ON THE JOB

It's Dean Robb

A long career of teaching and research culminated recently for Dr. Elda Robb, '16, in her appointment as professor of nutrition and dean of the home economics division at Simmons college, Boston, Mass.

After receiving her B.S. in home economics, Dr. Robb became a teacher of that science in the public schools at Three Rivers, Michigan, for two years. In 1918 she returned to State to become assistant state club leader until 1924 when the University of California awarded her a teaching fellowship.

Not long after, Dr. Robb, her M.A. tucked away in her luggage, traveled across the country to join the Rockefeller foundation at New York where she stayed until 1935, conducting research for the Foundation's Child institute.

Dr. Elda Robb, '16

Next, it was Temple university at Philadelphia that claimed her services until her appointment at Simmons college, a girls' school, a year ago.

It hasn't taken Dr. Robb, a home-grown product of Crosswell, Michigan, long to become acclimated to her new position. A recent article in a Boston newspaper described her charming personality and steadfast contention that the average American family is not eating wisely enough.

To prove her thesis, Dr. Robb is conducting a series of unique experiments with white rats. She feeds some the average diet of an American business woman, and the others receive her conception of the ideally balanced ration. Needless to relate, the latter group has been faring far better than the others.

In the summer Dr. Robb loves to putter in a garden, and in the winter she displays a long-standing love for ice skating, specializing in figure skating. Dr. Robb is probably the only M.S.C. home economics graduate holding the position of dean of home economics in an American school, according to Alumni Secretary Glen O. Stewart.

Pathologist

When M.S.C. and Iowa State meet on the gridiron next year, at least one man in the stadium will feel a sense of achievement. He is Russell A. Runnells, veterinarian graduate of 1916, who, as a member of the Iowa State Athletic council, worked toward home and home games between the two schools in '43 and '44.

R. A. Runnells, '16

Born in Oceana, Virginia, Runnells came to Michigan at the age of six and was graduated from State in time for the first World War, in which he first served as veterinary officer for the medical officers training camp at Camp Benjamin Harrison and was later attached to the surgeon-general's office at Washington.

Following the war, Runnells was made assistant professor of animal pathology at M.S.C., was for two years secretary-treasurer of the Michigan State Veterinary Medicine association, and then moved to Virginia Polytechnic institute as associate animal pathologist.

Professor Runnell's specialty is poultry diseases. Named associate professor of veterinary pathology at I.S.C. in 1930, he has taken only one extended vacation, when he visited Europe in 1935.

Modernizer

Major A. B. Cook, Jr., third of a distinguished line of Cook generations to graduate from Michigan State, received nation-wide publicity recently for his work in rehabilitating and modernizing installations at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, where he is stationed with the headquarters of the third Army command.

Major Cook, an infantryman who was graduated from the college in 1923 with a B.S. in agriculture, turned up at the Fort not so long ago in command of the third army headquarters detachment and found his troops billeted in barracks built in 1897.

Without waiting for instructions or

Jesse Ellsworth Burall, 1941

In this column, The Record pays tribute to State's gallant hero.

Lt. Jesse Ellsworth Burall, of Baltimore, Maryland, who was graduated from the forestry division in 1941, was killed in a landing accident at the airport in Savannah, Georgia, on June 20.

Lt. Burall joined the army air corps in October, 1941, and received his primary, basic, and advanced training at Hick, Goodfellow, and Ellington Fields, respectively. He received his "wings" on April 29 and was transferred to Savannah.

advice, he began the job of completely modernizing the outmoded buildings and equipment, and when dust settled a few weeks ago, the Fort personnel had practically new barracks — a feat that brought praise for Major Cook from newspapers throughout the country.

Army life found Major Cook no untried stranger when his unit of the National Guard was called into active duty in 1940. At that time a Captain and commander of the unit at Ionia, where he was living, he was an experienced graduate of the college R.O.T.C. department. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the National Guard in 1924.

While a student, Cook was a cadet major in the R.O.T.C., a member of Scabbard and Blade, the Officers' club, the Wolverine staff, and assistant track manager. Following his graduation he went to Ionia high school where he taught agriculture until 1931 when he joined the State Department of Conservation as field manager in charge of fish operations, where he became nationally famous.

In Owosso, Michigan, stands a venerable old house built more than 100 years ago by Major Cook's grandfather. The Major's father, A. B. Cook, Sr., graduated from M.S.C. in 1893 and his grandfather, A. J. Cook was a professor of horticulture at M.S.C. for 30 years after his graduation in 1862.

Today the bicycle has acquired new significance.

The tire and conservation program has developed an unusual demand for the vehicle at Michigan State college. On the cover you see three members of the faculty who find the bicycle a useful vehicle on their occupational front.

Although no official count has been made, many faculty members have resorted to the two-wheeled mode of transportation. Students, too, are finding the bicycle a convenient means of getting to classes, since student automobiles have been reduced from 1500 last year to approximately 500 this fall. From all indications this number will be lowered considerably before the year ends.

To solve the bicycle parking problems on the campus the Buildings and Grounds department is constructing bike racks at Morrill hall and Mason hall. If these prove successful more racks will be placed at other campus buildings.

1893 Speculum Board—Note!

I was greatly interested in the picture on Page 14 of the July Record of the "Speculum Board" of 1893. I knew every one of these men personally, and some very intimately, in fact I roomed with Bob Welch when I first went to M.A.C. I will be greatly interested in knowing the present whereabouts of these men and would like to hear from them.

Yours very truly,

Clay Tallman, '95,
1329 E. 26th Place,
Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Liked Vox Pop Program

The very interesting Michigan State program that came over on the Bromo Seltzer hour last night reminded me that I had not kept my change of address up to date on your files.

Am stationed here as a Chief Specialist along with two others from Michigan, one a State man. It isn't bad, but with the approach of the hunting season I wish I were in Michigan.

Sincerely,

R. A. Gardner, P.E. '35,
Newport, Rhode Island.

ABOUT THESE ALUMNI

By Gladys M. Franks

Patriarchs

Dean F. Griswold, '75, patriarch of the patriarchs, observed his ninetieth birthday on August 9 with open house at his home in Northville, Michigan.

Arthur B. Peebles, '77, retired Congregational minister, is living in San Diego, California, at 1357 S. 43rd street.

Word has been received of the death of Edward James Fletcher, '83, at his home in Appleton, Wisconsin, on June 12.

Dale Smith, '88, gives his new address as 3763 Pacific avenue, Long Beach, California.

William F. Staley, '88, retired government attorney, gives his new address as 3939 N. E. 29th avenue, Portland, Oregon, and adds: "Will see you on our 60th!"

Lewis W. Spaulding, '90, is employed at the Vancouver, Washington, yard of the Kaiser company.

The war emergency brought A. C. Burnham out of ten years of retirement to fill a teaching position in a boys' school in Los Angeles where he lives at 1550 Curran street. Mr. Burnham taught a course in "human engineering" or life planning at M.S.C. in 1926-28.

Edwin C. Peters is chairman of the board of directors of Seemann & Peters Inc., of Saginaw, Michigan.

George E. Simmons is assistant engineer in the Illinois highway department and lives in Springfield at 1309 W. Glenn avenue.

1896

George Williams, chief engineer for the Douthitt corporation, has offices in Chicago at 221 N. LaSalle street.

1898

Herbert L. Fairchild, former business manager of the Chicago Daily News, is president and publisher of the Dayton, Ohio, Journal-Herald.

1900

Hugh B. Gunnison, nationally known yachtman and past commodore of the Detroit Yacht club and of the Edison Boat club, died at his home in Miami, Florida, on July 10. Mr. Gunnison was an engineer with the Detroit Edison company for more than 35 years and was maintenance engineer in the substation department at the time of his retirement. He first became interested in yachting in 1906 and held various offices with the Detroit Yacht club, the Detroit River Yachting association, the Inter-Lake Yachting association, and was a charter member of the Edison boat club. For six years Mr. Gunnison was chairman of the race course committee of the Yachtsmen's Association of America and during this time, in 1931, he laid out the course in Lake St. Clair for the Harmsworth Trophy race and had charge of the course for four Harmsworth races. He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Benjamin C. Rush of Detroit; a sister, Alta Gunnison Pierce, '05, of Greenville; and a brother, Eddy J., '05, of Chicago.

Grace Lundy Drolett of Lansing, is justly proud of her service family. Lawrence, '31, who has been practicing medicine in Lansing the last five years, is a first lieutenant with the first mobile base hospital sent overseas by the army. Her second son, Donald, '37, completed his internship and enlisted and is a first lieutenant with the 45th Medical battalion. Dorothy, her only daughter, is overseas with the army nursing corps. Her husband, Dr. Fred Drolett, served as a medical officer in World War I.

Lt. Col. John R. Thompson, on leave of absence from the Interstate Commerce commission, is temporarily located in Salt Lake City as commanding officer of the O.C.D. supply depot.

Friends of Elvine Armstrong Harvey, who has made her home in Manila for several years, will be relieved to learn that she reached California by clipper late last November and is now living in Berkeley at 245 Purdue avenue.

Archie A'ger is rate investigator for the Federal Power commission, 1757 K street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

Frank Trafts is tool engineer for Engineering Service Inc., 3437 Goldner street, Detroit.

Daniel S. Updegraff lives at 10718 Wilshire boulevard, Los Angeles, and reports that he is retired.

1909

The August 27 issue of the weekly engineering news magazine published by the Cleveland Technical Societies council contains a timely article by F. H. Valentine entitled, "How to get the most out of your heating plant."

1910

Thomas K. Burt, president of Huron Motor Sales Inc. of Ann Arbor, died in University hospital on July 11. Mr. Burt has been a resident of Ann Arbor for about 25 years, having served as manager of the Eloise farms and of the Ann Arbor dairy before joining Huron Motor Sales as president and general manager. He is survived by his wife and daughter, Mrs. Montgomery Schick of Rochester, Minnesota.

John C. DeCamp is assistant superintendent of the Boys' Vocational school in Lansing.

Joseph McIntosh is assistant postmaster in Owosso, Michigan.

Edmund H. Gibson is rector of Trinity Episcopal church in Galveston, Texas.

Harry E. Knowlton and Evelyn Puffer, of Berlin, Massachusetts, were married July 16 and are making their home at 30 Healey street, Cambridge. Mr. Knowlton is field examiner in the Boston office of the National Labor Relations board.

Edwy B. Reid is director of information and extension for the Farm Credit administration in Kansas City, Missouri, where he and Mrs. Reid (Bess Cornell, w'07) live at 7212 Bellevue.

R. F. Kroodsma has been transferred by the University of Tennessee to its branch experiment station in Greeneville where he will do research in forestry.

Albert L. Birdsall, factory manager of the Keeler Brass company in Grand Rapids, died at his home in that city on September 13. Mr. Birdsall became associated with the Keeler firm in 1915 and continued until his death, except for the period of the first World War when he enlisted in 1917 and served as first lieutenant of ordnance. He is survived by his wife; two children, Albert Jr. and Barbara Valentine; his mother, Mrs. Ira Birdsall of Grand Rapids; and a brother, Paul, of Indianapolis.

Lt. Comdr. R. B. Kellogg writes: "A few days ago I had the privilege of perusing a copy of the Record hoping to contact some old friends in this branch of the service. Am fortunate in serving as chief engineer of a fine naval vessel and would like to hear from any of the 'old-timers.'" Lt. Comdr. Kellogg may be reached through the Postmaster at New York city.

Melvin Russell has offices at 1421 S. Aberdeen street, Chicago, a marketing specialist with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Word has been received of the death of Charles T. Dendel which occurred at his home in Royal Oak on June 29. Mr. Dendel left college in 1913 to take employment at the Ford Motor company and at the time of his death he was general foreman in the artificial leather division. He is survived by his wife and two children, Everett L. and June S.

1916

Sumner Howard is located in Flint, Michigan, as general service manager for the A. C. Spark Plug division of General Motors.

Clarence and Vera Gruner Oviatt are living at 4702 Window place N. W., Washington, D. C., where he is senior agriculturist for the United States Department of Agriculture.

Fred Trezise, personnel officer for the Tennessee Valley authority, lives in Norris, Tennessee, at 120 N. Norris road.

Alfred T. Halsted is minister of the First Methodist church in Cadillac, Michigan.

G. W. Quick is mechanical engineer for the City Auto Stamping company in Toledo, Ohio, where he lives at 3851 Bellevue road.

His countless friends and classmates will be grieved to learn of the death of Fred M. Wilson at his home in East Lansing on July 9. Mr.

Tell Freshmen All Personal Desires Must Be Secondary to Objective of Winning War

(Editor's note: Space does not permit the publication of the entire address by President Hannah to the 2,440 freshmen at their first convocation in the auditorium. These men and women represent the largest freshman class since the founding of the college in 1855. Below are excerpts.)

"This nation is engaged in a great war, the greatest war the world has ever known. As we meet here this afternoon our armies are scattered all over the world, on every continent of the globe. This war must be won. We have great and powerful allies, but we are beginning to appreciate that American ships and guns and planes and ammunitions alone will not win the war. It is going to take the services of millions of armed men and an all-out effort on the part of every man and every woman in the United States. . .

"Until the war is won all personal desires and conveniences must be subservient to the overall objective of winning this war decisively in the least possible time. Michigan State college is co-operating with the military services in providing here the various courses that are suggested by these services to fit young men for effective membership. . .

"Michigan State college regards you as young men and young women able to do your own thinking. We are confident that each of you will exercise good judgment and discretion in determining the path and trend of your life for the years that you are here. We hope Michigan State college will stimulate your curiosities, your desire for knowledge and wisdom, and your desire to become useful citizens, so that your lives may bring satisfaction to yourselves and credit to the nation. . .

"The people of Michigan have built here a great university and are providing for you a great opportunity. The operation of this college costs a great deal of money. In addition to the fees you pay it costs this state about $250 a year for each of you. You not only owe an obligation to yourself and your family, but you also owe an obligation to the state of Michigan to make good use of your time and the opportunities provided for you. . .

"Actually the campus is synonymous with the boundaries of Michigan, extending from the Ohio-Indiana line on the south, to Lake Superior on the north, from Lake Michigan and the Wisconsin boundary on the west, to the lakes and rivers on the east. There are more than 65,000 youngsters in Michigan that belong to the 4-H Clubs and are a part of the Michigan State college extension program. The activities of this branch of the college, extending into every township and almost every community of the state, form a great service to Michigan's agriculture and allied activities. . .

"We hope this college may stimulate your curiosity and desire for learning, so that you will acquire what you can in your classes and laboratories. We hope you continue far beyond the prescribed requirements in your search for truth and acquisition of skill that may enable you to earn a living and enjoy full satisfying lives. . ."

Homecoming

Hundreds of alumni who returned to the campus for homecoming on October 24 saw a football thriller not equalled at Michigan State for many a year. They saw eleven men on Macklin field playing heads-up football during four periods against a team predicted to win by most gridiron strategists. The game ended, 14-0, for the Spartans.

Said George Alderton in his State Journal "Sports Grist" column several days after the game: "Before the game, members of the squad who had worked hard at their practice lessons all week, called a meeting. Several members climbed to their feet in the course of the meeting. Their speeches were brief but to the point. They recalled mistakes they had made and resolved not to make them again. Some admitted that on other occasions they may have spared themselves when full effort might have made a difference in the score. On this occasion they said they would play to the utmost limits of their strength and ability—play for team rather than for themselves or any other individual."

The men won, 14-0, and Charley Bachman waded the Red Cedar river the next day to fulfill a promise he had made in a speech to members of the Lansing Rotary club.

Previous to the football game special tribute was paid to the varsity men who lost their lives in World War 1. George "Carp" Julian, '15, placed a wreath at the base of the stone bearing a plaque with the names of fallen heroes. Forrest Lang, '29, assisted Mr. Julian in the memorial ceremony.

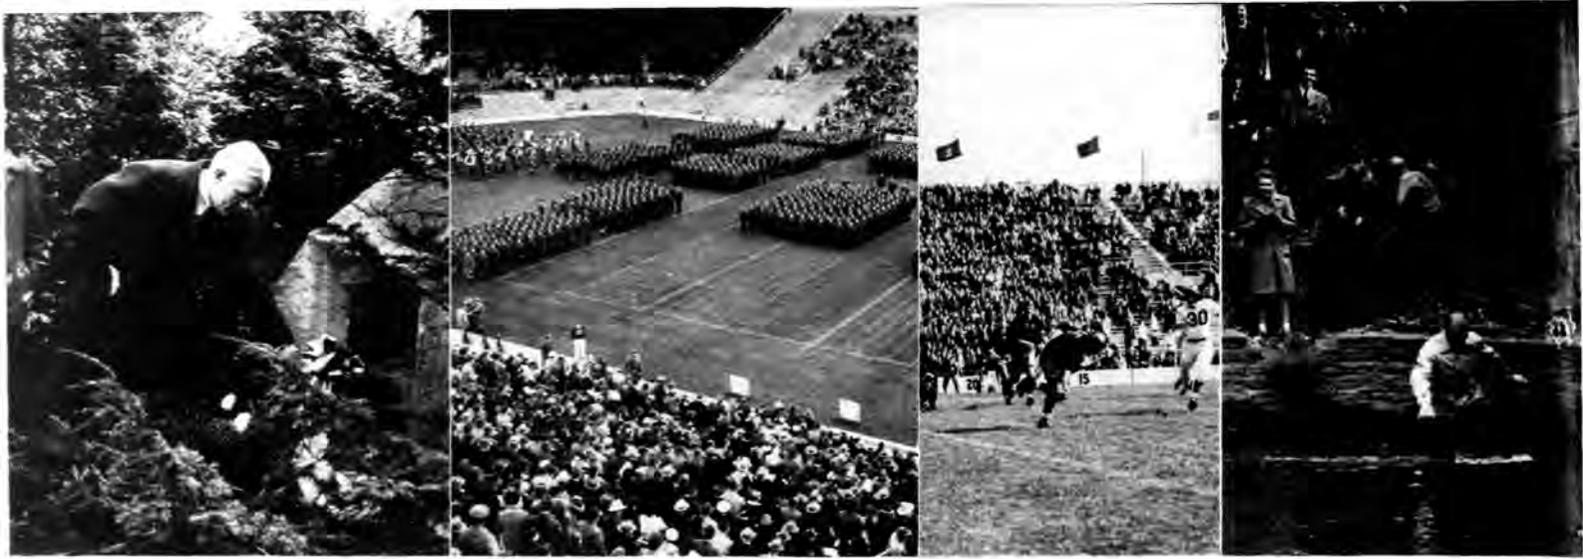

Following the game alumni from various classes gathered on the field by classes to celebrate the victory and to do a little reminiscing. Although the crowd was not as large as in previous years, many former students and graduates returned to State. Sprinkled among the crowds who gathered on Macklin field were men in service from all branches of the armed forces.

In the evening about 1,000 couples, students and alumni, packed the college auditorium for an evening of entertainment. While most of them came purposely for dancing, many old time stories were told about life on the campus "When I was here". More reminiscing took place at Hotel Olds on Friday evening before the game when the annual Varsity smoker was staged. About 100 alumni, college officials, and newspapermen attended the event.

Fraternities, sororities, and dormitories celebrated homecoming by placing appropriate decorations in front of their homes. The homecoming committee awarded prizes to the most suitable and timely ideas. Sigma Kappa won first prize for the sororities and thereby took permanent possession of the trophy, having won it two years in succession previously. Second and third places went to Kappa Alpha Theta and Zeta Tau Alpha, respectively. For the men Delta Sigma Phi took first, Theta Chi second, and Farmhouse, third.

What a game! That's what they all said when alumni met on Macklin field by class groups at homecoming. Below is one of the many groups who remained on the field after the game to renew acquaintances.

6,318 Students at M.S.C.

Today's enrollment at Michigan State college is 6,318, the third highest registration the college has ever experienced. Of this enrollment sixty-four per cent are men and thirty-six per cent women, a five to three ratio. Last year it was two men for every woman.

Enrollment figures disclosed the largest freshman registration, 2,440, since the college was established in 1855. Of this number, 1,621 are men and 819 women. Also included in the enrollment figures are about 400 men and women in the General college.

Every county, 83, in Michigan is represented on the campus, as well as the 48 states and the District of Columbia. In addition there are graduate and undergraduate students enrolled from eleven U. S. possessions and foreign countries. The U. S. possessions and foreign countries include Hawaii, Philippine Islands, Puerto Rico, Canada, Chile, China, Dominican Republic, Haiti, Panama, Russia, and South Africa.

Serious Minded Group

When students entered Michigan State college in September, they gave 5,092 reasons for coming to M.S.C., and most of them indicated that the 6,318 students were a serious-minded group.

Forty-three per cent of the reasons were based on courses of study at Michigan State. These represented 43 different departments from the six major divisions.

Thirty per cent of the reasons were based on contacts with relatives, friends, alumni, and former teachers. Other influencing contacts were the 4-H club activities in Michigan, Wolverine Boys' State, the Federal Extension Service of the college, and personal visits to the campus.

The other twenty-seven per cent of the reasons were based on location of the college, scholarship awards, low cost, beauty of the campus, and the democratic atmosphere.

Lumber Merchandising Course

A four-year curriculum in housing and lumber merchandising leading to a bachelor of science degree has recently been established at Michigan State college.

The forestry department in the Division of Agriculture is directing the work although other departments on the campus are contributing to the course required of students specializing in the new curriculum. Requested by industry, the housing and lumber merchandising course plans to give young men training that would apply directly to the building industry.

Many industrial concerns have assisted the forestry department in setting up the course, which requires that students get some first-hand experience in the lumber business before they graduate with a bachelor of science degree. The college requirements call for six months of partial experience in some phase of the industry.

The course aims to train young men in selling, give them a knowledge of building materials, inform them on construction methods in the small-construction industry, give them experience in cost estimating, a knowledge of lumber economics and business in general.

Bang's Disease

At a meeting of the American Veterinary Medical association officials in Chicago recently it was disclosed that experiments conducted by scientists at Michigan State college were revolutionizing the fight against Bang's disease in this country.

The man responsible for Bang's disease research at M.S.C. is Dr. I. F. Huddleson, '25, a member of the faculty for 27 years.

Dr. Huddleson reported recently that the results obtained with a crushed cell fraction showed conclusively that it is not necessary to inject live Brucella organisms to produce an active immunity against Brucellosis. In 25 separate experiments, totaling 247 guinea pigs, only 9.03 per cent became infected after inoculation with Virulent Br. Abortus organisms—against 63.44 per cent of the 238 control pigs which became infected.

Dr. Huddleson states that this treatment for older animals as well as for calves is proving successful, although a sufficient amount of time has not yet elapsed to make a final report.

New Greenhouse

To speed sugar beet production in the war emergency program a new greenhouse for research is being constructed on the campus between the Red Cedar river and the livestock pavilion.

Half of the research is being done by Farm Crops and the other half by the Soils Science department. Farm Crops will test new breeding strains for yield and sugar content to speed production of sugar beets. With the aid of the greenhouse two generations of beets can be grown in one year, while in the outdoor method only one generation of sugar beets can be tested in two years. Through this speed-up method Farm Crops hopes to make available the seed of new strains of beets for growers in 1943.

The Soils Science department is concerned chiefly with nutritional problems of sugar beet growing. Experiments are being carried on to increase yields and prevent diseases and deformities in sugar beets.

1942 Summer Session

The 1942 summer session had 3,595 men and women enrolled in the approximately 400 courses offered in the six major divisions of study. According to Director Crowe, this represented a 75 per cent increase over last year's figure of 2,000. For the first time during the last summer it was possible for students to attend the session for two six-week periods.

Here 43 Years

Forty-three years on the same payroll is a long time, but that is the record of Frank Mitchell, foreman of electrical engineering in the Buildings and Grounds department. Mr. Mitchell completed his forty-third year with M.S.C. on October 1.

Other members on the college payroll for 25 years or more, including all branches of service, are as follows:

A. J. Clark, C. P. Halligan, R. S. Hudson, G. A. Brown, J. Schepers, Ward Giltner, S. E. Crowe, Richard DeZeeuw, C. H. Spurway, B. B. Roseboom, B. E. Hartsuch, Eugenia McDaniel, R. J. Baldwin, E. A. Bessey, F. W. Chamberlain, C. S. Dunford, C. J. Bouyoucus, R. C. Huston, E. T. Hallman, Roswell Carr (on leave), J. P. Hutton, G. G. Specker, M. M. Cory, Henry Strayer, R. E. Loree, O. E. Robey, C. M. Cade (on leave), L. C. Emmons.

H. T. Darlington, Dwight Ewing, John Heppinstall, Earl Simmons, E. F. Woodcock, L. R. Walker, L. C. Hughes, C. E. Miller, C. V. Ballard, C. D. Ball, E. J. Miller, J. W. Stack, E. E. Down, Flora Easton, I. F. Huddleson, Walter Reuling, Earl Stewart, R. L. Olds, S. G. Bergquist, K. H. McDonel, W. Frost, Owen D. Smith, O. I. Gregg, Howard Johnson, W. Russell, A. S. Raymond, F. W. Fabian, C. R. Megee, H. C. Moore, H. J. Stafseth, Mary Eicher, H. D. Hootman, A. C. Kettunen, and Agnes McCann.

Celebrate 25th Anniversary At Peoples Church

Approximately 1,000 persons called at the Peoples church in East Lansing on September 30 to congratulate Dr. and Mrs. N. A. McCune on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the day on which Dr. McCune, '01, preached his first sermon at the church.

Dr. and Mrs. N. A. McCune

In the picture, above, Dr. N. A. McCune and Mrs. McCune are reading the card which accompanied a gift of silver they received from the Woman's society of the church and the Missionary society. Attending the reception in the church parlors were church members, members of young people's organizations, representatives of the four denominations supporting the church, and hundreds of other friends of the McCunes.

While a student at M.S.C. Dr. McCune was a member of the first student judging team at the International Livestock exposition in Chicago in 1900. Following graduation from M.S.C., the Peoples Church pastor received his S.T.B. degree from Boston in 1907, his M.A. degree from Boston in 1909, and the D.D. degree from Albion college in 1929.

After teaching for several years at Berea college in Kentucky, he became pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church at Three Rivers, Michigan, in 1907 and remained there until 1910 when he accepted a call to the First Methodist Episcopal church in Benton Harbor, Michigan. After remaining in Benton Harbor for seven years he came to the Peoples church in 1917, where he continues to fill the church to capacity at both services every Sunday morning.

During their twenty-fifth anniversary celebration Rev. and Mrs. McCune received many congratulatory messages from their host of friends.

Lecture Course

One of the most interesting features of the Michigan State College Lecture Course program will be the Ballet Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, November 23 and 24, in the college auditorium. The great ballets, "Bluebeard", "Pillar of Fire", and "Russian Soldier", will be presented during the two evening performances.

Other numbers on the program are as follows: Ilka Chase, "Let Us Be Gay", November 10; Franklin P. Adams, "Inside Information Please", January 12; the original Don Cossack chorus, January 20; Thurman Arnold, "Economy Now and After the War", January 28; Erskine Caldwell, "My Experiences in the Russian War", February 16; Margaret Webster, "The Adventure of Acting", February 25; and Leland Stowe, "A War Commentary", March 9.

Alumni wishing to purchase tickets for any one of these performances may do so by sending their request to the accounting department at Michigan State college.

B.S. in arts and sciences at State and then went to the University of Nebraska in 1898 for a year of graduate study.

From there he went to San Francisco where he married Elizabeth A. Bates in 1903 and settled down to practice law. During his career as an attorney, Ross wrote several legal textbooks. In 1916 he became interested in church work and abandoned his practice to study at the Massachusetts Metaphysical college, where he was given the degree of C.S.B. three years later.

Since then he has risen steadily in the Christian Science organization, serving as a reader, practitioner, teacher, and publicity representative of the Church of Northern California.

Although his new work is taking nearly all of his time in Boston, Ross still is able to return occasionally to the west coast where he chats with his students and renews his teaching activities.

H. H. Musselman Retires

By E. B. Swingle

From 1909 to 1942 agricultural progress in Michigan witnessed a parade of achievements, improvements, and efficiencies in which Professor H. H. Musselman, '08, recently retired head of agricultural engineering, played an active role.

He states that in the early days of his appointment, a year

Mr. Musselman, '08 after graduating from M.S.C., he and others thought perhaps there need be and would not be any notable new things in farm machinery.

The two-row corn cultivator and the hay loader seemed then to be the acme achievement in lightening the farm labor load.

But the subsequent 33 years made him change his mind rapidly enough to let him help unbend the backs of many farmers, make farming more efficient, make farm home life more pleasant and with less drudgery.

First of the steps he remembers is the beginning of popularity of the farm gas engine. He started a course in farm gas engines in 1910. In Lansing there were five factories making the small engines at the time. The Michigan State College agricultural engineers, under the direction of Professor Musselman, helped farm families adapt the portable power to farm water systems and then provided plans for sewage disposal through septic tanks.

Tractors reared their square heads in the farm picture along in 1914 and 1915. In 1914 the college staff demonstrated it was possible to plow 11 acres in a 15 hour day, using a tractor pulling four plows. Nowadays, with rubber tires, the same acreage is covered in about 10 hours with a three-bottom tractor.

Even more spectacular were succeeding eras.

Musselman built a marl bucket to demonstrate ease of digging out marl beds to sweeten soils for legumes. Use of marl in Michigan increased from a few hundred cubic yards a year to more than a million.

Extension work in agricultural engineering helped sell and showed the use of more than three million pounds of war salvage explosives for land clearing after the end of World War 1.

Mechanical power paced the field, but with it came the farmer's silent hired hand,—electricity. A rural electrification project begun at the college in 1927 and aided by other agencies when Michigan had an estimated 4,000 farms served from central station power plants, mushroomed use to what is now estimated at 140,000 Michigan farms.

Still an active man, after a recent operation, Professor Musselman thinks the past quarter century has radically changed the whole tenor of farm living. But he doesn't believe, as he did in 1909, that there isn't much "new under the sun." He expects to see more unbending of the backs of farmers, towards which he has given his ideas in the past 33 years.

Library Is War Information Center

Michigan State college has been selected by the School and Morale Service of the U. S. Office of Education to be a key War Information Center. State is one of 150 American colleges and universities picked by the government. The library now receives many sample copies of important government and private publications providing war information. Among the publishers and other agencies sending their books and pamphlets are the Foreign Policy association, the British Library of Information in New York, Farrar and Rinehart, the Macmillan company, and the Columbia University press.

Offer Two New Radio Courses

Two new courses in radio are being offered in the Engineering division this fall to meet the demands of the Army and Navy. These courses, providing six hours of credit, cover communication networks, radiation and propagation of radio waves, radio circuits and apparatus, and ultra high frequency devices. Six hours a week of laboratory work accompany these courses.

All student electrical engineers are required to take the two radio courses for the duration. Those taking advanced R.O.T.C. become Second Lieutenants in the Signal Corps shortly after graduation. Those not taking advanced military may apply for commissions in the Army or Navy, and if qualified will be commissioned as Second Lieutenants or Ensigns after a short period at an officers' training school.

Campus Visited By Foreign Students

Michigan State college marked "United Nations Hero Day" recently when five students from allied countries, who attended the recent international assembly in Washington, visited the campus.

The delegation consisted of Captain Peter Cochrane, D.S.C. Miss Yung Wang, famous Chinese actress and personal representative of Madame Chiang Kai Shek, Reden Kedir, native of the Netherland East Indies, and Lt. Vladimir.

Harvesting Sugar Beets

Students, above, are doing their part in harvesting the sugar beet crop, according to C. V. Ballard, '12, State county agent leader, in charge of the sugar beet volunteer harvesting program at M.S.C. Before the sugar beet harvesting is over more than 2,500 students will have participated. Included in this number are approximately 80 girls, who according to Mr. Ballard, "throw out as many beets as the men".

Daily Newspaper

Michigan State News became a daily paper with Associated Press membership when the fall term began. The new publication is tabloid size with four to twelve pages daily.

Heading the State News are managing editor Sheldon Moyer, Detroit, senior; editorial director Leonard Barnes, Cadillac, senior, and business manager Jean Whiting, Standish, Michigan, senior. Miss Whiting is the first woman to hold the top business position on the newspaper.

To recognize membership in the Associated Press, the State News sponsored a banquet recently in the Sunset Room of the Union. Invited guests included Michigan editors and publishers, members of the Associated Press, and faculty.

Dr. Hans L. Leonhardt, former attorney in the Free City of Danzig, now a political science and history instructor on the campus, addressed the group on his observations and experiences accumulated before he secretly fled the Nazi Gestapo.

Vox Pop

The weekly coast to coast broadcast of Vox Pop originated in the college auditorium recently with seven Michigan students taking part. To obtain a cross-section of the student body 300 students filed questionnaires and were interviewed, the largest number ever to be interviewed for this program. The students, who appeared with Parks Johnson and Warren Hull, regular Vox Pop conductors, were Eva Jen-Chi Lu, Peiping, China; Margaret Burhans, Paw Paw, Michigan; Ann Hoyt, Battle Creek, Michigan; Henry Simons, Colon, Panama; William Timm, Birmingham, Michigan; David Runnells, Grand Rapids, Michigan; James Coman, Jackson, Michigan.

Excalibur

Excalibur, senior honorary, has 10 new initiates since its tapping ceremony at the end of Freshman week. Tapping of outstanding junior men into membership is usually held at the Water Carnival, but was postponed last spring because of rain.

New initiates are Phil Althen, Lowell;

Second Mardi Gras

The Spartans went all-out for defense for the second Michigan State Mardi Gras on October 17, continuing the idea adopted last spring as a means of contributing to war effort. King and Queen of defense were chosen from nominees from fraternities, sororities, dormitories, and cooperative houses by penny votes with all the money going for war relief. The royal pair, who ruled over the costume ball held in the auditorium during the evening, were Peter Buth, Comstock Park, and Patricia Wise, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Proceeds from the dance and voting, amounting to $900 went to war relief. Jack Bush, senior, from Rockford, Illinois, was in charge of the Mardi Gras.

Triplets

Geography Professor E. O. Prophet's wife surprised him in August with girl triplets. Professor Prophet who at first called them A, B, and C decided to continue the system by naming them Kathleen Alice, Rosalind Beth, and Suzanne Carol.

H. C. Beeskow and Ralph Lewis announced the arrival of daughters, and Carl P. Swanson and Frank V. Stevenson are proclaiming the arrival of sons.

From F. C. Hanson, '40

The Record just arrived, and I want to thank you, and express the hope that it will continue to come to me here, no matter how late its arrival.

Sorry that I'm not allowed to tell you more about my location and activities. I can assure you that news from home is scarce, and The Record is a welcome guide to the whereabouts of old friends and classmates.

I find the names of friends, listed in the "they gave all" column. May we, here, add our voices to your chorus of "they shall not have died in vain."

Sincerely yours,

Francis C. Hanson, '40.

Sports Highlights

By George Alderton

What sweeter morsel for an alumnus than a football victory on Alumni Homecoming day!

And that's the delicacy that Coach Charley Bachman and his football team served October 24 when the Spartans defeated a highly favored Great Lakes Naval Training station team, 14 to 0. From the very start it was apparent that State's football fortunes were at a new high tide, and as the game wore on, the trend of events was exactly what the Old Grad ordered.

Football talent and numbers aren't too plentiful on the campus this fall. That was seen in State's defeat at the hands of a powerful University of Michigan team, 20 to 0, and in a loss to the Marquette university eleven by a surprisingly large score of 28 to 7. Sandwiched in between these was a convincing victory over Wayne university, 46 to 6.

The squad now numbers less than 50 players, smallest in several years. Some days at practice it is impossible to muster three complete teams, due chiefly to the fact that things are humming on the campus now and many of those who don't figure they have a chance of making the team are probably busy with other assignments and duties.

It has become apparent that Dick Kieppe, senior left halfback, is a key figure in this year's team. When Kieppe is not available, the team suffers a decided loss of strength, both offensively and defensively. He passes exceptionally well, runs, and kicks steadily. One of his punts against Great Lakes travelled 68 yards. He completed three consecutive passes at the outset of the game, perhaps giving the Bluejackets a warning that they kept in mind the remainder of the game.

Another spark plug is Walter (The Champ) Pawlowski who plays either right or left halfback. He scored the first touchdown against Great Lakes, catching a 15-yard pass from Kieppe. Walter is one of those little fellows (he weighs only 153 pounds!) who gets around successfully among the larger boys. He reminds one of other famous 'midgets' in State's football—George Gauthier and Ray (Stub) Kipke.

The Varsity club smoker the night before the game was well-attended, although an all-day rain and tire-conservation no doubt kept some of the regulars from attending. Delmar R. Zimmerman, '27, track and baseball, was one of the rare birds to appear. He's at Traverse City, Michigan.

Basketball

Basketball is already in the wind. Coach Ben Van Alstyne has his cagers working out every afternoon in the gymnasium. The big floor won't go into the fieldhouse until after the football season closes. Chet Aubuchon, star here for three years, will play against the Spartans next winter. Chet, who received his sheepskin at the end of the summer school, enlisted in the Navy and will be at Great Lakes. Basketball prospects are not too bright. Coach Van Alstyne says the team will have to come out of the ranks of his last season reserves, largely. There are only two or three sophomores who look good enough to make the 15-man squad.

Cross-country

Coach Lauren P. Brown has his cross-country runners chasing over hill and dale. They won from Drake university in the first meet of the season, gaining a forfeit victory when Drake failed to enter a full team. Then Indiana came along and defeated the Spartans in the second meet. The boys are looking forward to the I.C.A.A.A. meet in New York City on November 16, and the NCAA event here on November 20.

Frosh Football

Freshman football prospects are brighter than in several seasons. Coach John Kobs reports he has a large number of promising players. In fact, the yearlings have been taking liberties with the varsity reserves in scrimmages. Barney Roskopp and Vincent Mroz, ends, and Alger Conner, tackle, are sophomore members of the varsity line. Unless the army cuts a wide swath in the ranks, the team next year should be up to par, or better.

Wades Red Cedar

Here's proof that it pays to make a promise.

Charley Bachman, M.S.C.'s football coach, told the Rotary club, previous to the Great Lakes football game, that he had very little hope of a victory with the Bluejackets. In fact, said he, "I am willing to wade the Red Cedar if the Spartans win".

And win they did, 14-0. So at high noon the next day, Coach Bachman went through with his bet, wearing business clothes and a light jacket, while hundreds of spectators lined the bank to watch the Spartan coach wade through knee-deep water at a temperature of 40 degrees.

"It was worth it", said Bachman. "I never thought the Spartans would trim Great Lakes."

No Punting

Charley Bachman has been coaching major college football for 24 years, but it remained for him to experience something brand new when his team recently defeated Wayne university, 46 to 6. The Spartans were not called upon to punt in the entire game.

State had the ball so deep in Wayne territory that a run or pass was better strategy on fourth down in most cases. Wayne erased the necessity for punting three times by intercepting Spartan forward passes.

Sees Games on Stretcher

There is a spectator on a stretcher at all of Michigan State's home football games when weather is favorable. Tom Johnson, who played tackle for the Spartans the past two years, is invalided with multi-fractures of his legs and the only way he can get to Macklin field is to be carried. The injuries were sustained in an automobile accident last summer.

Versatile

The prize for athletic versatility at M.S.C. goes to William Maxwell, a senior from Tulsa, Oklahoma. Bill is the national intercollegiate wrestling champion at 136 pounds, played as a regular member of the tennis team last spring, and this fall he's making the grade with the Spartan varsity cross-country team. Nobody thought of Bill as a runner until last fall when he won the campus Turkey Trot, an intramural cross-country run that offers turkeys as prizes.

Maxwell is also rapidly winning a reputation for toughness. Last December he dislocated a shoulder just when he was starting the wrestling season. He overcame this injury in time to enjoy an undefeated season. Last summer Bill was piloting a gasoline truck and was forced into the ditch.

Blister Cure

Here's a tip for prospective soldiers who may be worrying about blistering their feet when they don army shoes and begin long hikes. It comes from Jack Heppinstall who has been prescribing for blister trouble in the Michigan State college athletic department for more than a quarter of a century. Mix up a tannic acid solution and paint the feet every day. Your blister trouble will be reduced 90 per cent. It really works, as many a former athlete who now is soldiering, has told Jack by word and letter.

Same Story

There is only an 18-year span now from dad to son in Michigan State college football. Greg Taylor, from Cleveland, Ohio, a freshman team candidate, is the son of Maurice R. Taylor, '24. The elder Taylor was captain of the 1923 Spartan football team, playing at guard. His son doesn't know whether

Physical Fitness Demonstration on November 20

More than 1,000 students at Michigan State college will participate in a physical fitness demonstration in the new Jenison Gymnasium and Fieldhouse on Friday evening, November 20, from 8 o'clock until 10. For the first time since the new plant was completed every one of the six gymnasium floors, the pool, the courts and the Fieldhouse, will be filled with vigorous young men in action simultaneously.

Among the activities demonstrated will be boxing, wrestling, swimming, diving, life saving, and water polo. Other events in which students will participate are handball, foil, sabre and epee fencing, judo wrestling (hand to hand combat), individual and doubles tumbling, stunts on gymnastic apparatus, volley ball, group games, and special classes in adapted sports for physically handicapped men. Spectators will observe the level of skill which can be expected of the average man who leaves the campus to join the armed forces.

Sixteen separate sports activities for class work in physical conditioning will comprise the two-hour program. Nearly 50 classes will work in shifts to acquaint the visitors with the wide range of activities in State's new streamlined pre-military conditioning system. Spectators will witness a strenuous game of water polo from the vantage point of the submarine windows situated below the water line of the Jenison pool. Veterans of the last war will recall many of their own experiences when they observe the efforts of college students at scaling walls, climbing ropes, and crawling through tunnels while carrying 35-pound sand packs.

State's new physical fitness program ranks high among the country's select few programs, and during the past six months it has attracted nation-wide attention. Twentieth Century-Fox Movie-tone News spent a half-day last spring filming the "Commando-Like Tactics" it will be guard or tackle.

Trainer Jack Heppinstall, who outfitted the father with a uniform, said the boy required a larger suit.

"Your dad left pretty big tracks around this place, son," Trainer Heppinstall warned the boy.

"Aw, shucks, don't tell me I have to listen to that story again," Greg said, grinning. "Mom has been telling me that one all my life!"

One of 16 separate sports activities you'll see at the physical fitness demonstration in the Jenison Fieldhouse on Friday evening, November 20. In the picture is Frederick Scotton, freshman, from Scotts, Michigan getting a workout on the horizontal ladder.

employed in the outdoor obstacle course. The Chicago Tribune ran a page of rotogravure in a recent Sunday edition of the newspaper, and newspapers throughout the midwest have carried articles of interest on this timely contribution that M.S.C. is making to the war effort.

The event has been arranged in response to the many demands from high schools and colleges throughout Michigan for material which they might use in a physical conditioning program for young men. There will be no admission charge.

Coaches

On November 20 State high school basketball and swimming coaches will hold their annual meetings here. The next forenoon will see the NCAA cross-country championship decided, in the afternoon the West Virginia football game. If you're planning on a trip to the campus before gas rationing becomes effective, that week-end might be the one.

During the last six months you have seen

Following Alumni Clubs

By Glen O. Stewart

Its ranks depleted by the departure of men into the service and its program geared to the war effort, the average Michigan State alumni club embarks upon its schedule this fall with a seriousness of purpose that is in sharp contrast to the frivolous days gone by.

For today football is more than a contest of brawn and brains in which we strive to uphold our college on the football field. Today football is a part of our national war effort—a conditioner of men—and because some of our Spartan clubs are primarily concerned with football during the fall season it was natural that they became interested in the war-time athletic program.

Detroit and Saginaw

In both Detroit and Saginaw combination meetings were held with the men of the University of Michigan clubs prior to the October 3 game at Ann Arbor. With Lt. Comdr. Harry Kipke, a former coach at both institutions, acting as toastmaster, some real football stories were given the Detroit alumni by Coaches Crisler and Bachman. More than 180 attended the meeting at the Book-Cadillac hotel on October 2. That same evening at the Bancroft hotel in Saginaw the director of alumni relations and Freshman Coach John Kobs teamed up with Assistant Secretary Robert Morgan, of the University, to entertain about 125 Saginaw alumni at their fall smoker. Carl H. Peterson, '15, president of the club, assisted in directing the evening's program.

Knoxville, Tennessee

On Saturday evening, October 17, Dr. and Mrs. B. D. Drain, '33, entertained the Knoxville M.S.C. alumni at a 6 o'clock dinner. An interesting program was presented with Henry Dorr, Jr., '18, president, in charge. He read a telegram from the college officials during the evening's entertainment.

Grand Rapids

Getting under the wire for gas rationing the Grand Rapids Alumnae league sponsored the annual dinner for the alumni of Region Four, at Wurzburg's restaurant, October 22. Many visiting teachers of the district joined the men and women of the Grand Rapids group to hear Glen O. Stewart, director of alumni relations, tell about the college in the war program. New colored pictures, stressing the physical fitness program for men, were shown by Mr. Stewart. Mrs. De Gay Ernst, (Esther Atwood, '24) presided at the dinner.

—Mrs. Thomas King, '41, secretary

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

Using the football game with Temple as a means of interesting a large group of Eastern alumni, a committee of Philadelphia alumni under the leadership of Marion L. Joslin, '30, and H. J. Raths, '31, sponsored a pre-game smoker on the mezzanine floor of the Benjamin Franklin hotel in Philadelphia, Friday evening, October 30. The program was very informal with short talks by President John Hannah, Glen O. Stewart, and Ralph Young. Coach Bachman showed movies of previous games and gave interesting sidelines about the present team. The group had a block of tickets at the Temple game.

Berrien County

Berrien County Alumni club will honor President Hannah at its first fall meeting in St. Joseph, Michigan, on Tuesday evening, November 17, according to an announcement by Glen O. Stewart, as The Record went to press.

Record News on WKAR

Your alumni magazine is on the air every Tuesday afternoon from 5:45 to 6 o'clock. By dialing 870 on your radio, you will hear "From the Alumni Record", beginning with the theme song, Alma Mater. The program supplements the Michigan State College Record, sent to approximately 17,000 alumni and other friends of the college.

Activities broadcast will deal with the educational program in the six major divisions, the extension division and the experiment station. Another phase of the program will acquaint alumni and other listeners with life as experienced by M.S.C. graduates and former students. This information will deal with men and women in service, interesting achievements, unusual hobbies, and interviews with alumni visitors on the campus.

Farm and Home Hour on WKAR

WKAR has joined the Blue Network to broadcast the National Farm and Home hour and other sustaining programs like the United States Army band every Tuesday at 1:45, and the Victory hour every Tuesday at 2:30.

Originating in Chicago and Washington, the Farm and Home hour, sponsored by the United States Department of Agriculture, is aired 12:30 to 1 o'clock from coast to coast. Previous to 12:30 WKAR features its regular farm program.

According to Director Coleman, through arrangements with the Blue Network, it will be possible to broadcast talks by the President of the United States and other prominent men, providing speeches are made during the day when WKAR is on the air.

Five Numbers On Concert Series

Five outstanding musical numbers constitute the concert series of Michigan State college this year. The first one played to a filled auditorium on October 27 when the Philadelphia Opera company appeared on stage.

On November 17 Bruna Castagna, versatile lady of opera and concert, will appear. She established her supremacy in the contralto ranks of the Metropolitan. Since her New York debut Mme. Castagna has sung from coast to coast.

Other numbers on the concert series and their dates follow: The Belgian Piano-String quartet, February 18; Egon Petri, April 13; and Carroll Glenn, May 4.

Regular Record columns will be aired from time to time. They will include "News about These Alumni," by Gladys Franks, alumni recorder; "Days of Yore", by Joseph G. Duncan, assistant bulletin editor; "Following Alumni Clubs," by Glen O. Stewart, director of alumni relations; "Sportscripts", by George Alderton, in charge of athletic publicity; "Folks from Everywhere", by Sid Levy, journalism major; and "Student Life Along the Winding Cedar", by Neva Ackerman, journalism major. Other persons playing an important role in college or alumni news will be interviewed.

When you have news of interest to others, write it on a card and send it to WKAR Studios, Michigan State college, East Lansing, Michigan.

Their Achievements Live

As a tribute to Mrs. Linda Landon, who died September 29 at her home in East Lansing, the college library closed for one hour during the funeral services. Mrs. Landon, 86 years old, was the former college librarian from 1891 to March 31, 1932, when she retired.

Until her death Mrs. Landon was active in the East Lansing social activities, having been a member of the Woman's club and the Child Study club. She was also a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and of St. Paul's Episcopal church.

As college librarian Mrs. Landon received a number of distinguished recognitions. She was presented with honors from the college by Dr. Robert S. Shaw in 1931. She received distinction when she was made an honorary member of the Men's Union Library society. In 1932 she was made a life member of the Michigan State College Alumni association. And the 1912 copy of the Wolverine was dedicated to her.

Mrs. Landon was also an honorary member of the Feronian society and of Alpha Phi. She is survived by a son, Rufus W. Landon, of Detroit.

Professor Mumford

A pioneer in agricultural extension work in Michigan, Prof. Eben Mumford, former head of the department of sociology at Michigan State college, died at his home in East Lansing on October 17.

Dr. Mumford, retired in 1938, came to Lansing as pastor of the First Universalists church, and later left for a period of graduate study.

Mr. Mumford served as the first leader of the county agricultural agents from 1912 to 1921. He helped to organize the Michigan State Farm bureau in 1919, and later met with a group of farmers in Ithaca, New York, where he was a leader in the formation of the American Farm Bureau federation.

After completing his undergraduate studies, he attended the University of Chicago, where he studied sociology for several years. This was followed by further graduate studies in the Universities of Paris and Berlin. He completed the requirements for the degree of doctor of philosophy at the University of Chicago.

Before Professor Mumford came to Michigan State in 1912, he had taught in several Illinois colleges. After serving as professor of economics and sociology at M.S.C. for two years, he was appointed head of that department in 1924 and served in that capacity until retirement in 1938. He is survived by the widow, Luella Mumford.

Mr. McKenna, '06

Fracturing his hip about a month ago in a fall at his home, Edward B. McKenna, '06, 59 years old, died at his home in Detroit on October 15.

Mr. McKenna, who served in the State Senate from the Fourth District of Michigan in the 1933 legislature, suffered a paralytic stroke and had been an invalid for the past eight years. Senator McKenna studied mechanical engineering at Michigan State college and took a course in special mining engineering at the University of Utah. He followed engineering for two years and then entered business which he continued for 22 years.

While a student at M.S.C. he played on the football team for four years and captained the team in 1905. He also played baseball for two years and was a member of the track team for three years. Senator McKenna was a brother of Parnell G. McKenna, class of 1910, who lives in Lansing.

Mr. Linton, '11

The first editor of the student Holcad, John O. Linton, class of 1911, died October 9 at his home in Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Linton, 57 years old, was a brother of Prof. R. S. Linton, the college registrar.

While a student at M.S.C. Mr. Linton specialized in agriculture. Upon graduation in 1911 he became assistant in the poultry department and in 1912 was made head of the same department. He held this position until 1917.

He entered World War I and upon his return entered the real estate business at Chester, Pa. From 1931 to 1941 he was a science instructor in a Philadelphia high school. He is survived by his wife and two sons.

Faculty Members on Leave

Four Liberal Arts department heads are in military service or in some other branch of service closely related to the war effort.

These men are Dr. David Worcester, head of English, now in Naval intelligence. During his absence Dr. Ben Euwema has been named acting head. Dr. Marshall Knappen, head of history and political science, in Army intelligence. While Professor Knappen is in the Army, Prof. E. B. Lyon will serve as acting head.

Dr. Donald Hayworth, head of speech, is director of the National Victory Speakers' bureau. Acting as head of his department for the duration is Prof. Paul Bagwell. Prof. Albert Christ-Janer, now head of the Art department, has joined the army. His department is being directed by Prof. E. B. Brauner.

Other changes have taken place among the faculty on the campus. To take care of urgent needs in some departments the college administration has developed a cooperative arrangement. The following faculty members have been asked to assist in the mathematics department: Miss Ruth Griswold, Home Economics department; S. T. Dexter, Farm Crops; H. T. Darlington, Botany; J. M. Barbour, Music, Miss Margaret Anderson, Orientation.

The following men are teaching in the Physics department: John Shirley, English; and Ron Heath, Housing Director.

Honors Plan Started at State

An honor program has been established in the Liberal Arts division at Michigan State college.

The plan enables a limited number of students to follow independent and informal methods of study rather than the routine requirements now prescribed by the college catalogue. Only responsible and intellectually mature students are permitted to enroll in the course.

In this plan the student will master important books and subjects going at his own pace and guided in his approach by the faculty adviser. Comprehensive examinations will replace daily or weekly quizzes to encourage and test a student's fundamental grasp of his field of interest. Replacing daily recitations, reports or essays will be substituted from time to time. In the senior year the student will prepare an honor's essay, thesis, or artistic project.

The work is carried on in seminars or individual conferences, or both.

Develops New Flower

After eight years of experimentation Prof. C. E. Wildon, college floriculturist, has developed a new commercial flower, the Michigan State Kalanchoe.

Mr. Wildon stated that the new hybrid plant, the color of which is near scarlet tinged with rose, is expected to produce good commercial quality blossoms during the winter months.

Addresses Of Men in Service

Perhaps you are wondering why addresses of the men and women in service are omitted. Here's why. We have discovered that by the time the quarterly alumni magazine is published hundreds of addresses have been changed. In fact, many of the changes come to the office after the magazine has gone to press.

To be of greater value to those wishing to write to service men and women, The Record offers a plan for a more accurate address.

1. Address the envelope to the man or woman in service
2. For the location, use Michigan State College, East Lansing, Michigan
3. In the lower left corner place % Alumni Recorder's Office
4. When the letter reaches the office, Miss Franks will use the most recent address of the addressee and mail it promptly. If the service address is not available, the letter will be forwarded to the home of the addressee or to the address instructed to use by the addressee.
