ACADEMIC COSTUME

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, introduced an academic costume code which by design of gowns and hoods would indicate the various degrees, and which by colors would identify the various faculties.

Three types of gowns are indicted by the code. Those worn by the bachelors have long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. Doctor's gowns are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round, and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. The velvet facing of the bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood.

Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree (e.g., green and white for MSU; burnt orange and white for the University of Texas; blue and gold for UCIA). If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hoods and indicates the department of faculty to which the degree pertains.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Science in Agriculture should be maize, representing agriculture, rather than golden yellow, representing science. Generally, the code for the velvet of the hood is the same as listed below for tassels.

At Michigan State University, it is customary to identify the candidates graduating from the different departments of study by tassels of the official department color as established by the Intercollegiate Code.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

Michigan State University, one of the nation's leading land-grant universities, was founded in 1855 as the first agricultural college with only six faculty members and three buildings to provide youths with an education in farming. Now, 140 years later, MSU continues to strive for excellence in providing a diverse student body with a broad and rich combination of liberal and practical education.

Today, the East Lansing campus looks quite different than it did in 1855. More than 5,200 acres of land encompass more than 400 buildings, and more than 3,000 faculty and staff are engaged in teaching, research and public service. More than 40,000 students — 85 percent from Michigan — attend the University's main campus.

Our student body represents every county in the state, every state in the nation, and 107 foreign nations. Minority students comprise more than 14 percent of the campus population, and our campus includes the largest number of African American students among all Big Ten schools.

Michigan State University's commitment to diversity and multiculturalism in its student body, faculty, staff, curriculum and outreach programs is exemplified through world-wide services in numerous research, extension, and international programs.

More than a century after its agricultural beginnings, Michigan State has a Graduate School and 14 colleges: Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, the Broad College of Business, Communication Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Human Ecology, Human Medicine, James Madison, Natural Science, Nursing, Osteopathic Medicine, Social Science and Veterinary Medicine.

Today, three colleges represent the central academic disciplines which most universities refer to as the liberal arts and sciences: Arts and Letters, Natural Science, and Social Science. These colleges also provide outstanding undergraduate and graduate degree programs with majors in traditional disciplines while also providing special programs that enable students to obtain a broad, multidisciplinary education. The College of Education collaborates with the colleges to help prepare students to become teachers in the secondary schools of Michigan as well the nation. Our residence hall system is designed to complement and enhance the learning experiences of our students.

The Honors College, which attracts fine young scholars nationwide, enables students to waive standard graduation requirements and undertake enriched academic programs. MSU has produced 13 Rhodes Scholars, six Marshall Scholarship winners, and 11 Churchill Scholarship recipients. These British scholarships are among the most distinguished and prestigious academic award that an American student can receive.

Multimillion dollar, sponsor-funded programs support a wide array of outstanding research activities at MSU. Major facilities include the Pesticide Research Laboratory, operated with the U.S. Department of Energy as a national plant biology center; and the MSU/W.K. Kellogg Biological Station, which has been designated as a National Research Preserve. In collaboration with both the National Science Foundation and the U.S. Department of Energy, the National Superconducting Cyclotron Laboratory at MSU is able to study the nuclei of the heaviest elements.

The public significantly benefits from the University through University Outreach, MSU Extension Service, and the Agricultural Experiment Station which provides technical information and course work for many Michigan citizens. The Kellogg Center, one of the finest nationwide, annually hosts some 30,000 adults who come to the campus for approximately 600 conferences and other educational meetings.

Service to the international community is equally important. Supported by grants from the federal government and private foundations, MSU sustains educational and research assistance projects internationally. These projects have given many faculty members overseas experience and have added new dimensions to their teaching.

Michigan State University is a member of the Association of American Universities, National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, American Council on Education, American Council of Learned Societies, International Association of Universities, Association of Graduate Schools, Council of Graduate Schools, and the Committee on Institutional Cooperation.

HONORARY DEGREE

SPENCER ABRAHAM

You have been a well-known leader in Michigan politics for two decades and now capably serve our state on the national scene as one of our two United States Senators. You have been instrumental in bringing Federal research dollars to Michigan which will help solve environmental problems in the Great Lakes. You have been praised by the Senate leadership as "focused, constructive," and "good for Michigan."

A native of Lansing, you were born in 1952 to parents who operated a small retail store downtown. You came to Michigan State in the early 1970s, earning a B.A. with high honors in political science in 1974.

From here you went on to Harvard Law School where you excelled in and out of the classroom. You founded a journal, the Harvard Journal of Law and Public Policy, that has grown from being only in a few law libraries in the mid-1970s to become the second most widely-read law review in the country. In 1982, you co-founded the Federalist Society for Law and Public Policy Studies.

At the ripe age of 30, you became the Chairman of the Michigan Republican Party. You helped elect Governor John Engler in 1990 and in the same year you became Vice President Dan Quayle's Deputy Chief of Staff. Later you were recruited to be the Co-Chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee where you served through the 1992 election. You have also been an assistant professor of law at Thomas M. Cooley Law School in Lansing.

You have dedicated your life to public service. I bestow this honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on you from Michigan State University. It pays tribute to an already fulfilling career, and it signals a faith in many contributions to come.

HONORARY DEGREE

FREDERIK G. H. MEIJER

Combining hometown values with world-class business acumen, you have created an institution in our state — The Meijer Superstores. An innovator in grocery and general merchandise retailing, your success has rested on your belief of treating employees and customers with human dignity, a conviction you have practiced for more than 60 years in business and in community service.

The son of immigrants from Holland, in 1927 at the age of eight you went to work for the first time, selling milk door to door. Today, your 99 Meijer stores continue to sell milk and a whole lot more. And you remain hard at work as Chairman of the Executive Committee of one of the largest privately-held corporations in the country.

Built on "common sense," Meijer stores got their humble beginnings with your parent's "Thrift Market," which opened its doors during the height of the Depression in Greenville, Michigan. During the Thirties, the seeds of the philosophy of your parents and you of providing customers with good value and treating all people with dignity were sown. Your parent's store took "welfare business" to help those in need, when other merchants refused. Further, you became an early practitioner of not judging people by race, gender or physicality — a belief fostered in part by listening to recordings of Carl Sandburg's "The People, Yes."

Before the civil rights movements of the Fifties, Sixties and Seventies, you were hiring minorities and handicappers to work in your stores. Moreover, you began local job programs for minorities and sensitivity-training of employees. Your work in this area brought you the Liberty Bell Award by the Grand Rapids Bar Association in 1971. Your efforts to provide specialized training of handicapped employees and services to handicapped customers were honored in 1965 by the Grand Valley Chapter of the National Association of Handicapped Persons. In 1983, your overall humanitarian good works were recognized by the Outstanding Michigan Citizen Award.

Counsel to a United States president and to Michigan governors, board member of numerous charities, economic task forces and industry associations, you have also been a teacher to Michigan State students. For more than two decades, Michigan State students in the Department of Agricultural Economics have studied your management practices. You have often met with these classes over the years, "contributing importantly to our learning objectives," as one MSU professor characterized it.

Leading by example and setting the example by doing, your hard work, professional innovation and community service are commensurate with the land-grant philosophy of Michigan State University. For your many contributions, I am proud to present you with the honorary degree of Doctor of Humanities.

HONORARY DEGREE

ANDREE ROAF

You have often said that you became an attorney in the 1970s in part because it allowed you flexibility to pursue a career and to be a parent without compromising either. In fact, you once said that "the most important thing in my life is what kind of mother I've been."

You spoke these words upon receiving the news that few in your profession ever have the good fortune to hear: your appointment to a state supreme court. In 1994, you became only the second African American woman in the history of the state of Arkansas to achieve such an exalted position.

Born into a family of intellectuals, you were a voracious reader even as a child. Once, at the age of 11, you burned the bed sheets with a hot light bulb while surreptitiously reading beneath the covers well past your bedtime. This passion for reading has never ebbed and, you still devour several books a week, if given the time away from your demanding judicial obligations.

In 1961, you earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Zoology from Michigan State University, and eventually settled in Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

In 1975, at the age of 34, you decided to make a career change from biology to the law. While caring for your children and commuting several hours a day, you earned a law degree from the University of Arkansas at Little Rock. You joined a prestigious law firm in Little Rock, excelling in and enjoying the research, writing and analytic thinking it required — skills translated from your days as a scientist.

As a citizen, you have been active in community causes, not the least of which have been public education issues. A believer in education as an agent for societal betterment, you have served as a board member or trustee on the Rockefeller Foundation, the PTA, the Student Loan Authority and the Youth Education Committee. You have also been an advocate of the arts as a board member on your community public radio station and "Arkansas for the Arts."

Community. Education. Justice. Family. It is especially fitting at this occasion honoring the pursuit of higher learning to recognize someone whose intellectual passions and moral convictions have taken her so far. You are an inspiration as a supreme court justice and as a parent. It is with great pleasure that I bestow upon you from Michigan State University the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

ALMA MATER.....

M.S.U., We love thy shadows
When twilight silence falls,
Flushing deep and softly paling
O'er ivy-covered halls.
Beneath the pines we'll gather
To give our faith so true,
Sing our love for Alma Mater
And thy praises, M.S.U.
