Lights that lead to Homes

ORNAMENTAL street lights in residential districts attract homebuilders—substantial citizens who demand distinction in their surroundings—whose appreciation of beauty finds gratification in artistic design—to whom the decorative aspect of modern lighting is as desirable as its more practical advantages.

Where people still live on dimly lighted streets, modern illumination will endow the whole area with a new and better atmosphere, give residents just cause for pride, and increase the value of their homes.

Wherever houses are to be built, light is always the leader—and at the day's end it makes safe and cheery the ways that lead to the city's homes.

Street-lighting specialists of General Electric are always ready to coöperate with your power company in improving and extending your lighting system so that it may substantially contribute to the beauty, progress, and prestige of your city.

You will find this monogram on the huge turbines in power stations, on the improved lamps that light your streets, and on a score of appliances that save time and drudgery in the completely electrified home. The G-E monogram is your assurance of electrical correctness and reliability.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

Listening In

THE Cornell Alumni Office, correcting addresses to issue a new alumni directory, has estimated the "turn-over" on a good sized alumni list at about one-sixth annually. This does not mean necessarily that one-sixth of the alumni change their addresses each year, but enough people move during the year (some of them two or three times) to shake up a sixth of the file cards.

This presents a practical difficulty to any alumni office. Not the difficulty of changing the addresses, but of getting them to change! As Al Johnson would say, "Please don't move nowhere without telling your alma mammy."

THE RECORD, being second class postal matter, is not forwardable. Statements for alumni dues are sent first class and are forwarded. Hence it occurs sometimes that members get their bills but not their magazines.

And in sending in that blue slip next time with your change of address, throw modesty to the winds and tell us really "Who, what and why you are." You read the class notes first anyway, so do your friends. Let's give them the latest news in THE RECORD.

BE still sad fan and cease repining, behind the clouds is the sun still shining—basketball.

Of course nothing can quite equal football enthusiasm, but basketball runs a close second. Although 70,000 people and their noise don't surround a basketball court ordinarily, yet the indoor crowds, aided by better acoustics, arouse a racket even more deafening, while the game of basketball itself moves more swiftly, its wonders to perform. A good close basketball game in the last few minutes is almost the equal of a relay race, in point of straight way, throat-blasting, ear-crashing enthusiasm. In fact some think there are as many thrills per yard of basketball as of football.

ENTERING upon a new life, "Freshman Week," each fall gives the Freshman class the proper introduction. This year the members of the class of '32 were tested physically, psychologically, gram-

OPEN SEASON

THE alumni office has received notices of at least eight branch association meetings to be held in January or February. From the letters and suggestions recently received we believe that this is the season for that M. S. C. meeting spirit which is in the air.

This certain "hungeriness" for M. S. C. news and society seems to reach every alumnus soon after the holidays and about J-Hop time. No doubt this annual yearning is caused by a habit developed from the usual winter term festivities of the undergraduate life we know. But explain it as you may, the "hungeriness" is there, for social gatherings of Michigan State folks.

Committees having details of such festivities in charge will want to include any newcomers in their community who have taken up their residence near by during the past year. Our alumni recorder will forward the chairman of your social committee a revised list for your club. All we ask is that you in turn notify us of newcomers whom we have happened to miss.

UNITED ALUMNI PARTY

THE late election surely has brought to the front more forcibly than ever the excruciating need for a United Alumni Party. We alumni must get together and make ourselves felt.

The platform of the United Alumni Party must of course get down to fundamentals, right at the beginning:

1. The 50-yard line. There will be no 50-yard line. How many alumni ever got tickets anywhere near one, anyhow?

2. Debt to Alma Mater. We favor a sinking fund to float the great debt we all owe Alma Mater. It is a crying shame that this has been neglected so long. No relief can be expected from the party in power. However, we do recognize the acute need of research by all universities into the affliction known as

3. Ungiveability, its causes and effects, its treatment and cure.

4. Proselyting alumni. There will be none. Furthermore, we stand ready to scotch the serpents of the press that say there will be any.

5. Unduly exciting football games. A law will be passed against them, thus protecting our alumni who in the past have bitten many expensive pipe stems in two while under the influence of football.

6. Alma Mater Thee, and other such tripe, including Large Versus Small College, etc., etc. Sharp revision downward.

7. Floods. We deplore floods at Homecoming or Commencement times.

8. The administration. Alumni will be represented by a Secretary of Alumni in the President's Cabinet.

9. Finance. The record of the U. S. Treasury under Mr. Mellon has of course been made possible only because a university graduate signed all the paper money. We pledge ourselves to have two university graduates sign it.

10. Honesty in Government. We are for it.

11. Dishonesty in Government. We denounce it.

CLASS REUNIONS

WHAT is there about class reunions that brings hundreds back to the old campus from the ends of the earth? Several things, but one of the greatest of them is friendship. For what would a college education or even life itself be worth without friends? Folks who have worked and played with us, who walked arm in arm with the old and new masters even as we did—the old masters of the campus and the old masters of the ages.

Good friends are good possessions. It is not almost as important to accumulate an estate of good friends as of all the other things money will buy?

Classmates and the old profs are not the only friends a graduate comes back to see. The ivied buildings themselves, the stately elms, the Winding Cedar, the carefree hangouts of decades ago; the barber shop he always patronized, the book store where he was always welcome. But many of them are gone, or done over or replaced entirely. Well, that's nobody's fault but the old grad's himself. That alumnus has stayed away too long. If you are among the reuniting classes scheduled for next commencement, we offer this simple advice—make a fresh start.

A NEW YEAR

THE lively green of the holly, the scarlet of the berry, and the fragrance of the pine gives the Holiday season a charm that all enjoy. By cleaning the slate of the old things, wiping out the mistakes of the past and with a distinct cessation and beginning, may the New Year measure for you New Happiness, New Vision, New Courage.

Central Michigan Ass'n Sponsors Football Bust

THE annual Michigan State Football Bust sponsored by the Central Michigan Alumni club was held at the new Demonstration hall on the campus Saturday evening, December 15. Blake Miller, '10, was chairman of the committee in charge of this annual event at which the outstanding high school grid men of the state were guests. Approximately five hundred alumni, friends and football men were present. With "Jim" Hasselman as toastmaster a very pleasant program was given and a sincere welcome extended to the visiting guests by President Shaw showing his intense interest in the national sport. Hon. Webster H. Pierce, Superintendent of Public Instruction of Lansing, gave an inspirational address on "Fight 'Em!"

An outstanding feature of the program was the official introduction by R. E. Remington of his All-State high school team. Coach Harry Kipke made his official awards to the varsity and freshmen squads during the course of the evening. Ralph H. Young, director of athletics, presented Fred Alderman, State's outstanding athlete and Olympic star, with a set of registered matched golf clubs. This gift was from the coaching staff at the college and in recognition of his outstanding athletic achievement and Olympic triumph.

Music was furnished during the evening by the College military band and later special numbers were rendered by the Swartz Creek troupe. "Jim" Hays, '11, gave his usual character sketch and entertained the boys with a description of an ideal dairy cow. The banquet, served by the Union under the direction of Orma Simmons, '25, was an unusual success even though handicapped by kitchen facilities in the new Demonstration hall. Tables were placed on the tanbark floor similar to five yard marks of the football field, and large goal posts at either end of the hall were decorated with the college colors, green and white. Many of the high school boys were entertained in fraternity houses over the week-end, and although the flu epidemic barred many from attending this year's banquet, the event was very favorably received by everyone present.

J. C. DILLMAN, '13,
AND FRANK F. ROGERS, '83

THE above photo shows Mr. Dillman and Mr. Rogers at the "Garden of Gods," a scenic spot outside of Colorado Springs, Colorado, taken while they were in the West a year ago. Announcement has been made by Mr. Dillman that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of state highway commissioner succeeding Mr. Rogers who has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election this spring. Mr. Dillman became connected with the state highway department in 1913, and in 1924 was made chief engineer and deputy commissioner. He was born on a farm near Bangor, Michigan and graduated from the Bangor high school in 1909. He received his degree in civil engineering from Michigan State in 1913 and also the honorary degree of master in highway engineering in 1927. At the present time he is president of the Michigan Engineering society, a member of the American Society Civil Engineers, secretary of the Mississippi Valley Association of State Highway Departments, and a member of councils and committees dealing with highway research.

Snow for a couple of days the week before Christmas clothed the Campus in the glory peculiar to it in the winter season. There is no more effective decoration for the evergreens with which the College grounds have been beautified, than soft, clinging snow padding each twig and branch; white daubed on a dark green background with the stroke of a master artist.

Students Free From "Auto Ban" Here

WHILE students at the University of Michigan and many other educational institutions make desperate and futile efforts to override the rules which deprive them of automobiles, Michigan State college men and co-eds continue to drive decrepit fivvers and smart, shiny roadsters about the winding roads of the campus, safe from the hated "auto ban."

They drive gaily, but they drive carefully, too. They don't swing their cars to a dead stop before a "no parking" sign and leave them there. They don't take sharp curves on two wheels at 35 miles an hour. They don't drive on the campus roadways with a dozen guests hanging on the running board, and they rarely venture forth with three students in the front seat of their car.

They have been warned that as long as they continue to observe the rules, they will be allowed to drive cars at Michigan State. And do they obey the regulations? Almost perfectly, says Don Bremer, "traffic cop," who is entering his second year as custodian of traffic order on the campus. He says that the number of violations this year has been less than last. There were very few during the college year 1927-28, too. Sec. H. H. Halladay also testifies to the willingness of the students to observe traffic rules.

One reason for this situation is the increase in the number of new cars. Last year's decorated "lizzie" has become passe. It is smart, now, to drive a medium or high-priced car that has an engine and no "wise-cracking" decorations. Of course, a few of the "wobblies" remain.

The main reason is that copies of traffic regulations, approved by the state board of agriculture, were given to each freshman on registering this fall. Upperclassmen have been given ample opportunity to learn the rules by heart. Among the regulations are:

"The speed limit is 15 miles per hour. Cars should be operated with due regard for this limit.

"No more than three persons should occupy the driver's seat. Standing on the running board of a moving automobile is considered a dangerous practice."

"The Farm" by Davenport '78 Visions A Balanced Agriculture

"THE FARM," a 462-page book by Eugene Davenport, '78, dean and professor emeritus in the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, is a remarkable production of agricultural facts and theories based upon the author's first-hand practical knowledge of farm problems and conditions, and upon his broad understanding of the importance of a balanced agriculture. "What nature has done to make farming profitable," says the sub-head. "What man must do to make it profitable and permanent; what interest society must take in the enterprise."

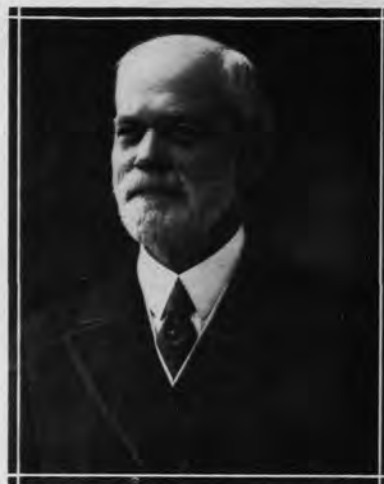

When Dean Davenport retired from the University of Illinois some years ago he went back to live on a farm in the region of his birth-place near Woodland, Michigan, where he found after an absence of 30 years that not a single farm in the community was in possession of the man who owned it when he went away.

Dr. Davenport naturally devotes considerable attention in his book to the problem of maintaining soil fertility. Exhausted soil, he reminds us, cannot support a virile people and at the same time rebuild its fertility. "Timber can be replaced at a price, but replacement of fertility is so expensive that no fully exhausted soil has ever been rebuilt or is likely to be. It costs too much in money and in life. It is cheaper to move or to fight. Even a depleted land weakens the people and must be rebuilt, if at all, by outside capital, which means, for large areas, invasion by a superior race, superior at least economically. That is why England is in India today."

L. H. Bailey, '82, editor of the rural science series of agricultural books, of which "The Farm" is one, says, concerning Dr. Davenport: "Before he became a teacher of agriculture, Davenport had ten years after leaving Michigan State college on the home farm; the imprint of that experience has remained all his life. He has passed from teacher and experimenter to author and to the directorship of one of our greatest colleges of agriculture at a time when it was in the making; now he is back again on the home farm, a farmer with a deep background and with ripe experience in 30 years of recognized leadership; and here is his book."

"Roberts and Davenport are linked in my mind as philosophers and good farmers, men of vision and authority each in his day; and as I then wrote of the former so may I now say of the latter: 'The farmer should be a philosopher. I like to think of him as having been so thorough and timely and resourceful with his work, that he may sit on the fence at least one day in the week and enjoy the fun of seeing things grow.'

"As the author writes me, 'This text has been prepared not as a handbook of approved detail practice, but rather as a discussion of the principles controlling agricultural operations that concern the farm and the farmer who is interested in objectives and the long look ahead, expecting to shape and reshape his methods according to the findings of further research.'

"I like this book because it puts agriculture against the affairs and contests of the time and explains what it means, and specially because it sets the farm in its proper place in nature. I trust it will stimulate others of our ripe men to leave us their wisdom."

"The Farm," published by Macmillan.

A NICE BAG

Yale's endowment funds recently amounted to $58,024,459.36, a gain of $8,880,299.40 over the preceding year. The average investment return was 5.15 per cent. During the year the endowment fund campaign for $20,000,000 was completed with a total subscription of $20,993,918.56.

Harvard has received an anonymous gift of three million dollars to build and endow a "house" or group of dormitories, dining halls, and common rooms for two or three hundred students in Harvard college. This is the first step of a plan which may result in the breaking up of the College into smaller units. The proposed plan will apply only to sophomores, juniors, and seniors.

Radio Station WKAR Limited In Operation

AFTER five years of broadcasting education material, entertainment features and sports through WKAR, those in charge of radio at Michigan State find the demand increasing with the opportunity for broadcasting greatly reduced.

On November 11, by order of the Federal Radio commission, the wave length was changed to 288.3 meters and the power reduced from 1,000 to 500 watts. In addition, the station was restricted to daylight hours, which, according to the interpretation of the commission, means sunrise to sunset.

Experience has shown that the reliable broadcasting radius under the present conditions is not much more than 50 miles. In view of these restrictions, only one football game was broadcast, the evening radio school has been discontinued and broadcasting basketball games is out of the question.

Efforts have been made to obtain from the radio commission an increase in power and the use of evening hours, but without success. The case has been presented to the commission on two occasions by representatives of the college.

The radio commission has expressed its willingness to better the situation of the college but has been unable, as yet, to grant a more advantageous allocation.

At present, the only programs broadcast from WKAR are at 12 noon each day except Sunday.

Association Nominating Committees Appointed

PRESIDENT A. C. MACKINNON has recently announced that in compliance with the by-laws of the association two committees have been appointed to present nominations for the general elections of the association in June. Each committee is to present a full slate of candidates, each committee will be responsible to the extent that all persons nominated shall have agreed to serve if elected, and further that each committee shall confer on suggestions received in time to publish their elections in the March issue of REV. NORMAN W. KUNKEL succeeds R. Bennett Weaver as student director of the Peoples church. Rev. Kunkel comes to East Lansing from Columbus, Ohio, where he was director of religious education at the Indianola Presbyterian church. During his student days in the Union Theological seminary from which he received his bachelor's degree, he was director of boys' work at the Madison Square church house. Rev. Kunkel has his master of arts degree from Columbia university. He will teach the credit courses in religious education.

Specialized Work to Boost Short Courses

WITH an enrollment predicted to top that of last year the short courses at the College will open at the start of the winter term and continue until March 8.

According to R. W. Tenny, '19, director of short courses, advanced registration indicates an increase of the number enrolled in practically all courses with dairy production and agricultural engineering in the lead. Of special interest this year will be the one and two week courses added in specialized work. Among them being a course in cucumber production, producing crops for seed, ice cream salesmen and their products, market gardeners, ornamental horticulture, and commercial floriculture. A number of the courses will conclude with the annual Farmers' Week which is scheduled to take place February 4 to 8.

Season Tickets Selling for Basketball Games

DUE to the extraordinary demand for basketball tickets this winter, L. L. Frimodig, assistant athletic director at State, has arranged to sell season tickets at $10.00 which entitles the owners to reserved seats at every home game. Less than 400 are on sale, with indications that they will all be snapped up within a few days. There are eleven home games in all, including such famous opponents as Ohio Wesleyan, conqueror of Ohio State; University of Notre Dame; Penn State; Cornell University; University of Detroit; and Marquette. In view of the fact that a capacity crowd attended the practice game against Hillsdale College, it is certain that when the major teams come to East Lansing, there will be a long waiting line for seats, as was the case last year. The gymnasium can only accommodate around 2,500.

Arthur W. Jewett, Jr., '26, Mason, repeated his former triumphs at the International Livestock exposition by taking first honors in the white winter wheat contest.

"Close Beside the Winding Cedar"

To make good plans and to have the determination to carry them out are attributes of an ideal class secretary. The planning season for June reunions is at hand.

George E. Gauthier, '14, who has been director of athletics and head coach at Ohio Wesleyan university since 1921, has signed a contract to continue in that capacity for three years more, according to recent press reports.

It has been suggested that wire screening be placed in front of the big plate glass windows of the post-office. You can never tell when some absent-minded person will stroll over and nonchalantly lean against the atmosphere that is situated where the railing formerly existed.

The new plan for holding winter term registration and payment of fees in the Union building has received the approbation of the students, if the following State News editorial be taken as popular opinion.

"A sign of satisfaction will greet the welcome news regarding the change in the system of registration for next term. No longer will it be necessary to take cross-country training in preparation for the event. We offer a vote of thanks to the committee who so thoughtfully changed the event from a mad orgy to a pleasant reception party. Let the weather man bring on his coldest weather and his best example of snow storms—for we shall be safe from the wintry blasts, tucked away in the Union building, waiting patiently—in line."

It has been announced that the annual Union production will be staged at the Gladner theatre in Lansing, February 1 and 2. About fifty students will enact the musical comedy, "Twelve Mile Limit," written by Charles Seager of Whitehall, Michigan.

There is but little change in college life. Year after year finds a large proportion of those enrolled studying late nights when the era of examinations comes around. The week before Christmas was the one for burning the midnight oil. By Thursday night the Campus was practically deserted. Winter term classes are due to start January 8, with registration the preceeding day.

The forestry department has been making a study of the Kerson timberland tract incorporated with the United States department of agriculture. Karl Dressel, '22, of the forestry department, has been carrying on the work and the results of his study have just been completed.

Thera Austin, Elsie; Florence Cowles, St. Johns; Marie Bostelman, River Forest, Illinois; and Margie Thompson, Dansville, senior home economics students, were recently initiated into Omicron Nu, national honorary home economics fraternity.

This year's military ball, the social event of the year for those with war-like aspirations, will be held in the new college armory on January 25. A limited number of tickets will go on sale January 15 at $4.00 each. Sergeant J. Foley will receive reservations.

Students desiring Wolverines next spring have been urged to sign for their yearbook before the end of the first week of the winter term. By that time all contracts for the book will be let and it is necessary that each student have his name on the list so that the correct number can be ordered.

Sponsors for the various military units were installed at an impressive ceremony in the Demonstration hall on November 27. All members of the cadet corps attended the event in uniform.

A new honorary society for men and women has been formed on the campus. Phi Gamma Phi, honorary German society founded at Syracuse university in 1923, has granted a charter to a group of twelve faculty and student petitioners. The organization will be known as Beta chapter.

A live Christmas tree more than forty feet high and covered with colored electric light bulbs was one of the Campus attractions during the holiday season. One of the Norway spruces near the Home Economics building was utilized this year as it was in 1927.

Alpha Upsilon chapter of Alpha Chi Sigma, national honorary scholastic chemistry fraternity, was installed December 8. This chapter displaces Chi Rho, local chemistry society. Forty-five faculty, graduate assistants, alumni and active members were initiated.

Visitors at the Union Memorial building during the past few weeks included C. J. McLean, '20, and Edna Ceas McLean, '20, of Dixon, Illinois; E. F. Hock, '12, and Mrs. Hock, '11, 3222 Philadelphia, Detroit; Carman D. Miller, '26, Philadelphia.

No dates were in order at the rather unusual party which was "thrown" in the ballroom of the Union building December 13, as the concluding number of Penny Week. Perhaps in that respect the so-called Jitney dance, sponsored by the combined campus honoraries, Sphinx and Excalibur, was one of the most unusual parties of the year, vieing only with the co-ed prom for honors.

Alumni dues include subscription to THE RECORD.

CALLING his squad back immediately after Christmas for daily workouts, Coach Ben Van Alstyne hopes to present a clever, fast and powerful court team this season. Van is shown here explaining some of the fine points to "Duke" Schau who joined the squad after the football season.

Sports Spotlight Focused on Many Winter Intercollegiate Encounters

By Ted Smits, w'27

WITH the football season now a matter of history, the sports spotlight at State now is focused on the winter campaign when no less than six different teams will represent the college in intercollegiate encounters against leaders of the Middle West and East. Basketball and track, of course, are the major sports, with swimming, wrestling, hockey, and fencing also commanding attention.

Three factors go to make basketball an important sport this winter—a great schedule; good material; and Coach Ben Van Alstyne, whose teams have already won a wide following of fans. In view of the fact that "Van's" boys opened the season with a startling 31 to 24 defeat of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, and followed that up by crushing Hillsdale College, hopes are running high for a basketball combination that will challenge the attention of the entire Middle West. Only unexpected ineligibilities or injuries can hold back the Spartans.

The task confronting Coaches Ralph Young, "Mike" Casteel and "Mort" Mason in building another championship team in track may be difficult in view of the loss by graduation of Captain Henry Wylie, star miler, and Paul Smith, weight man, Pillotson, another veteran weight man, will be available only for the winter term. Captain Henson leads the squad in the sprints, with capable dash men in Lang and Kroll, a good pole vaulter in McAtee, and redoubtable distance runners in Brown, Roossien, Willmarth, Hackney, Clark, and Dowd.

Coach Van Alstyne called 15 men back for early basketball practice following the holidays. Included on this list were Captain Carl Felt, Ex-Captain Vern Dickeson, Fred Den Herder, Don Grove, "Cappy" Russo, "Duke" Schau, Ed Totten, and Jim Van Zylén, all veterans. Sophomores also expected to break into the lineup include Scott, Pendergast, Roger Grove, Haga, and Van Antwerpt. Sheathelm is a reserve from last year who has shown promise.

DEFEAT MICHIGAN

State showed surprising strength in its game early in December against Michigan. With Captain Felt not in school, and such veteran stars as Schau and Dickeson still unaccounted to basketball as the result of their football work, Van Alstyne sent a combination on the floor composed of Don Grove and Van Zylén at the forwards, Fred Den Herder at center, and Russo and Haga at the guards. With the score standing at 12 to 1 against State after the first few minutes of the game, the Spartans braced and exhibited a flashy brand of ball.

Clever passing brought the score to 13 to 10 at the half, with Michigan still leading, but in the second period the Spartans started out to win, and they were not to be denied. In their magnificent spurt occurred something almost unparalleled in basketball history, in that only eight shots were tried at the basket from the floor, and State made good on every occasion—a record difficult to improve. During the entire game, State made 11 out of a possible 16 baskets—remarkable, when it is considered that one out of four is a fair average, and one out of three very good.

Scott, sent into the game for Russo in the second half, proved a capable performer, twice eluding the Michigan guards for shots under the basket, both of which aided materially in sewing up the decision. Totten, who went in for Den Herder when the lanky star was debarred for four personal fouls, also looked good.

The week following the Michigan victory, State loafed its way to a 47 to 15 win over Hillsdale College at East Lansing in which virtually three entire teams were used.

Kipke Completes 1929 Football Schedule

ANOTHER heavy schedule has been prepared by Coach Harry Kipke for his football team in 1929. Five opponents met in 1928 will again be engaged on the gridiron—Michigan, Detroit, North Carolina State, Colgate, and Mississippi Aggies—while three new foes have been added—Alma, Adrian, and Case, the last named being remembered as a traditional opponent of the University of Michigan in recent years.

North Carolina State, which comes to East Lansing on Oct. 26, will probably be selected as the Homecoming Day opponent. Michigan will again be met at Ann Arbor, this time early in the season, while the Spartans will take two rather lengthy jaunts in order to oppose the Mississippi Aggies at Starkville, Mississippi, and Colgate at Hamilton, New York.

Much attention was devoted by Coach Kipke towards the selection of an opponent with which to conclude the schedule at East Lansing on November 10, and the University of Detroit was finally chosen following a conference between Kipke and Coach "Gus" Dorais of Detroit. Detroit last season was undefeated and was a recognized claimant for national honors.

Several dates were offered Albion college, but the Methodists were unable to agree on any. Athletic Director "Bud" Daugherty of Albion has assured Athletic Director Young of State that Albion will return to East Lansing again in 1930.

The complete football schedule is as follows:

Sept. 28—Alma College at East Lansing.

Oct. 5—Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Oct. 12—Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y.

Oct. 19—Adrian at East Lansing.

Oct. 26—North Carolina State at East Lansing.

Nov. 2—Case at East Lansing.

Nov. 9—Mississippi Aggies at Starkville, Miss.

Nov. 16—University of Detroit at East Lansing.

"We will be glad," says the editor of a contemporary magazine, "to hear of the death of any of our alumni."

The annual extension conference was held at the College December 12, 13 and 14. Dr. Paul J. Kruse of Cornell University, Dr. O. C. Stine of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, and F. C. Brooks and George Farwell of the federal office of extension work were among the outside speakers at the conference. County agents, home demonstration agents and club leaders from various counties of the state were present.

Following is a copy of a letter sent by H. I. Glazier of the Genfire Steel company of Youngstown, Ohio, to J. L. Myers, Kneeder building, Manila, Philippine Islands. "I know that when you receive this letter you will almost consider it a voice from the dead. A few weeks ago, on a train between New York and Philadelphia, I got into a conversation with a gentleman who proved to be Dr. Merchant of your city. My first thought when he told me his location, was to ask if by any chance he knew a J. L. Myers, and as you may imagine, he informed me that you were very well acquainted, not only because of his professional services to you, but in a friendly way as well. Quite naturally, we spent a very pleasant two hours together as a result of this mutual acquaintance. Well, old man, it has been a long time since you 'Penny' R. Cade, Dave Moomaw, 'Pewt' and myself formed the Deutsche Verein. Great old days, 'nicht wahr.' Here you have been off almost at the end of the world for twenty-one years, while all the rest of us paddled along here in the States. I said above 'The end of the world,' but from the description of your city given me by Dr. Merchant, and the pleasant life which you fellows lead, I am not so sure that what you are better off perhaps than we are struggling in the face of intensive competition, to make a living and enjoy life. Dr. Merchant tells me that you are considered as one of the big game hunters of the world. More power to you. He tells me that you shoulder your trusty rifle, going into Indo-China after elephants, tigers and lions, and also down into Java and other remote parts of the world. Again let me say that you are not so far away after all. I have not seen any of the above mentioned gang for at least 12 or 15 years in spite of the fact that none of them are over 500 miles away from me. I am glad to learn that the world has been good to you as the doctor told me it has. You have been one of the pioneers in a virgin field and as such are entitled to reap its benefits. I am not going to necessarily ask that you answer me direct, but I am sending a copy of this letter to the M. S. C. Record, knowing that all the old '07 fellows would be glad to hear this much of you. Why don't you answer me by sending a letter directly to the editor for publication? Let's go, what do you say?"

WOOD · WIRE · STEEL

JUST AS pedigreed animals reflect good breeding, pedigreed wheels reflect fine manufacture.

So with Motor Wheel—every type carries an air of distinction which marks it a thoroughbred. Due to complete interchangeability, should people change their minds, they may have either wood, wire or steel, whichever they prefer.

It is this flexibility of selection with inflexible adherence to quality which has placed Motor Wheel well in the lead and kept it there.
