GUNSON TO SPEAK ALUMNI DAY

Selected by Washington Alumni to Dedicate Tablet for Union Memorial Building; Class of '26 Invited to Alumni Luncheon As Guests of Association; Registration Fee to Be Levied to Pay Extra Expense of Day.

There will be a big turnout of the class of '76 on Alumni Day. J. E. Taylor has circularized the list until he has promises from many of his classmates and Dean Kedzie has seconded the invitation. Those who have promised to be on hand include E. D. Brooks, W. B. Jakways, R. E. Caine and J. E. Taylor. R. A. Clark and W. J. Sloss may also be present.

Then the class of '86 is planning a big time with a special dinner at the Downey through the good will of J. B. Cotton. J. E. Hammond, of that class, has been working on reunion plans since last fall and his list of those who will attend reads like the graduation list. There have been many letters with efforts concentrated on those who were backward about declaring themselves and the other members of the class have aided the reunion chairman in applying the proper pressure. They are coming from the west coast and from the coast of the Gulf of Mexico as well as from the east and points in between.

President Butterfield and W. O. Hedrick are caring for the gathering of the class of '91. They report general responses to their invitations. George W. Williams is trying to round up the class of 1896 and Mark Ireland is looking after the class of '01. L. O. Gordon is doing his best with the class of '06 and Jimmy Hays and several others are applying their efforts on the class of '11. Knickerbocker, Ethel Taft Kleaver and Bottomley have put out their pleas to draw in the class of '16.

In addition to these there is a long list of classes due for reunion under the Dix plan but not many of these have done special work to bring out a big attendance. The class of '25 has sent out a letter and has received many replies and the class of '23 is continuing its work along the same line.

The Washington, D. C. Association has voted to request Thomas Gunson to deliver the dedication address in behalf of that organization when the memorial tablet is unveiled on Alumni Day. This ceremony will follow the annual meeting of the Association which will follow the luncheon. After the luncheon which is due to start at 12 o'clock promptly, tables will be cleared from the ballroom and chairs will be drawn up closer to the platform. An interval of about thirty minutes will be allowed for this work. The annual meeting of the Association will follow with President Rogers in charge. Reports of committees and officers will be presented and then the ceremony will take place. During this ceremony the tablet will be mounted on the platform and afterward it will be placed in its frame in the lobby. Lack of space for the crowd prevents holding the dedication in the lobby where the tablet will be placed in the wall between the fireplace and main desk.

Following this meeting a photographer will take pictures of the classes in front of the Union Memorial building and then all will adjourn to College Field for the big baseball game. This year the alumni will have to tackle a victorious team. The varsity has tasted the fruits of victory over Michigan and promises to add other laurels before the season closes. A first class lineup will oppose the graduates and "Brownie" Springer and Frimodig declare the the alumni representation will be fast enough to make the youngsters extend themselves to make a good showing. There will be no charge for admission to the game.

During the ensuing three hours there will be time for class and group dinners. Several of these have already reserved places at the Union.

Registration will be on tap in the lobby of the Union Memorial building beginning Friday night. There will be a tax of twenty-five cents to cover the extraordinary expenses connected with the day and these will be unusually high this year because the class of '26 will be the guest of the Association at luncheon. Tickets must be purchased before an attempt is made to enter the dining room and classes will march in together. The luncheon will not be served but those attending must carry their own, cafeteria style. This type of service was recommended by the committee in charge of the program in order that the events might be speeded up.

"Jimmy" Hays will have charge of the informal program for the day. He will be assisted by a committee in getting the classes into line and will make all general announcements concerning the program throughout the morning. The committee headed by J. D. Towar, '85, urges that all attending the reunions register and purchase luncheon tickets early so final arrangements may be made for the various events. Badges and programs will be distributed at registration time and there will be full information on hand in the lobby for all returning. There will be class lists for the information of the members of your class and the general registration on cards which will be filed for further reference.

While special emphasis is laid upon the reunions of various classes there is no reason for any alumnus or former student feeling left out because there is no reunion scheduled for his or her class, there is no question but what there will be a representation of all classes and reunion dinners are often arranged on the morning of Alumni Day.

Come to the Campus early, register as soon as you arrive so your classmates will know you are here, plan on staying for the president's reception and alumni dance in the evening. The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered at the People's church on Sunday, June 20, and Commencement will take place on Monday, June 21.

PEOPLE'S CHURCH OPEN ALUMNI DAY

To Commencement and Alumni Day visitors one of the principal points of interest will be the new People's church, which was dedicated on Sunday, May 10. This imposing structure, erected at a cost of approximately $400,000, faces Grand River avenue at the intersection of Michigan avenue, west of the Phi Delta house.

The completion, dedication and occupancy of the new church marks the fruition of a dream which has been fostered over a great period of years. It is without a doubt the largest and most comprehensive structure in the state devoted to community worship. Barring no nationalities or religious faiths, the church stands out as a pioneer in the movement to establish the church as a more important cog in the life of the smaller communities.

A visit to the new church will greatly remunerate all visitors to the College for some time to come. Rev. N. A. McCune, '01, pastor of the church, states that guides will be at the building on Alumni Day to show all alumni through the building.

As a community structure the church is complete to the last detail. It is not merely a church but rather a human laboratory. Officers of the church will not only be able to carry on their present programs and plans more fully, but they will be able to add to the service of the church by means of the increased facilities.

The auditorium itself is the greatest single feature of the building. Seating 1,500, it is so built that it can be filled and vacated in record time. The huge balcony covers three sides of the hall. The choir loft and accommodations for the pipe organ, which will be installed in the near future, are the last word in church architecture.

The auditorium is but a part of the entire plant. Social parlors, which can also be used as a dining room, are situated on the ground floor and will accommodate 600 diners at one time. Spacious kitchens, equipped with the latest improvements, adjoin the dining room. A tea room has not been forgotten. On the ground floor there is also a gymnasium, lockers and shower rooms, dressing rooms, club rooms and the quarters for the janitors and heating plant.

On the main floor are located the general offices, the Newell A. McCune chapel, men's and women's parlors, vestry and choir room. The second floor accommodates students' parlors, the offices of the directors of the church, part of the children's and Sunday school departments, the nursery and store rooms. Third floor is devoted to the young people's department and other student activities.

The dedication exercises on May 16 were tremendously successful. The auditorium was packed to the doors at every meeting, hundreds being turned away. Because of the absence of a pipe organ, arrangements were made with the Central Methodist church of Lansing so that organ music was transmitted by wire to the new church for the occasion.

In addition to the regular dedicatory exercises in the forenoon of that day, the Newell A. McCune chapel was dedicated in the afternoon.

TRACK MEN PLACE HIGH IN STATE MEET

Ypsilanti normal, Detroit City college and State finished in the order named in the annual state intercollegiate track and field meet, held at the College on May 21-22. Ypsi scored 48 1-3 points, City college 44 2-3 and State 40 1-2.

During the greater part of the meet the outcome was uncertain, each of these three entries looming as a threat at various times. The other schools represented did not have a chance. New records were established in the pole vault and javelin. Excessive rains on Friday night which continued in the form of a drizzle on Saturday slowed up the track events so greatly that hopes for records on the track were abandoned.

Although the Varsity gained first place in six events there were not enough second and third place winners to balance the attack.

Javelin throw—Won by Hartlett (Albion); Doherty (Detroit City college), second; Harmon (Hillsdale), third; Joachim (Michigan State Fresh), fourth. Distance—185 feet (new record.)

VIEWS AND COMMENT

For the first time in eleven years Michigan was vanquished by a Green and White baseball team on May 24. The resultant celebration has been the subject of much comment in the public press of the state, and many times the discussion has been based upon entire lack of knowledge of the circumstances which attended the affair. It is true that the old bleachers on College field were burned down; it is true that several students spent the night in the Lansing jail as a consequence of their argument with Lansing police but what is not generally known is that the bleachers were a source of expense to the athletic department, with a very doubtful value and that the circumstances surrounding the encounter with the guardians of the Capital city's peace were not to the credit of the latter.

Sober judgment always condemns disregard for property rights, mature deliberation, as well, presents several solutions to the problem of handling a group of College students in other ways than as if they were members of a lynching mob. The students lacked outstanding leadership of the proper sort, the police lacked contact with students bent upon celebration of an epochal victory. In neither case was there justification for what happened but that training in psychology which teaches that a crowd can be led easier than driven has been left out of the curriculum of the police training school in Lansing.

It is true that celebrations should be confined to East Lansing, where a lone policeman can handle the situation without calling out the other member of the force, but that lesson is one which must upset long precedent before it is thoroughly learned. In the victorious football years there were many such celebrations, mainly because East Lansing had not reached the proportions of a city and there must be a stage for any spectacle. It is probable that future years will see a curtailment of the wild enthusiasm attendant upon victory in athletic events, as those marks of success become more common, it is also probable that other means may be devised for the celebrations or that Lansing will provide its police force with men not quite so well-developed in their sense of responsibility in protecting the city from invasion or allow them to use a less harmful type of weapon. The gratification in victory still remain even after the sting of defeat at the hands of non-combatants has faded away. An 8 to 5 defeat of Michigan is probably worth the price now but it will grow cheaper as time passes.

Thomas Gunson, for years and years monarch of the Campus will deliver the dedication speech for the Washington, D. C., M. S. C. Association when the tablet presented by the organization is unveiled in the Union Memorial building on Alumni Day. Through the years he has spent on the Campus "Tom" has been better known to the rank and file of students than have many of the faculty members with whom the students came into contact in class periods. His home is always crowded to capacity when alumni return to the Campus, they take it for granted that that is the place to stay and he takes it for granted that they should. He has furnished the inspiration for many who have gone out into their life work to make enviable records, his philosophy of life has been the basis of poets among the students, he is counted upon to fill the bill as an after dinner speaker for any sort of occasion, he is the worker whose efforts are demanded when a project needs impetus, his patriotism is beyond question, his work during the war was an honor to the College. With these attributes "Tom" is a happy choice for the task for which he was selected, none is better fitted.

"Close Beside The Winding Cedar"

Former Governor Chase S. Osborne will speak at the convention on June 9.

The Fourth Annual R. O. T. C. Horse show was held in the stadium May 28-29.

The Michigan State college catalog for 1926 is now being distributed. Copies may be secured by writing Miss Elida Yakeley, registrar.

J. F. Cox, professor of farm crops, will speak at the National Farm School conference which will be held in New York city, June 2 to 7.

High school agricultural teachers of the state are each contributing $10 toward a Walter H. French memorial, which will be presented to the College.

The 1926 Wolverine is now being distributed. Several new features are included in the volume. The alumni section is probably the best of its kind ever attempted.

Freshmen have been in the habit of going to Lansing after the Cap Night ceremony but this year an effort is being made to confine the celebration of the new sophomores to the limits of East Lansing.

Ross W. Mayer, a graduate student for the past two years, was recently appointed assistant to President Butterfield and will assume his duties this summer. Prior to coming to the College Mayer had considerable business and teaching experience.

As a departure from the annual hostilities between junior and senior co-eds, the upper class women this year decided to hold a truce. The juniors will entertain the seniors at a breakfast at Pinetum on June 6.

Major General Graves, commanding the Sixth Corps area inspected the College R. O. T. C. on May 24-25. On Monday afternoon General Graves and his staff were the guests of the College at the Michigan-State baseball game.

Your friends will be on the Campus June 19; it will be a year before you will have another chance to see them.

Cap Night, scheduled for ^{June} May 9, will take on several new features this year. George Dirks, '27, Coopersville and Norval Tyrrell, '27, Detroit, have charge of the event. The bonfire will be built to represent a log cabin and will be ignited from the interior.

In response to a petition by the co-eds the College announces the appointment of Mrs. Clara Powell as co-ed advisor. Mrs. Powell has been doing work of this sort at the University of Chicago from which she will receive the degree of doctor of philosophy in June.

The modern metropolitan newspaper will be the theme for float decoration at the water carnival on the Red Cedar, June 10. Last year popular songs were portrayed. Floats will represent the various departments of the present day newspaper, such as editorials, front page news, sports and other departments.

Favored by good weather the fourth annual horse show, sponsored by the College, was a marked success this year. There were entries from the larger cities of the state and Chicago. The affair was held in the stadium for the first time since it was started and the crowd was handled to a much better advantage than has been the case in the past.

With the arrival of H. L. R. Chapman as head gardener of the Beal Botanical gardens, plans are rapidly formulating and being carried out to make the gardens more attractive than ever before. Chapman is a graduate of the training school at Kew Gardens, England, and comes highly recommended for the important position. It is planned to include plants of economic value in the gardens.

VARSITY WINS TWO IMPORTANT GAMES

Michigan and Western Normal Set Back; Kuhn Tames U. of M. While Team-mates Takes Advantage of Breaks of Game; Tolles Masters Kalamazoo Without Difficulty.

Victories over Michigan and Western State normal marked the activities of the Varsity during the past week, scores 8-5 and 7-4. In both contests the Spartans outplayed their opponents throughout, setting the pace at all times.

The game with Michigan, which should have been played on May 19 but was postponed because of wet grounds, was played on Monday, May 24, before a record crowd. Michigan was humbled by State for the first time in eleven years while Western State met its first defeat in five years.

George Kuhn did the mound duty for the Spartans. Even though he struck out but four men it was his slow, deliberate performance in the box which steadied the Varsity and put the victory across.

In the second inning State began the barrage by collecting four runs. Zimmerman started the fireworks with a home run, hitting to deep right, the ball taking one hop before plunging into the Red Cedar. Following that Spiekerman, Baynes and Rowley got on and came home on Kuhn's hit to center field. At this point Fisher pulled Reutz and sent in Walters.

After this the game was never in doubt. Michigan scored in the third, fifth and sixth, but were never able to bunch their hits sufficiently to tie or overtake the Spartan lead. In the fifth State again scored four runs, Michigan going to pieces under the Varsity' attack of hits and stellar base running.

Michigan outhit State 10-8. Both teams erred constantly, the visitors making three misplays and the Varsity four. The work of the Spartan outfield was exceptionally good. Fleser, Zimmerman and Haskins accepting eleven chances in the outer garden without error.

Coach Kobs assigned the mound duty to "Lefty" Tolles in the Western State game. In the first eight innings he allowed but four hits. Four more hits, which came successively in the ninth had the earmarks of a ninth-inning rally for the visitors, but only two runs resulted from this attack.

The visitors used three pitchers against State. Ruse, who went in after two of his team mates had been sent to the dug-out, succeeded in holding the Varsity from further scoring.

Baynes continued his spectacular work, both at second and at bat, getting three hits in this game.

CLASS NOTES

THE COLLEGE BELL

By RAY SESSIONS

The old College bell that we loved to hear
 At noon time, when the dinner hour drew near,
 Hung upon a post to give it greater charm;
 Whence sounds vibrated way across the farm.

It called in the morning, that we might rise
 From slumbers, which we did most highly prize.
 It called for breakfast, for chapel too;
 For class rooms our lessons to review.

Its call at one o'clock; prepare for labor.
 In the field each became the good neighbor.
 The sweetest call, alike to poor or wealth,
 Was to drop tile, spade, draining for health.

Once, the bell, with its flaring end held up,
 Then, much resembling a big metallic cup,
 Was full of water poured, then securely sealed.
 The night being frigid the water soon congealed.

Once, the bell, by hands, was spirited away.
 There, for a time, in peace, 'twas allowed to stay.

But the time of its silence was not ver' long,
For its peal was again heard rippling in song.

* Once, Old Prof., the garden horse, by long string,
Got tied to that bell. When his head he'd fling,
Or otherwise, miraculously, that cord would pull,
'Twould make that bell sound clear, strong and full.

Every mothers' son, throughout the great hall,
Thinking 'twas surely the early morning call,
Hied themselves forth in the darkness deep,
Frowning, muttering at their loss of sleep.

Parshall rang the bell, in our Freshman year,
When his time to recite would draw near,
That bell to his rescue always was true,
In that class room he'd sure make himself few.

Probably the bell's vibrating sounds long ago,
Like many people have become too slow,
And newer things are sounding in the dell
To take the place of that old College bell.

John T. Mathews, Ithaca, writes: "I wonder if the memories of the old days (and nights) at our dear old M. A. C. come to others as they do to me. Please inquire at some time if, at the coming Alumni Day celebration, it would be possible to have a reunion of the 'Scouts of Okemos Road'. If it might be promoted with reproduction in movies of the actual feature, it would surely be a thriller. Inquire of Bahilke, Howe, Collingwood, Millis or McKinney or 700 onlookers at the east gate."

J. D. Hill, Montpelier, Ohio writes: "I sometimes wonder if all of '84 except Gillett and myself are dead. Some one should call the roll."

'89

E. A. Holden and Mrs. Holden have returned from a winter in Honolulu and southern California. Holden writes: "You call for personal news. Last fall I resigned my secretaryship with the Patron's Mutual Fire Insurance company, which I had held for 25 years. We are at home to our friends at 600 W. Shiawassee street, Lansing."

'95

Charles H. Alvord, College Station, Texas, hopes to be at the reunion on June 10. "June 10 down here in Texas is called Emancipation Day and is celebrated by all the negroes who call the day 'June 'teenth'".
