Lansing Shirt Co.

At breakfast a few mornings ago a Lansing man said to his wife, "We don't get shirts any more like mother used to make."

Don't know how the subject happened to come up. Couldn't have been a case of hard boiled shirts for breakfast.

Probably the man had had a buttonhole or two pull out on him as he was putting on his collar that morning.

"Ain't it awful, Mabel?"

Button-holes ought to be reinforced. And if you knew the man that made your shirts you'd tell him so, too.

Moral: Don't buy 'em ready made. Let us cut 'em to your measure and make 'em up our way.

Then if they don't set right and hang and fit right, and the button-holes are inclined to stray from the path of rectitude, you know who to express your feelings to.
