates the department or faculty to which the degree pertains.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Science in Agriculture should be maize, representing agriculture, rather than golden yellow, representing science. Generally, the code for the velvet of the hood is the same as listed below for tassels.

At Michigan State University, it is customary to identify the candidates graduating from the different departments of study by tassels of the official department color as established by the Intercollegiate Code

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

Michigan State University, a leading land-grant university and the first agricultural college in America, strives for excellence in providing students a broad curricula of liberal and practical education. MSU also serves people of the state, nation and world through its numerous research, extension, and international programs.

Now in its 135th year, Michigan State University has grown from three buildings and six faculty members to one of the largest universities in the nation. It has more than 3,000 faculty/staff engaged in teaching, research, and public service; more than 400 campus buildings; and more than 5,200 acres of land, of which some 2,100 acres are in existing or planned campus development. More than 40,000 students now attend the university at East Lansing, of which some 85 percent are from Michigan.

Michigan State University is committed to diversity and multiculturalism in its student body, in its faculty, in its staff, and in its curriculum and outreach programs. Our student body hails from every county in the State of Michigan, every state in the nation, and 107 foreign nations. Minority students comprise 12.1 percent of the campus population, and includes the largest number of African American students among all Big Ten schools.

Founded in 1855 to educate youth for the major occupation of that day—farming—MSU has broadened its offerings to meet the educational needs of today. The university now has a Graduate School and 14 colleges—Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Human Ecology, Human Medicine, James Madison, Natural Science, Nursing, Osteopathic Medicine, Social Science, and Veterinary Medicine.

At the center of all major universities is a cluster of disciplines that constitute the liberal arts and sciences. At MSU, this center consists of three colleges—Arts and Letters, Natural Science, and Social Science. Providing outstanding undergraduate and graduate degree programs with majors in traditional disciplines, these colleges also have special programs that enable students to obtain a broad multidisciplinary education. In addition, in collaboration with the College of Education, the three colleges prepare students to become teachers in the secondary schools of Michigan and the nation. These colleges touch the lives of all undergraduate students at MSU by providing the general education that constitutes approximately one-quarter of the undergraduate program. The Honors College, which enables superior undergraduate students to waive normal graduation requirements and undertake individual programs, attracts many of the nation's finest young scholars. MSU is proud of its record in producing Rhodes Scholars, a total of thirteen (ten since 1971-72); the university also has provided six Marshall Scholarship winners; and 11 Churchill Scholarships. These British scholarships are two of the most distinguished and prestigious academic awards that an American student can receive. Michigan State University also is a prominent sponsor of National Merit Scholars.

MSU adds to the store of knowledge with a wide array of outstanding research activities that are supported by a multimillion dollar sponsor-funding program. Some major facilities include the Pesticide Research Laboratory, operated with the U.S. Department of energy as a national plant biology center; and the MSU/W. K. Kellogg Biological Station, which has been designated as a National Research Preserve. In collaboration with both the National Science Foundation and the U.S. Department of energy, the National Superconducting Cyclotron Laboratory at MSU is examining the nuclei of the heaviest of elements.

Benefits of the university are brought to the public by the Agricultural Experiment Station, University Outreach, and the Cooperative Extension Service. Their programs provide technical information and formal course work for many Michigan citizens, The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, one of the finest conference centers in the nation, annually hosts nearly 30,000 adults who come to the campus for some 600 conferences and other educational meetings.

The university's land-grant concept of service is international. Supported by grants from the federal government and private foundations, MSU maintains research and educational assistance projects on a worldwide basis. International projects have given many faculty members overseas experience, adding a new dimension to their teaching.

Michigan State University is a member of the Association of American Universities, National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, American Council on Education, American Council of Learned Societies, International Association of Universities, Association of Graduate Schools, Council of Graduate Schools, and the Committee on Institutional Cooperation.

HONORARY DEGREE

HERBERT D. (TED) DOAN

Ted Doan, your wide-ranging contributions to education, science, and technology; your highly successful business career; and your entrepreneurial leadership have earned you the respect and gratitude of those who have been privileged to know you.

Following two years with the U.S. Air Force Weather Service in the Pacific during World War II, you earned a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from Cornell University in 1949.

Your career with Dow Chemical Company, the second largest chemical company in America, spanned twenty-one years, culminating with nine years as president and chief executive officer, after which you continued as a director for another sixteen years. During this time, you also served on the board of directors of Dow Corning Corporation.

Your Dow affiliations led to philanthropic concerns in 1951 when you became trustee and secretary of the Herbert H. and Grace A. Dow Foundation, one of Michigan's largest foundations.

An interest in industry, university, and government cooperation led to your service of important boards and commissions: as vice chairman of the National Science Board; as a member of the National Research Council of the National Academy of Science Commission on Physical Science, Mathematics and Applications; as director of the board of governors for Argonne National Laboratories; as director of ARCH Development Corporation; and as a member of the Technology Assessment Advisory Council of the Office of Technology Assessment in Washington, D.C.

Your interest in technology development and transfer has been amply demonstrated through your service as president of the Michigan High Technology Task Force; chairman of the Michigan Molecular Institute; and director of the Michigan Materials and Processing Institute.

Your involvement with Michigan State University includes serving as chairman of the board of Neogen Corporation since its founding in 1981 under the auspices of the Michigan State University Foundation. This, your creation of Doan Resources, and your current directorship of Applied Intelligent Systems, Inc., earned you a reputation as the "state's unofficial father of venture capital."

Institutions of higher education that have benefited from your service and generosity include not only Michigan State University, but the University of Michigan, Cornell University, Central Michigan University, and Saginaw Valley State College.

For your engineering and business leadership and personal philanthropic commitment and for your dedicated service to the worlds of science, technology, and education, Michigan State University hereby awards you the honorary degree of doctor of engineering.

HONORARY DEGREE

JOHN BRADEMAS

John Brademas, congressman, educator, public servant: for three decades yours has been a profoundly effective voice for higher education in the United States Congress, universities, and on the boards of foundations and industries across the country, and indeed the world. From Rhodes Scholar to president emeritus of New York University, you have devoted yourself to making the life of the mind open and welcoming to all.

Growing up in Indiana, you served in the U.S. Navy before enrolling at Harvard University as a Veterans National Scholar. With a B.A. magna cum laude, you studied at Oxford University as a Rhodes Scholar to receive the Doctor of Philosophy degree in social studies in 1954. You returned to the United States to serve as executive assistant to Adlai E. Stevenson. Before being elected to Congress you gained faculty experience as an assistant professor of political science at Saint Mary's College, Notre Dame, Indiana, and you are now a trustee of the University of Notre Dame.

In your twenty-two years as a member of Congress following election in 1958, you served on the House Education and Labor Committee, the House Administration Committee, and as a member of the Joint House-Senate Committee on the Library of Congress.

On the Education and Labor Committee, you played the principal role in writing vital federal legislation brought forward during those decades to fund elementary education, secondary education, vocational education, and all higher education. You were the chief architect of the International Education Act and of the National Institute of Education to support educational research. And you were a major sponsor of the Higher Education Acts of 1972 and 1976, which focused on provision of student financial aid. In addition, you are directly credited with legislation supporting services for elderly and handicapped people and funding for libraries, museums, the arts, and the humanities.

On the House Administration Committee, you were the principal author of provisions for public financing of presidential campaigns in the 1974 and 1976 campaign reform laws. You were the chief sponsor of the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Education Act, of Library Services and Construction Act Amendments, Age Discrimination Act Amendments, Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Amendments, and of the National Commission on Libraries and Information Services Act.

Throughout your tenure in Congress, your steady message to the people of the United States was that legislators will provide what the popular voice requests. At the same time--as your record eloquently attests--you made it your mission to educate the popular voice to ask for legislation in the service of real and permanent needs.

Your unparalleled contributions to education led to your appointment as president of New York University, where you served from 1981 to 1992. Your move from Congress to the presidency of one of the country's foremost universities is aptly captured by the title of your book Washington, D.C. to Washington Square, a collection of essays gathered from across the spectrum of your singularly broad experience in education and educational policy.

Those contributions have also brought you to the advisory board of the Smithsonian Institution, to the directorship of the David Rockefeller Fellowships of the New York City Partnership, and to a long list of other institutional and foundation committees. Those contributions have been recognized by numerous awards in this country and from governments abroad--among them: the annual Award for Distinguished Service to the Arts of the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters, the first James Bryant Conant Award from the Education Commission of the United States, the Gold Key Award of the American Congress of Rehabilitation Medicine, and the Humanist Award of the National Association for the Humanities.

Recognition of your lifelong devotion to the betterment of higher education is nowhere more apparent than in the remarkable fact that you have been awarded forty-five honorary degrees by American and European colleges and universities. Conferring your forty-sixth is my honor, and that of Michigan State University. I hereby award you the honorary degree of Doctor of Humanities.
