MEMORIAL SERVICES.

On Sunday evening memorial services for members of the faculty who have died during the past three years were held in the armory. Tributes were paid to Ex-President O. Clute, Ex-president G. T. Fairchild, and Dr. R. C. Kedzie by Dr. Edwards, Dr. Beal and Mr. C. B. Collingwood respectively. It is greatly to be regretted that only portions of these tributes to noble and great men can be published at this time. A member of the Albion College faculty had been asked to talk of the life and services of Ex-Acting President Fiske, whose death has occurred within the past three years, but force of circumstances did not permit this part of the exercises being given.

No hard and fast rules can be laid down by which such a triumvirate as an Abbot, a Miles and a Kedzie can be drawn together, but this institution found itself thus equipped and its success today is because of such men.

It is particularly to Robert Clark Kedzie that I would call your attention. There are few instances where a man past middle life has made a change in his profession and has by earnest, persistent effort made himself one of the foremost men of his time.

When an Abbot a Miles and a Kedzie toiled in that clearing in the Michigan woods they were unconscious of the great work whose foundations they were laying.

When Doctor Kedzie accepted the position as Professor of Chemistry he was not a trained chemist, there were few such in the country at that time, the science was in its infancy, but he grew with it and made himself one of the foremost Chemists of the country. But more than that he had the insight to grasp this new education. He saw that it would furnish the opportunity for an education to thousands of the youth of this country who must otherwise be deaf and dumb and blind to higher thought. It is doubtful if the Michigan Agricultural College could have reached its high plane among the educational institutions of the country without him. Accepting in 1863 the professorship of chemistry in this College, he gave nearly forty years of his life to the service of education, and when he passed away, filled with years and honors, there was no note of sadness, nothing but the fitting termination of a grand, full life.

Such is the simple record of his life, but how about the man? What was he to the thousands of young men who came in daily contact with him? A temperament earnest almost to austerity, but so tempered by human sympathy and healthy, sparkling humor as to make him attractive and stimulating to all with whom he came in contact.

He never lost any time on non-essentials. There was nothing about him that was superfluous. His keen, active analytical mind would frame a sentence which was like a crystal, perfect as it dropped from his lips.

Doctor Kedzie was everywhere recognized as the leader in the Agricultural College movement for Michigan.

The State of Michigan owes a debt of gratitude to Robert Clark Kedzie which can scarcely be over-estimated. We hear talk of building a monument to his memory and it is well. But he has builded his own monument. This college with its beautiful campus, its splendid buildings, its six thousand sons and daughters scattered throughout this country is his monument, and a prouder heritage has no man. The near future should see a new and adequately equipped chemical laboratory to be called the Kedzie Memorial laboratory so that a permanent and special reminder may be left to all posterity of the splendid work of this noble man.

Some facts in the life and work of Ex-President Clute are as follows, though the address as given is not at hand:

Dr. Oscar Clute was born near Albany, New York, March 14, 1827. He was of Dutch descent. Up to the age of 17 he divided his time between the farm and school, but at that age he began teaching, his first work being done as principal of the Binghamton schools. Two years later he entered the Susquehanna Seminary as both student and teacher. In 1857 he came to Ionia, Michigan, as a teacher, being chosen the following year as principal. In 1859 he resigned to become a student at the College, entering the sophomore class. While yet an under-graduate he was appointed as teacher in the preparatory department of the College, and immediately upon graduation, '62, he was chosen tutor, afterwards professor of mathematics, holding that position till 1866.

After leaving the college he entered Meadville Theological Seminary, where he graduated the following year. Upon graduation, he accepted a call to the First Unitarian church at Vineland, New Jersey. While at Vineland, Dr. Clute helped to organize, and was elected president of the famous Vineland Farmers' Club, which during his presidency, gained a reputation not limited even to the United States. In 1868 he was married by Pres. Abbot to the President's sister-in-law, Miss Mary Merrylees. He remained at Vineland for six years, and from there was called to the first church at Newark, N. J. Two years later Dr. Clute received a call to the First Unitarian church at Keokuk, Iowa; and after serving there four years, was called to the larger field of Iowa City, serving for seven years the First Unitarian church of that city. From this church he removed in 1887 to the First Unitarian church at Pomona, California; and it was while engaged in building up this church, that he was called to the presidency of this College.

He remained as president until September, 1893, when he accepted the presidency of the Florida Agricultural College. From this state he returned in 1897 to Michigan, broken in health, and after a short stay, removed to California in the hope that the climate might restore him. Here he engaged in preaching again, as his strength would permit. But his health continued to fail until his death January 27th, 1902.

Dr. Clute was a prolific writer and an enthusiastic student of agriculture. While at Vineland he edited the agricultural department of the Vineland weekly. While in Newark he was for a time editor of the Liberal Christian of New York City. His book, The Blessed Bees, went through four editions, and he wrote largely and helpfully for various bee journals. He was president of the Iowa Bee-Keepers Association and editor of the Iowa Stock Journal and Farmer. The arduous nature of his work while at this College prevented similar efforts; but his sermons and addresses were always of a high order and showed great reach of thought and the scholarly habit of expression.

As his father was an officer of the College, Dr. George Thompson Fairchild lived for most, or all, of his early life at Oberlin College, Ohio. In due time he graduated in the four-years' course and later in the course in theology.

In 1865, he became Instructor in English Literature at this college and after one year he was made Professor of the same subject, a place he filled most acceptably till 1879, a period of fourteen years.

In 1872-73, during the absence of President Abbot, he was acting president of this College, for one year, and in assuming this difficult task he displayed marked ability.

In November, 1879, he resigned his professorship to accept the Presidency of Kansas Agricultural College, an institution at that time with a rather low rank, but during the eighteen years of his administration, it steadily improved in every respect.

He looked well after many details of management, including the income and expenditure of money, performing a wonderful amount of what may be termed drudgery or dead work.

He left Kansas under most trying circumstances, having been discharged by a board of trustees who had recently been appointed by a governor elected by an opposition Populist party; but during all of this trying ordeal he uttered no harsh words against his opponents. As E. R. Nichols, now president of the college, recently said, "There were rumblings during this period of nearly seven years, warnings of what was to come, yet in all this time he was the same kind, calm, deliberate, upright man; never too busy to listen to the smallest complaint, never too weary to give thought to the most weighty matters. We all knew how well he had learned that saying he repeated so often in chapel, 'Learn to do what you don't want to do, at a time when you don't want to do it.'"

ALUMNI.

'82. Prof. Liberty Hyde Bailey, Jr., alumni orator, addressed the American Association of Nurserymen in Detroit last week. A fine cut of Prof. Bailey appeared in last Thursday's issue of the Detroit Free Press. Editor H. W. Collingwood, of the Rural New Yorker, M. A. C., '83, also addressed the same association.

'83. Ex-Secretary Bird was elected president of the Lansing Manufacturers' Club last Wednesday evening.

'99m. Mr. Allan H. Stone is working as assistant engineer with the Illinois Central Railway, and is temporarily located at Mattson, Miss.

'01m. Mr. R. M. Lickly writes very pleasantly about his work in Washington. His address is No. 1549 Columbia St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

'01m. Mr. J. C. Green is located at Wabash, Ind., with the Wabash Bridge & Iron Works.

With '04. Friends of Robert S. Brewer, nephew of Mr. Graham of the State Board, will regret to learn of his recent death at his home, Grand Rapids. He, as well as two sisters, who died about the same time, were stricken with typhoid fever. It is regrettable that some facts relating to his life cannot be given at this time.

The members of the Congregational church at Manhattan, Kansas, held a memorial and dedicatory service on the afternoon of last Easter. A memorial window was placed in the church of which Dr. Fairchild was formerly a member, the design of which had been carefully selected by Mrs. Fairchild in New York City and was a figure of Christ standing amidst the lilies.

In his address at the church, Rev. R. M. Tunnell spoke of President Fairchild's power of will and the dominant power of conscience, and added that he heard one of the sons of the president say that he was greatly thankful for having a gentle father. He lives today in the lives of hundreds of students who learned of him. I. T. Willard, professor in Kansas Agricultural College, said, "Nothing tests the greatness of a man like adversity and injustice, and at no time did the character and personality of President Fairchild stand revealed in greater strength and majesty than during the trying days and weeks six years ago. In the excitement and anxiety he was the least affected. He felt that his work had been well done."

Professor Willard placed first his power to discern character, to read human nature as expressed in the limitless variations of the face, form, voice, movements and habits of the individual. He was an accurate observer of men and women, boys and girls, and an acute interpreter of their characters. His power of character-analysis gave him the rare power of recognizing ability. At one time three brothers of the Fairchild family were presidents of colleges: James Fairchild of Oberlin College, Ohio; Henry Fairchild of Berea College, Berea, Ky.; George T. Fairchild of Kansas Agricultural College.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON.

The baccalaureate sermon, the first of the events of commencement week, was preached in the armory Sunday at 3 p. m. The unusually large audience heard, with close attention, an excellent address by Rev. J. M. Barkley, D. D., pastor of the Forest Avenue Presbyterian church, Detroit.

Dr. Barkley read from Genesis portions of chapters 37, 41, 44, 47, dealing with events in the life of Joseph. Dr. Barkley showed how Joseph's dream eventuated in fact. And herein is a lesson for moderns. The dreams of youth eventuate in reality. Youth is the dreaming time. Since the days of Pentecost youth has been seeing visions. The visions of youth are responsible for the civilization of our time.

Joseph, the dreamer, tempered by obedience, self-repression, unbending rightness, and trust in God, saw, indeed, the reality.

MEETING OF THE STATE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Last Tuesday and Wednesday the Michigan State Horticultural Society met at the College. The attendance was somewhat small, which was undoubtedly due to the busy season and to the nearness to the Triennial. The program had been very well arranged, making it interesting as well as instructive. Director C. D. Smith said that the experiment stations and fruit grower were each dependent on the other, and that both were aiming toward a higher level for pomology. Prof. Jeffery stated that he believed the future agriculturist must discover methods of setting free the food materials already in soil, rather than adding that food in form of fertilizers. Two courses were suggested that will likely be followed. First, selecting plants that are the best feeders, and second, inoculating the soil with such bacteria and moulds as can transform unavailable food into available. Continuous spraying was the point most emphasized in the paper on the "Codlin Moth" by Prof. Pettit, also clean culture and fumigation of storage rooms must be practiced. Dr. Beal said that a probable method for the control of apple scab lay in the destruction of the fallen leaves, which contain the winter spores of the fungus.

The evening session was held in the chapel. Mr. F. C. Reimer, Pres. of the College Horticultural Club gave the address of welcome to which Hon. C. J. Monroe, of the State Board responded. Prof. Taft gave a very interesting description of his trip through Missouri, Arkansas and northeastern Texas. Hon. C. W. Garfield, of Grand Rapids, talked on Horticulture and Character.

The morning session was held in the laboratory rooms of the horticultural building. The program consisted of ten-minute talks by the members of the junior horticulture class, on the general subject "Spraying." Each of the students handled his special division of the subject in a very creditable way.

Mr. B. Gebhart of Hart, Mich., exhibited a number of varieties of plums, cherries, and peaches which showed that Mr. Gebhart had a very promising outlook for good crops of these fruits. The horticultural department also showed samples of a number of varieties of strawberries.

The only regret to be offered is that more were not present. The program exceeded expectations.

ABOUT THE CAMPUS.

The State Board of Agriculture meets tomorrow at the College.

House for rent on the Delta during the summer vacation. Inquire of E. E. Bogue.

The annual catalogue is now to be obtained at the president's office, and it is desired that all who wish a copy will secure one before leaving the College.

The officers of the Union Literary Society for the fall term are as follows: G. E. Martin, president; A. J. Anderson, vice president; J. R. Lambert, secretary; F. L. Johnston, treasurer; H. S. Hunt, registrar.

Mr. Wheeler played the singles in tennis at Albion instead of Mr. Willett who was erroneously announced as the M. A. C. representative. The results of the matches were reported too late for publication.

The annual Commencement party of the Themian Society took place Friday evening in the armory. Prof. and Mrs. Taft and Prof. and Mrs. Vedder were the chaperones. Green and white, the society colors, were used in the decorations. The ladies of the senior class were the guests of the Society.

The annual inspection of the College battalion took place Saturday afternoon on the drill ground, the inspection being made by Lieutenant Frohwitter, artillery officer stationed at Fort Sheridan. The inspection was very satisfactory from a military standpoint, but a steady rain during the whole time of inspection was an unpleasant feature.

Mr. Ira J. Van Skiver has been appointed to a position as draftsman with the Pennsylvania Steel Co., Steelton, Pa.

The night-shirt parade took place last evening and the usual ceremonies were gone through with. The paraders were treated to a lunch in the armory, this feature closing the program.

The Feronian Literary Society has elected the following officers for the fall term 1903: President, Elizabeth Johns; Vice-president, Ethel Adams; Secretary, May Butterfield; Treasurer, Lucile Brown; Record Editor, Bess K. Paddock, Marshal, Bernice Black.

Those who attended the memorial services Sunday evening were impressed with the work of the M. A. C. male quartette composed of Messrs. Bates, Willits, Walker, and Sevey. Mr. Sevey graduates this year, but the three other members will be in College next year, and the training of past terms will be continued.

The Michigan legislature recently passed a bill appropriating $2,000 to be expended in botanical and zoological work, or work in natural history in the state. This sum is nominally to be in the hands of the State Geologist but suggestions will be made and some of the work performed by various botanists and zoologists of the State. Several in the College faculty will have more or less to do with this work, the appropriation for which was due largely to the efforts put forth by the State Academy of Science.

Several members of the class of '03, Detroit College of Law, visited the campus yesterday.

The Tau Beta Pi held their annual spring term banquet last Thursday evening. Only members of the society were present. Seven members of the society graduate this year and so there will be but four members left at the beginning of the fall term. Election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President, S. E. Johnson; vice president, E. Balbach; corresponding secretary, W. F. Carleton; recording secretary, H. G. Walker; treasurer, E. Balbach. An enjoyable evening was spent by all. Those present besides the members were Prof. C. L. Weil, Messrs. H. E. Smith and H. T. Thomas.

The Feronians gave their annual Commencement party, Saturday evening, June 13, in the armory. Prof. and Mrs. Barrows and Prof. and Mrs. Babcock made the most agreeable patronesses. The society colors, yellow and white, were carried out very extensively in bunting and flowers. Light refreshments were served under an Oriental booth. A number of the old members were back, among them Miss Vesta Woodbury, Miss Mabel Bristol, Mrs. Reynolds, Mrs. Ranney, and the Misses Martha Van Orden, Dorothy Swift, Louise Taylor, Marguerite Linn, Mary Green, Grace Lovely and Mabel Bohn.

The Thursday evening prayer meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was led by R. A. Burpee. Theme:

"Vacation Christianity." Vacation Christianity does not consist in inactivity on our part, in being ministered to by others, or being made happy by those around us, who perhaps have not enjoyed the privileges we, as college students, have and are enjoying. Therefore "Vacation Christianity" surely consists in our making those around us more happy, in carrying sunshine to those living in the shadows, in encouraging the weak and timid, and in fact being faithful examples of what true, strong, helpful Christians ought at all times to be. Therefore Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. members, let us go home this vacation highly resolved to be the most possible for the highest good of others. Vacation has at last arrived, and we now separate for a time, each to go his way, and all to be variously engaged during the summer months. It is earnestly hoped that the Y. M. C. A. men will not forget what the association has meant to them during the year now passed, and that we may study how to be of greater service when we return next fall. Some will spend the summer in the city, where the opportunities for studying the city association, its purposes, and methods of work will be good. Why not, fellow members, take advantage of the opportunity to become familiar with the working of the city associations? You will be worth all the more to your association here at the College.

Mr. Harry Meek plans to attend the Michigan Schools of Mines at Houghton next year.
