NEWSBOYS' MEETING.

The newsboys of Lansing, one hundred and thirty strong, gathered in the College chapel Sunday afternoon to hear a program given by the various members of the faculty. The whole meeting had been arranged by Prof. C. D. Smith, and the assembly was under the immediate charge of the officers of the newsboys' association, Messrs. Weston, Hammond and Van Haldren.

The program began at four o'clock, President Snyder giving a few brief words of welcome which was followed by the Lord's Prayer in which all joined. The newsboys' band then gave a selection and Prof. Barrows was introduced as the first speaker of the afternoon.

The subject of Prof. Barrows' remarks was "The Migration of Birds." His talk covered in a general way the reasons for the going and coming of our various summer birds and the methods and time of their departure. "Some of our birds, as the robin, appear in April," said Prof. Barrows. "Others as the oriole and indigo bird appear in May. Some species go always in flocks, others singly, some by day and some by night. The crow is an example of a species that travels in flocks and the oriole is an example of the night-migratory bird. That birds migrate by night is proven in various ways. For example, one may walk out in the orchard in early May during the late afternoon and see no orioles. Early the next morning the orchard will be full of the species, proving that the species traveled by night. On a clear, starless night, during the migration period, a strong telescope held against the disc of the full moon often reveals the presence of birds high up in the air and in process of migration. The wren and hummingbird have thus been seen at the height of one-half mile. Birds do not migrate on a cloudy night, but when the night is dark they are often lured to the electric lights and to the light houses, in which latter case many of them perish. The reason for the migration by night is that enemies may be avoided. The swallow, which does not migrate by night, is able to protect itself and besides feeds on the wing by catching insects in its flight. The night-travelers spend the day in some secluded wood resting and feeding.

"The reason why birds come to our northern climate in the spring and go away in the fall is not, as has often been stated, due to the extremes of weather. Any well-fed bird can stand our most vigorous northern climate. The lack of particular kinds of food causes birds to go south. They return in the spring because of the love of home, traveling often thousands of miles, sometimes from Central, and even South America. Rivers, mountain ranges, and belts of forest serve in guiding birds back to their summer quarters, the older birds serving as leaders for the younger."

Following Prof. Barrows Miss Bach sang two songs and Mr. King recited, refusing to respond to an encore. Mr. Gunson was the last speaker, having as his subject, Plants, which, he said, "have stomachs and assimilate food and possess many of the essentials of animal life. Not half the plants in existence have flowers and few of the species that produce flowers have conspicuous ones."

The last number was music by the band which is a very creditable organization. At the close of the program, it was voted by the association that all the speakers of the afternoon be made honorary members and that they be invited to the second annual banquet which takes place in the Baptist church April 25. The Newsboys' Association has been organized four years and is now in a flourishing condition.

Saturday, April 26, Normal at M. A. C.

Saturday, May 3, Olivet at M. A. C.

Saturday, May 10, Alma at Alma. Wednesday, May 14, Albion at Albion.

Saturday, May 17, Normal at Ypsilanti.

Thursday, May 22, Detroit College, M. A. C.

Thursday, May 24, Olivet College at Olivet.

Tuesday, May 27, Alma College at M. A. C.

Semi-finals and finals, June 6 and 7, during field day in Albion or Kalamazoo.

THE GAME.

The first of the season hoodoo held Saturday and the Lansing High School boys won the first base ball game at M. A. C. It was a raw, windy afternoon and consequently but a small crowd witnessed the contest. The M. A. C. pitchers did not let themselves loose to any great extent, being afraid of sore arms. Priest, Abbot, Jordan, and Millar successively took turns in the box, Millar doing the most effective work, fielding his position well, besides keeping the hits down. Tower proved good behind the bat and Millar played a good game at second. Both sides pounded the ball hard at times and the cold weather made errors frequent. The final score was Lansing 23, M. A. C., 20.

Y. M. C. A. LECTURE.

The lecture given here Friday evening, April 11, 1902, by Mr. Royal Loren Melendy, of Ann Arbor, was a success in every way except perhaps financially, and a satisfaction to those who made arrangements for the lecture. Mr. Melendy showed that the saloon's present position in such cities as Chicago (and by the way, in many smaller ones) is the result of a natural law—The same law of evolution as has given all our present forms of social, mental, and to an extent, moral customs, habits and beliefs. For as the laboring classes began to collect in the manufacturing and industrial districts of Chicago, to be near their places of labor, the wealthier and more refined classes began to move into the suburbs, leaving, as it were, these undesirable districts to the laboring class.

As these upper classes moved to the more quiet out-of-town districts, they took their churches with them or sold them to be used for other purposes and then built new ones in the suburbs, thus leaving the laboring classes of people with no suitable places for social gathering such as the churches might offer. The saloon was quick to see its opportunity and built large fine blocks fitting them up in a more or less elegant manner. These blocks contain usually a bar and fine rooms for amusement on the first floors, while on the upper floors there are society rooms, fraternity rooms, halls for public entertainments, and stalls, all fitted up, heated, and lighted free of any charge whatever. The saloons also, at least a majority of them, furnish free lunches and refreshments. All that is required to entitle anyone to a free lunch is to buy a five-cent glass of beer or a cigar.

Thus almost every social privilege the laboring classes have is supplied by the saloon. Here they receive their training in citizenship, politics and morality; while some of this training is good, the greater portion is evil, but it is the best they have,—in fact all they have. Here in the saloon very often the wedding ceremony is solemnized and the bridal feast spread. The people spend most of their time here when not at work, for their homes are much less pleasant and inviting, while many who have no homes at all are forced to spend the principal part of their time in the saloon, because of the shameless condition of the cheap restaurants and boarding houses. Now, in the business parts of the city where the men spend the day only, spending the nights at home in the suburban districts, the saloon has adjusted itself to their requirements by building fine restaurants and parlors in connection with the saloon proper.

ALUMNI.

'61. A. F. Allen, the oldest alumnus of the College is living on his farm near Vineland, Kas. During '66-'68, he was foreman of the College farm.

'79. Frank Benton, formerly Instructor in French at M. A. C., now Agricultural Investigator in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., was awarded a silver medal for apian display at the Paris Exposition, and two diplomas of honorable mention (the highest form of award given to individual exhibitors) at the Pan-American Exposition. One diploma was for queen-mailing cages and queen-rearing nucleus-hive, original inventions of the exhibitor. The other was granted for Cyprian and Carniolan bees bred by the exhibitor.

'79-'94. Likenesses of Orin P. Gulley and Frank Poss (classes of '79, and '94 respectively) appear in the Sunday Free Press, Mr. Gulley and Mr. Poss belong to the Charles F. Beck class which received the Scottish Rite degrees in Michigan Sovereign Consistency and Co-ordinate Bodies during the recent reunion.

'85. Prof. J. D. Towar started April 1st for California, via., the Grand Trunk & Southern Pacific. He will spend a few days in Southern California making some observations and will set sail for Australia, April 10th. Professor Towar did not leave M. A. C. as soon as planned because of the illness of his little boy.

'86. Prof. U. P. Hedrick, while in Goshen, Ind., a short time ago, had a pleasant visit with H. N. Jenner, '86. Mr. Jenner is a druggist and chemist and occupies a fine store on Main Street.

'88. The Chicago Record-Herald for Saturday, March 29th, gives, in its book review, the publishers' announcement of "A Treatise on the Care of Domestic Animals by N. S. Mayo.

'89. Ray Stannard Baker arrived at the College Saturday. During his recent tour in Europe, he accompanied Miss Stone from Constantinople to London, a long account of which appeared in the Springfield Republican for April 4th.

'89-'90. Born on April 10th, to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stannard Baker, a son.

'93. Assistant librarian Goss is to be the new assistant in the post office.

'94. O. S. Groner was at the College Friday. He receives his M. S. degree from the University in June. Next year he occupies the Chair of Sciences in the Grand Island College, Grand Island, Neb.

'95. Royal Fisher of base ball fame, now engaged in the furniture business at Hart, made the College a visit the latter part of the week.

'99. Fay Wheeler is in Chicago instead of Washington as stated last week.

TUESDAY, APRIL 15, 1902.

THOSE who attended the Melendy lecture heard a calm, dispassionate, unbiased discussion of the saloon question, by one who spoke from actual experience. It is not often that the saloon question is fairly discussed, but the address Friday evening was an exception to most addresses of this nature. There was in the lecture absolutely none of the partisan or fanatical elements that so often are apparent in themes of this kind.

A QUESTION often asked and not always answered with satisfaction to all is, "What should the function of a college newspaper be?" In attempting to discuss the question, there are many things that might be said but only a few of them can be enlarged upon here. As the phrase, "college newspaper," implies, a college newspaper should give the college news. Each educational institution has certain characteristics setting it apart from other institutions, but each college worthy the name has a college spirit which becomes evident as occasion may arise, and which, in its essential nature, is not different from the spirit found in other educational institutions the world over. The college newspaper should keep in touch with this spirit, should have certain ear marks of individuality making it a living force in the life of the institutions to which it belongs. A college newspaper should not represent a faction or class to the exclusion of all else. Its mission is to create unity, to build up college spirit as well as to represent it, to prove accessible to all for the expression of such things as are of interest to the greatest number.

As regards news, it is sometimes difficult to determine just what should go into a college paper. Indeed the best newspaper men of the day are those who understand what constitutes news. The editor of a large city daily does not believe necessarily that "Whatever is, is right," but that whatever is, is. This should hardly be the conception for the guidance of a college paper. Its field is limited. It appeals, or should appeal, for the most part to the students, alumni, and faculty. College news, of itself, preaches to no one, criticizes no one. It is a statement of local occurrences and by its very nature is limited by locality. Finally, it may be said, the special features of a college paper to be emphasized are dependent on its size, number of issues, and the prominence of the institution represented.

The point of the foregoing discussion is this: We have a college paper of limited size, published weekly, but representing a state institution. Not all of the interesting investigation carried on at the M. A. C. from week to week can be recorded in the local paper, but in concisely written items much of the news of the day can be so recorded. It is desired that each one will take it upon himself to inform the editors of items of interest in order that THE RECORD may set forth the College news.

'96m. L. D. Sees of Unionville, Mich., is taking the Sugar Beet Course. Mr. and Mrs. Sees are staying at Mr. Jenison's.

'99. A. Thorn Swift, who is teaching mathematics this term in place of Paul Thayer, '00, resigned, does not live at the College as reported.

'99. When last heard from, Macy Lapham's address was Rocky Ford, Colo. His work, as mentioned last week, is with the western division of the U. S. Soil Survey, the western division comprising the territory west of the Mississippi. His work is to collect soils for analyses in both the chemical and physical laboratories at Washington, to make maps representing the different kinds of soils, to determine Alkali formations, depth of water table, value of soil as to fertility etc. Much of this work is done in the field. This work has extended to fifteen states and to Porto Rico, Allegan County, Mich., being one of the districts visited by the Survey, which is under the supervision of Prof. Milton Whitney of the U. S. Department.

'00. C. H. Hilton, in addition to his duties as teacher in the Benton Harbor Academy is spending his leisure moments in fruit growing.

'00. Paul Thayer, who took post-graduate work in Horticulture and assisted in the Mathematical department last term, has resumed active charge of his fruit farm at Benton Harbor.

Y. M. C. A. Lecture.

Here they serve meals much superior to, and for less money than any of the best restaurants or hotels, depending for their profit upon the custom thus brought into the saloons.

Then for the suburban districts there are the beer gardens with good music, light refreshments, and everything to make them attractive. In each of these modified forms of the saloon the dance hall always forms a necessary part. Thus the saloon has come to be a part of the social life of this class of people, and until something better is substituted for it, there can be little hope of getting rid of the saloon with all its evil influence. However the churches are beginning to realize that they have been out-done by the saloon and thus far failed of their mission. While by the law of adaptation and the survival of the fittest the saloon has been gaining ground, the church by its conservatism has as surely been losing ground along the same lines.

Now, the churches, acting upon the same principle as the saloon, as far as possible, are striving to make themselves the centers of social life in place of the saloon. When this is accomplished, then the purity, virtue, integrity and righteousness for which the church stands, will become the prevailing atmosphere in which this class of people will then live, thereby not only developing a higher degree of moral perfection, but will forever wipe out the saloon and its demoralizing influences. In this new field of labor the church has made great advancement and bids fair in the near future not only to regain her former place as a social center, but to far transcend any previous record of usefulness. Such is an outline of Mr. Melendy's interesting lecture, "A Study of the Saloon in Chicago."

Thursday evening prayer meeting was led by H. N. Hornbeck, theme, "The duty of the Christian in taking a firm and definite stand." Evening lesson read from Daniel 1: 1-17. Daniel purposed in his heart not to defile himself with the portion of the king's meat and wine." In other words he took a definite and firm stand, and God blessed him for it, and he will do the same for any one today who will bravely stand for the right. What we need today is backbone and moral courage to do the right thing always.

Chapel services Sunday morning were conducted by Rev. J. A. Schaad, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Lansing. Mr. Schaad selected for his text John 4: 13, 14, Jesus the living water. The services were fairly well attended, and the sermon very interesting.

The union meeting of the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. Sunday evening was led by Prof. Jeffery, theme, "Our willingness to work in the Master's vineyard." The meeting was a success and very interesting.

It is the Christians duty as well as a pleasure to be always working for Christ's kingdom by helping those around him and keeping himself unspotted from the world.

ABOUT THE CAMPUS.

It is rumored that the thesis work in the senior year will be done away with, beginning with next year.

H. E. Young, '02, has the thesis for his B. S. degree about completed. His thesis has to do with the ascertaining of the effect of freezing and thawing on sugar beets.

A large refrigerator is being constructed in the kitchen pantry of the Women's building. The refrigerator has two doors large enough for entry, and will hold two tons of ice.

At the Athletic Union meeting last week, it was decided to allow no one to purchase season tickets, unless all term dues are paid. Baseball tickets for the season were fixed at $1.25 for non-members of the union.

Mr. Brasefield, who taught mathematics at M. A. C. the first part of the year, writes that he is getting along nicely. He is instructor in mathematics in Lafayette College, Pa., which is his Alma Mater and his home.

The Agricultural Review, a wide awake paper but recently started, and devoted to agricultural interests is desirous of obtaining contributions which will be paid for. The address of the paper is 6 Washington St. Chicago.

Mrs. H. A. Davidson of No. 1, Sprague Place, Albany, N. Y., has sent out her announcement of Summer Classes for the study of English. These classes are conducted somewhat after the manner of the Chautauqua system.

Wednesday evening was the first meeting of the Horticultural Club for the term. The program consisted of a talk by Prof. U. P. Hedrick on Landscape Gardening. He illustrated his talk with fifty lantern slides on the subject.

Work on the new bridge connecting the campus with the athletic field is progressing satisfactorily. Construction was stopped a few days last week, owing to the high water and cold weather.

The pastor of the Unitarian Church at Iowa City, Iowa has sent to the College for the cut from which was printed the likeness of ex-President Clute, who, for a time was pastor of the Iowa City Church.

The Experiment Station has just received some potatoes from the Upper Peninsula Station, which remained in the ground all winter and are in good condition. The heavy snow covering them made an effectual protection.

The attention of the authorities should be called to the danger to teams and bicyclers where the new building is being erected. A danger signal should be placed there at night to show the obstructions in the path.

Apropos of the discussion about the influence of athletics on scholarship, it may be said that in our own College A. H. Case, W. R. Shedd, R. W. Case and G. S. Covell, all senior mechanicals, belong to Tau Beta Phi, which requires a high grade of scholarship for membership.

The members of the Phi Delta and Eclectic Societies together with many friends, including former M. A. C. graduates and students, gathered in the Armory last Saturday evening to enjoy a few pleasant hours in dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Gunson chaperoned the party, and to them as well as to the efficient musicians much of the evening's pleasure is due.

The M. A. C. Chorus are planning to give the comic opera "Pinafore, or the Lass that Loved a Sailor" about the middle of this term in the College Armory. The opera will be given in costume, with the recitatives and dialogues omitted. The solos will be taken by Messrs Humphrey, Sevey, Stevens, Hess, Forbes, Barclay and Misses Bach, Smith and Toan. An admission will be charged to cover the cost of books.

A remarkable freak was brought into the veterinary department one day last week from the Forester farm seven miles east of the College, in the shape of a headless lamb. The hind quarters of the animal were normal. The front limbs and shoulders were also well developed, but there was no sign of a head, the skin and wool having grown completely over the end of the spinal column. The specimen will be preserved and placed in the department museum.

The Executive Committee of the International Intercollegiate Association will meet at the College on Friday afternoon of this week. The officers are G. E. Day of Ontario, president; J. J. Ferguson, College, secretary and treasurer; W. H. Skinner, Illinois and W. S. Carlyle, Wisconsin, members of executive committee. There has been much dissatisfaction with the conduct of the International Exposition Judging Contests as conducted, hence an effort will be made to devise some plan which it is hoped will prove more satisfactory to all interested.

The Oberlin Review in a recent issue encloses a full page likeness of ex-president Harris T. Fairchild, deceased.

The Dartmouth College baseball team this spring sent one of its pitchers South to train with the Boston Nationals.

The police department of Chicago during the recent municipal election in that city employed college athletes from the Chicago Colleges to prevent intimidation about the polls.

The last published bulletin of the University of Missouri furnishes some interesting statistics. The College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, and the School of Mines and Metallurgy were made departments of the University in 1870. The Experiment Station followed in 1888.

The Drover's Journal of April 3d, brings out the fact that there are several faults to be found with the organization and general effectiveness of the Illinois Farmer's Institutes. A committee appointed to offer suggestions, as a result of critical investigation, has recommended among other things that, in addition to its present work, the institute should undertake to secure the fullest information attainable and the freest discussion possible throughout the state upon at least one topic each year that shall be of state wide interest and of lasting importance, and that the results of this labor should be compiled and issued in a special report designed to stand as a contribution to the agricultural literature.
