REPORT OF COUNTRY LIFE COMMISSION.

The occasion of sending by President Roosevelt to Congress his special message together with the report of the country life commission serves to bring again to national attention two prominent M. A. C. alumni, Liberty Hyde Bailey, '82, and Kenyon Leech Butterfield, '91, who have served as two members of the commission of five appointed by the president to investigate country life conditions.

As pointed out by the president in his message, the committee has served entirely without pay, has held 30 public hearings among people from 40 states and territories, and has had a hundred and twenty thousand answers to the lists of printed questions which it sent out. In addition the members have traveled widely, observing general farming conditions in all parts of the country.

The report will soon be available for general distribution and should be read by every person interested in rural life. Lack of space prevents us from giving it here, though we reproduce below a part of the prepared summary:

"Broadly speaking, agriculture in the United States is prosperous and the conditions in many of the great farming regions are improving. Country homes generally are improving in comfort, attractiveness, and healthfulness. Many institutions, organizations, and movements are actively contributing to the increasing welfare of the open country.

"There has never been a time when the American farmer was as well off as he is today, when not only his earning power but the comforts and advantages he may secure are considered. There has been a complete and fundamental change in our whole economic system within the past century.

"Yet it is true, notwithstanding all this progress as measured by historical standards, that agriculture is not commercially as profitable as it is entitled to be for the labor and energy that the farmer expends and the risks that he assumes, and that the social conditions in the open country are far short of their possibilities.

"Rural society is lacking chiefly in a knowledge on the part of the farmers of the exact agricultural conditions and possibilities of their regions, resulting in the widespread depletion of soils with the injurious effect on rural life; in proper training for country life in the schools; in good highway facilities, and in organization for buying and selling.

"There is an absence of any adequate system of agricultural credit, a shortage of labor, often complicated by intemperance among workmen; a lack of institutions and incentives that tie the laboring man to the soil; the life of the farm woman is burdensome and narrow, there is need of adequate supervision of public health.

"The farmer is handicapped by the speculative holding of lands, monopolistic control of streams and forests, waste of our natural resources, and by restraint of trade.

"Some of the remedies for the condi-

JAMES BURRELL ANGELL

The recent resignation of Dr. James B. Angell as president of the University of Michigan brings forcefully to mind the fact that a man of first magnitude has stepped from the field of his activities, his great life work accomplished. The thousands who have sat at the feet of this wise scholar and diplomat will hope that from this time on the mellowing years of his life may still be many and sweetened by health and the love of countless friends. Easily the first citizen of Michigan, the peer of any university president, and one of the nation's noblest and most learned men, his life exemplifies the grandeur of unaffected simplicity.

It was a fortunate thing for Michigan that the Board of Regents made a second tender of the presidency to Dr. Angell, which was accepted. Somewhat previous to 1871 the position had been offered to him, and after looking over the ground carefully, he decided not to accept it. His later decision to assume the responsibilities of the position was undoubtedly influenced by improved conditions for developing the work of the University, and so in 1871 he began the task of developing, upon the foundations already laid, the greatest of state universities. Few, if any, men in this country have been able to meet with such consummate tact and judgment the peculiar and exacting conditions that confront the administrator of a state institution of learning.

Those who have not had experience in such affairs, who have only known colleges with magnificent endowments, have no conception of the difficulties and embarrassments that beset the path of a state university president. In his habits of life, in his relations with men, and in his contact with students, Dr. Angell illustrates the very highest type of American manhood. A graduate of Brown University at twenty, where he was a pupil of that distinguished and saintly scholar, Dr. Frieze, with six years' experience as the editor of the Providence Journal, his administrative powers trained and developed through his holding the presidency of the University of Vermont for a similar period, he came to Michigan in the prime of his manhood with a preparation for his work that was in every way adequate if not ideal.

The story of his success in the position from which he has just retired is too familiar to the people of Michigan to need repetition. The institution over which he has so long presided stands as a perpetual monument to his genius as an administrator, and time can but add new luster to the estimate of his great abilities.

Twice during his life in this state he has been called by the national government to positions of great trust and responsibility in the diplomatic service; first as ambassador extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to China in 1880, where a new treaty with that strange power was elaborated, and again as minister to Turkey in 1897. In other affairs of international importance his services have been sought, and he has long been regarded as one of that small coterie of distinguished men constituting the nation's greatest resource in time of need.

As the official organ of Michigan Agricultural College the RECORD drops its tribute of respect and appreciation at the feet of him, honored of the state and of the nation, and wishes him the joy of peace and happiness in his gently declining years.

M. R. Allen is now acting as instructor in science in the Holland High School. He is filling a vacancy caused by the prolonged illness of the regular science teacher.

M. J. Dorsey of the above class is now with the department of experimental plant breeding at Cornell University. His address is 518 Stewart Ave., Ithaca, N. Y.

ELECTRICAL EXHIBITION.

The department of physics and electrical engineering is arranging for an electrical exhibition to be given at the engineering building from 3 to 9 p. m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of this week. This exhibition will be open to the public, and every one whether old or young will find something of interest. Demonstrations will be given as to proper lighting with different electrical lighting units, and the application of electrical power for domestic purposes and electrical heating devices, as well as numerous interesting and educational electrical experiments.

Special invitations will be issued to the members of the legislature, and a general invitation is extended to people of the college, Lansing, and East Lansing.

FORESTRY CLUB.

Chas. W. Ward, of Detroit, gave a stereopticon lecture last Tuesday evening in the chapel under the auspices of the Forestry Club. Mr. Ward is a large owner of lumber interests in the north part of the state, a close student of forestry problems and an advocate of better laws for forest protection and forest taxation.

The slides used in illustrating the lecture were made by Mr. Ward and his photographer and show pictures of the virgin forests, the condition in which the lumberman leaves them, how the fires kill the trees and destroy the agricultural value of the soil, how the fire runs through the forest and a comparison of European and American forest and lumbering methods. Many of the slides were made in color by the new color process photography.

Though himself a large lumber owner Mr. Ward is strongly in favor of enacting laws which will compel less wasteful methods of lumbering as well as to compel lumbermen to clean up the rubbish so that there will be less opportunity for fires to catch.

Mr. Ward also made the following recommendations for forest taxation:

There should be created a responsible body of practical business men, not politicians, who should have sufficient knowledge of forestry and forestry conditions to enable them to accomplish practical results. This body of men should not be too large, but should be vested with power and provided with a sufficient fund to enable them to accomplish the desired result.

Secondly, private owners of forest property should be put under such lawful restraint as would prevent their willfully destroying the values of their property, and they should be charged with keeping their cut-over lands free from debris and inflammable material, and in case they fail to keep their lands in the required lawful safe condition, they should be made liable for any loss incurred by their neighbors or incurred

NOW that the question of an official college pin bids fair to be settled the question of a suitable college seal or coat of arms suggests itself. The college has now been in existence for nearly fifty-two years, a period of usefulness which should entitle it to some distinctive and official seal for use on commencement programs, etc.

The State Board of Agriculture has an official seal which for legal purposes is well and good, but which can hardly be said to be suitable as a college seal. As a state institution we are entitled to use the state seal, but neither does that fill the bill. A design embodying this has for several years been used upon the cover of the catalogue, but it is unwieldy, and as its purpose is to typify the various courses offered it cannot be permanent, and as courses are added will grow to huge proportions. Another excellent design appropriate to the special occasion was the medal used in connection with the semi-centennial badges, but it was not designed to be permanent.

In fact we have no college seal.

REPORT OF COUNTRY LIFE COMMISSION.

tions set forth lie with the national government, some of them with the states and communities in their corporate capacities, some with voluntary organizations, and some with individuals acting alone.

"All organized forces both in town and country should understand that there are country phases as well as city phases of our civilization, and that one phase needs help as much as the other. All these agencies should realize their responsibility to society. Many existing organizations and institutions might become practically cooperative or mutual in spirit, as for example, all agricultural societies, libraries, Young Men's Christian Associations, and churches. All the organizations standing for rural progress should be federated in states and nation.

"There are several great forces, or principles, which must be utilized in the endeavor to solve the country life question.

"There must be a vast enlargement of voluntary, organized effort among farmers themselves. It is indispensable that farmers shall work together for their common interests and for the national welfare. If they do not do this, no governmental activity, no legislation, not even better schools, will greatly avail. The forces and institutions that make for morality and spiritual ideals among rural people must be energized.

"There must be not only a fuller scheme of public education, but a new kind of education adapted to the real needs of the farming people. The country schools are to be so redirected that they shall educate their pupils in terms of the daily life. Opportunities for training toward the agricultural callings are to be multiplied and made broadly effective. This means redoubled efforts for better country schools, and a vastly increased interest in the welfare of country boys and girls on the part of those who pay the school taxes. Education by means of agriculture is to be a part of our regular public school work. Special agricultural schools are to be organized.

"The country people everywhere are asking for good roads. Everywhere too they want a parcels post and the extension of the rural free delivery.

"The commission has purposely avoided endorsing any particular bill now before congress, no matter what its value or object. In the opinion of the commission, however, there are two or three movements of the utmost consequence that should be set under way at the earliest possible time because they are fundamental to the whole problem of permanent reconstruction. There should be organized under government leadership a comprehensive plan for an exhaustive study or survey of all the conditions that surround the business of farming and the people who live in the country, in order to take stock of our resources and to supply the farmer with knowledge.

"Each state college of agriculture should organize as soon as practicable, a complete department of college extension. Local, state, and even national conferences on rural progress, designed to unite the interests of education, organization, and religion, should be held.

"There is need for young people of quality, energy, capacity, aspiration, and conviction, who will live in the open country as permanent residents on farms or as teachers, or in other useful fields, and who, while developing their own business or affairs to the greatest perfection, will still have unselfish interest in the welfare of their communities. The farming country is by no means devoid of leaders and is not lost or incapable of helping itself, but it has been relatively overlooked by persons who are seeking great fields of usefulness. It will be well for us as a people if we recognize the opportunity for usefulness in the open country and consider that there is a call for service."

In his message the president recommended an appropriation of $25,000 to aid in extending the investigations of the commission.

FORESTRY CLUB.

upon the state land due to fires which might originate from any cause whatsoever upon such land as was not kept in the condition required by law. Your system of taxation of forestry land should be such as would penalize or fine the forest owner for cutting and destroying the timber instead of penalizing him for holding and preserving it, as is the case at the present time. This could be accomplished by assessing all forest lands upon the basis of their agricultural value, and relieving the timber value from taxation until such time as the timber was cut. At the time of cutting the timber it should pay a specific tax upon some unit of measure, which would secure to the state a fair return in revenue from such timber as manufactured, and a certain proportion of this tax should be payable directly into the state forestry fund, which fund should be under the control of that body of men who should be charged with the maintenance and protection of your forests.

The planting of private forests should be encouraged by assessing lands devoted exclusively to forest replanting by a very low rate of assessment for a period of years sufficient in length to allow the timber to reach a state of maturity that would enable the owner to deprive some income from the first cutting from the planted forest, and from that time onward, the land should be assessed at its fair agricultural value and the timber cut therefrom should be subject to the same specific tax as other timbered lands.

Upon all lands declared as forest preserves assess a uniform annual tax per acre, or a tax upon the land values without the timber, and in addition thereto assess a specific tax of either a certain amount per thousand feet or other unit of measure upon all forest products cut from such lands as are declared forest preserves at the time the timber is cut and sold, exempting perhaps from such specific tax such wood as may be used solely for the domestic use of owners of small wood-lots.

Provide suitable assistance and encouragement to induce private capital to be invested in your wild lands, for reforestation purposes by exempting such lands so committed as forest lands and effectively maintained as such, from all but a moderate annual tax per acre, deferring further taxation until the first crop of timber is ready for cutting and levying a specific tax on some unit of measure upon timber actually cut at the time it is manufactured and sold.

Provide that the tax collected on the land values alone shall be paid into the county treasurer, but also provide that at least three-fourths of the specific or income tax collected on the timber as cut be paid into a State forestry fund, and provide that this fund shall be used solely for the purposes of forestry protection, supervising, encouragement and development.

Provide and enforce protective laws and proper and effective forestry supervision.

ABOUT THE CAMPUS

The second team defeated the Charlotte H. S. team at Charlotte Friday evening.

The students in the poultry department are preparing for a poultry show to be given Friday afternoon of this week.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Peters, Feb. 18, '09, a son, Ernest Fisher Peters. Mrs. Peters will be remembered as Cornelia Fisher, sp. '03-'05. "Pete" will be remembered as a football hero from '00-'03.

According to the provisions of the new constitution, the governor of the state has no connection with the new state board of agriculture. The president of the college will be president of the board, but with no vote.

The RECORD is indebted to Secretary Brown for the appreciation of Pres. Angell appearing on page 1. Mr. Brown is a graduate of the University of Michigan with a long acquaintance with Dr. Angell and his work.

Preliminary to the 'varsity game Saturday evening, the Sophomores defeated the Freshmen—14 to 3. This leaves the Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors in the race for class championship honors. The Senior-Junior game, which was to have been played last Saturday, was postponed to Wednesday evening—6:45. If this game should be won by the Juniors it places all three teams at a tie for the championship, but if won by the Seniors it gives them the title.

Dean and Mrs. Shaw entertained the members of the agricultural short course classes last Thursday evening.

A copy of the Oklahoma Farmer now edited by E. B. Reed, with '09, comes to our desk. It is an up-to-date farm paper.

A Washington birthday party was given by the Eclectic Society Saturday evening. Secretary and Mrs. A. M. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Collingwood were patrons.

A snow party was given by the members of the Ero Alphan Society Saturday evening at their rooms in the Women's Building. Prof. and Mrs. H. S. Reed and Prof. and Mrs. W. B. Barrows were patrons.

Last Friday evening the Olympics and their lady friends enjoyed a mid term party, which was held in the society rooms. There were about twenty-five couples in attendance. Dean and Mrs. Bissell and Prof. and Mrs. Eustace as patrons added greatly to the pleasure of the evening.

The lecture on the Yellowstone National Park by Mrs. Ella Kedzie at college chapel Friday night proved to be one of the most entertaining and instructive heard at the college in some time. Mrs. Kedzie spent some time in the park last summer and punctuated her talk with many amusing incidents. The slides which are the same as are used to illustrate the Stoddard lectures were especially good.

FOUND.—A sum of money in bills. See V. N. Taggett, 5 A. Wells.

Through the courtesy of the publishers the library is receiving the Bay City Times, daily. Many thanks.

A reception was tendered in the Women's building Tuesday afternoon to Miss Ida M. Tarbell, who was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stannard Baker during the day.

According to general superintendent O'Mara of the M. U. R. orders have been placed for five large new double track cars for the college line. They are to be delivered within sixty days.

Plans are on foot to have the state take over the Orchard Lake Military Academy, and conduct it as a preparatory school. A bill to that effect may be introduced at this session of the legislature.

At a mass meeting called by the student council Wednesday night, the following resolutions were adopted: Realizing that the junior hop is a college function of interest to every student during his course at the Michigan Agricultural College, it is hereby Resolved, that the sentiment of the student-body be expressed in the declaration that in the future all actions which in any way interfere with this affair or the participants be severely condemned and every effort be made to eliminate such performances as have appeared in the past.

The Montana Agricultural College dedicated its new agricultural building February 6.

Arrangements are being made to accommodate all students who can attend the state oratorical contest at Kalamazoo next week. The local association is anxious to have as many M. A. C. students go as possible.

There was a fast five from Ann Arbor, Sweet thoughts of revenge they did harbor.

They came down to play us,
To literally flay us,
Was the score to their liking?—Oh, bother!

A. G. Craig has resigned his position as horticulturist at the Washington State College to accept a position as horticulturist for the Arcadia Irrigation Association near Deer Park, Wash. The company now have 8,500 acres and are negotiating for more which is to be placed under irrigation and planted to apples. Mr. Craig has entire charge of all the horticultural work. "Just before leaving Pullman," he writes, "my students presented me with the money to purchase Bailey's Cyclopaedia of Horticulture which will make a valuable addition to my library."

ATHLETICS

M. A. C. 45—U. OF M. 23.

In a game, which rivaled the recent Notre Dame game for speed and general excitement, the university team was swamped by the varsity Saturday afternoon by a score of 45-23. Only once during the entire game did the Ann Arbor boys stand the least chance of tying the score, which at this particular time stood 18-16 in favor of M. A. C. But a sudden streak of exceptionally fast play on the part of the varsity pulled the game away from the danger point, and at no other time was there the least chance of Michigan winning.

The game was a whirlwind of speed and never before this season did the locals display better team play. McKenna and Dickson could not be stopped once their scoring blood was up, and the result was eight field baskets, and five free throws for McKenna, and four baskets for "Red." Hanish scored four times, Campbell three and Merz once. Merz was particularly effective in breaking up U. of M.'s rushes, and played a star game all through. Hanish combined his usual good work at guard with several rushes, which resulted in eight points being credited.

Michigan has two star men, Farquhar at forward, and Lathers at center, who did most of the offensive work for the university team. Farquhar scored three field goals, and rang up four out of seven free throws, nearly every one of his free throws dropping through without touching the ring. During the second half, Raiss was substituted for West at forward, and Peck was detailed to take care of McKenna, in place of Wilson at guard.

M. A. C. 32—BATTLE CREEK "Y" 25

Another victory was added to the record of the basket ball team Friday evening when they defeated the Battle Creek "Y" team by a score of 32 to 25. The game was a walk away during the last few minutes of play.

A BUSY WEEK.

One of the busiest weeks of the athletic year is the present week. This evening, at 7:30, the first try-out for the D. U. S.-Fresh meet, which will take place Saturday afternoon at Detroit, will be held in the Armory; Sr.-Jr. game Wednesday night at 6:45; final Fresh try-out Thursday night from 7:00 to 8:00; Varsity vs. Armour Institute basket ball team Friday evening, with, as a curtain-raiser, Reserves vs. Charlotte City team.
