Michigan State College

A Letter From The Dean

A new department, "A Letter From the Dean," is inaugurated on this page as THE RECORD enters a new publication year. Its purpose is to bring alumni up to date on the developments and activities inside the various schools through open letters from the deans. It is hoped to have a different school represented in each issue.

To Dean E. L. Anthony of the School of Agriculture, oldest school on the campus, falls the honor of opening the series.—The Editor.

TO ALL FORMER STUDENTS OF AGRICULTURE:

Now that the fighting part of the war is over I am sure all of you as former "Aggies" are interested in what has happened and is happening in the School of Agriculture at Michigan State College.

As one of those who has seen this college grow and expand from a small institution of some 2,700 students in 1928, perhaps I can tell you something of the changes as I have seen them take place.

First of all, may I say that with the great expansion and changes that it is still the same old school in its friendliness, its closeness to the people of the state, and in its noble purpose of being of service to all, whether to students in agriculture, engineering, or any other of the study fields, or to the farmers and citizens of every walk of life throughout the state who may have need of its facilities or services.

I know that many of you of former years have had the question come to you as to whether the great growth and expansion which you have heard so much about has of necessity changed the spirit or attitude or feeling here at the college. I can assure you that it has not. This is the same old college you knew in former years. Students and faculty alike are still known and called by their first names. The same attitude of closeness and common fellowship between student and teacher may be still found in the upper classes. These classes are still being taught by Professors Brown and Ralph Hudson of Animal Husbandry and Poultry classes by Professor Card and many others you will remember. We have been more than fortunate that in the many faculty changes made necessary by the war and the recent expansion and growth to be able to hold many of our well known and capable instructors. They are still going strong.

There is now on the campus about 15,000 students. Of this number during the fall term some 1,550 were enrolled in regular agricultural courses. This did not include some 350 short course students and some 275 graduate students. This is a 26 per cent increase in agriculture over last year and one of the largest increases of any of the several schools. From all indications it looks as if even more may be expected for next year.

Dean Anthony

especially in the upper courses and in the graduate field. The fields of present major interest seem to Forestry, Horticulture, Dairy, Animal Husbandry, Vocational Agriculture, and Agricultural Engineering.

There have been many physical changes that would at once catch your eye should you return to the campus. When I came here in 1928, we had just started to move all the barns to new locations on the south side of the river. It was our confidential opinion at that time that they were too far away for best use and we would never see the time when any further change would be made. Well, we are now, only twenty years later, starting to tear down and move these same barns to new locations further back on the college farm because of the need for space to expand the campus. We have already moved the Work Horse Barn and Blacksmith Shop formerly on Farm Lane to allow the fine new Agricultural Engineering Building to be built at that location; the old Pigery was moved to allow the construction of the new Judging Pavilion. Proposals are now before the Legislature for a large modern animal industries building to house Animal Husbandry, Dairy, and Poultry. When funds are secured for this much needed building, it will be built at the corner of Farm Lane and Shaw Lane where the present beef cattle barns and meats laboratory stand. New greenhouses for Horticulture and Farm Crops are now under construction.

In view of the necessary expansion of the campus to the south side of the river, the college is making plans to use most all of the land south of the river as far as the Grand Trunk Railroad as sites for campus buildings. To compensate for the more than 100 acres being taken from the present college farm, several hundred acres of new farm lands have been recently acquired on the south end of the present college farms. The college farms now comprise more than 3,000 acres in one solid body. Several new farm buildings, such as the Soils and Farm Crops Field Laboratories, the new Artificial Insemination Laboratory and barns, have recently been built or are being erected at this time.

The staff, of course, has been greatly enlarged to handle the increased teaching loads and the increased demand for research work and Extension Service. The total staff of the School of Agriculture including teaching, research, and extension now is somewhat over 500 persons. More are being requested.

The School of Agriculture continues to hold forth in the old Agricultural Building. It has also undergone some changes and remodeling to make it better suited to our expanding student body.

We hope you may visit the college and renew your acquaintance with this office at an early date.

Sincerely,
Ernest L. Anthony,
Dean of Agriculture.

MSC "Flying Classroom" Goes Big Time

Michigan State's newest educational innovation, the "flying classroom," will take off again in February, this time with 200 leading educators from all over the country on her class roster.

Under the direction of "chief pilot" Carl M. Horn, associate professor at MSC who is rapidly gaining a national reputation for his work in this field, the "flying classroom" will take the educators on a study of business and industry in Chicago, Detroit and New York. End of the line will be Atlantic City, where the educators will join their colleagues for the annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators.

The first national event of its kind—and with MSC showing the way again—the tour is a direct outgrowth of two "flying classroom" trips conducted in the summers of 1946 and 1947 for Michigan educators.

As on those earlier trips, the purpose of the February jaunt will be to "help bridge the gap between business, industry and education," in the words of Prof. Horn.

It really will be something big, as this brief description from the recent MSC public relations department release will show:

"The educators will converge on Chicago via planes (DC-6's) for start of the tour from Fort Worth, Texas, San Francisco and Los Angeles. Other school ad-

Education Pioneer

Prof. Carl M. Horn, assistant to the Dean of Men and assistant professor in the Institute of Counseling, Testing and Guidance, who is becoming nationally known as a pioneer in a new field—education with wings.

Pointing out his native country of Costa Rica, Alfredo Ruiz, graduate student in agricultural economics who received his degree in December, tells of the work he will do when he gets home.

Ruiz attended Michigan State College on a scholarship provided by the National Bank of Costa Rica and recently completed a three-month tour of Michigan farmer cooperatives to study their organization and operation.

The trip was arranged by W. Victor Bielinski ('36), personnel director of the Michigan Association of Farmer Cooperatives (left); Stanley Wellman ('19), manager of the Michigan Elevator Exchange; and Dr. Henry E. Larzelere (right), MSC agricultural economist.

ministrators from the Mid-West, East and South will reach Chicago on their own."

"Businesses and industries in Chicago, Detroit and New York will be visited and studied by the schoolmen.

"The educators will be addressed by top executives of the concerns visited, will tour the plants and learn about employment procedures, skill needs, training programs, public relations techniques, labor-management problems."

That sounds important, and it is—especially to education.

From previous similar tours by Michigan educators came real results. The studies of business and industry resulted in start of Business, Industry and Education Days in various communities, increased emphasis on school public relations programs, instruction for the first time in the field of labor and management relations and other curricula and teaching method changes.

On the Cover

Miss Ann Kapp, of 260 Seventy-Sixth street, Brooklyn, N. Y., was the only girl among 160 engineering students taking forge courses during the fall term.

Showing her how to handle the torch in our cover picture is Bert Sangster, instructor in mechanical engineering.

Two Brothers, Both MSC Grads, Die In Six Weeks

Two brothers, long identified with the Reo Motor Car company in Lansing, died at their homes in that city within six weeks of each other.

Horace Tucker Thomas, a 1901 engineering graduate, died at his home at 925 W. Ionia street, on December 2. He was one of the early associates of Ransom E. Olds in the development of the automobile, and when the Reo Motor Car company was organized in 1904 Mr. Thomas became the chief engineer of that industry. He held that position for over 30 years, and also served as vice president and member of the board.

Surviving are his wife, a daughter, Mary Josephine, w'31, now Mrs. C. C. VanVechten, and a son, Alden P. Thomas, '32.

Charles Peach Thomas, a 1911 engineering graduate, died at his home at 2202 Sunnyside avenue on November 16. He was associated with the Reo company for nearly a quarter of a century, having charge of physical and chemical testing laboratories. For the past ten years he had been chief engineer for the Piatt Products company of Lansing. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, and a son, Rev. Willard S. Thomas, '40.

Expanded Extension Programs Foreseen

Expanded Extension programs which will transcend "mere economic considerations" and direct themselves toward a more active concern with social and economic factors of farm and home life have been predicted for the future by President Hannah.

President Hannah outlined his views before a meeting of the Wisconsin Extension Service Conference at the University of Wisconsin.

"We would do well," he declared, "to think of the ultimate consumer of farm products and how we might benefit him when we plan our research programs." He suggested that Extension programs include home demonstration among urban families as well as those in rural areas.

"Perhaps by broadening our horizons and including other classes of citizens in our great work of education, we can help close some of the rifts in our social structure here in America, and so give the world a demonstration of unity of spirit and resolution."

New Department Head

Arthur F. Brandstatter, '38, former assistant head of the department of police administration, was named head of the department by the State Board of Agriculture at its November meeting.

Brandstatter returned to his Alma Mater in 1946 after more than five years of military service, during which he attained the rank of major.

Upon leaving service he became chief of the East Lansing police in February, 1946, and left the force in September to join the MSC faculty.

WKAR, Michigan State College radio station, was awarded a citation by the Veterans of Foreign Wars "for the generous contribution of its time and facilities to the presentation of a program, 'Our Land Be Bright,' sponsored by the VFW "in the interest of our national welfare."

Michigan State College Entries Take Many Honors At International Livestock Show

Michigan State College entries in the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago in early December carried back to East Lansing many honors.

Outstanding was the showing made by Michigan State College swine exhibited by the animal husbandry department with Warren N. McMillen in charge.

The college swine entries numbered 19 and won 19 ribbons including five firsts, a grand championship, reserve championship and a championship.

Wool entries from MSC won three firsts in addition to nine other prizes.

Only one Belgian mare was shown this year and it was second in its class. A year ago, college Belgians won the grand championship and reserve championship honors but these animals were not entered this year.

The intercollegiate meats judging team under L. J. Bratzler of the animal husbandry department placed seventh among 16 teams. The livestock judging team, coached by E. D. Farwell, animal husbandry department, placed 19th in 30 teams. George Wilson, Charing Cross, Ont., Canada, was seventh high among 150 contestants. It is as high as any MSC judger has ever placed and he was the sixth in Michigan State history to place in the first ten.

J. M. Patriarche, '38, Is New City Manager

John M. Patriarche, class of 1938, has been named City Manager of East Lansing, succeeding Harry Lott, resigned.

He is a son of the late Herbert K. Patriarche, '01. His appointment became effective January 1, 1948.

Patriarche, who graduated as a civil engineer, is one of the youngest city managers in the state. He has been connected with the East Lansing city government for approximately nine years.

Patriarche is a member of the Phi Lambda Tau fraternity and a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers. He and his wife and two children live at 316 Elizabeth street in East Lansing.

Dr. Bernard Duffey, assistant professor in the department of English Literature and Fine Arts, will study under a Newberry Scholarship in the Newberry Library of Chicago.

220 Are Graduated

Fall term graduates with bachelor degrees from Michigan State College totaled 175 and 45 graduate students received advanced degrees, according to Registrar R. S. Linton.

Speech, Hearing Surveys Started

Speech and hearing surveys of rural students, aimed at correcting defects, has been started in Michigan by the Speech, Dramatics and Radio division of Michigan State College, in cooperation with the Extension Service.

"The Need Is Urgent" - Council Chairman Benner

"The need for the Memorial Center on our campus is urgent," Lee O. Benner, '12, Council Chairman, stated before a meeting of the Alumni Advisory Council. "for the cause of peace among men must be paramount to all other phases of human endeavor."

"In supporting our 'living plan for peace,' alumni, students, faculty, and friends have expressed a realization of the primary function of higher education today—the development of a moral, educated man capable of intelligent world citizenship."

Benner pointed out that in the short time which has elapsed since the approval of the chapel-international house type of memorial by the Alumni Advisory Council, the need for the Memorial Center by our students has become more immediate. "The need is today's need, for it is the responsibility of the colleges and universities and their representatives to provide a firm road out of world chaos and misunderstanding," Benner concluded.

Among the First

The Memorial Center plan at Michigan State has become recognized as one of the finest and truest examples of "living memorials" yet proposed by any group.

The Michigan State alumni group is among the first to undertake the establishment of a center where American students can work and study with students from every corner of the globe. The need is expressed in the fact that nearly a dozen student organizations have as their prime objective the encouragement of cooperation among peoples of all nationalities.

The main discussion room of the International House will provide adequate space for large group meetings of American students and students from 41 different nations as well as serving as a general reception room. Here the leaders of tomorrow's world will learn the real meaning of understanding and cooperation.

The names of the 340 Michigan State men who gave their lives during World War II will be inscribed in stone in a simple frieze around the walls of the narthex of the Memorial Chapel. The Service Book listing the names of all who served and the Donors Book with the names of all who subscribe to the memorial project will also be kept in the Chapel.

At the present time, there are more than 250 students from 41 different nations on the campus. From Burma and El Salvador, from Norway and Peru, these students have brought with them their customs, their ideas, and their problems, and an eagerness to understand those factors of individual freedom which have made America strong.

The International House will not provide housing for foreign students but will accommodate groups for discussions, meetings, and study.

"In contrast to our leadership in the field of international understanding," Walter W. Neller, '28, Fund Vice Chairman, has stated, "we are among the last of college alumni groups to provide our students with a campus chapel open at all times to all faiths. We have neglected our responsibility to equip today's youth and tomorrow's leaders with the spiritual, philosophical, and moral approach to personal and communal problems so necessary if we are to achieve good will among men."

The Memorial Chapel will present a feeling of welcome to all faiths. By virtue of the simplicity of its design, the Chapel holds only to the philosophy of freedom of worship—"each in his own way."

In the narthex of the chapel will be kept the Service Book, listing the names of all who served in the armed forces during World War II, and the Donors Book which will contain the names of all who subscribe to the Memorial Center Fund. In the interior of the chapel, the chancel, pews, and choir stalls will be in keeping with the simple style of the edifice.

State Aid Not Applicable

Long felt by many alumni to be the outstanding need on the campus, the chapel will serve to fill the lack of a building for religious purposes. And only by the support of a giving program among students, alumni, faculty, and friends will Michigan State ever have a chapel on the campus since state appropriations will not fill such a need.

Because of their purpose, neither the Memorial Chapel nor the International House will provide a source of revenue. Full participation in a voluntary giving plan is the only solution to an urgent need.

Days of Yore

By Joseph G. Duncan and Madison Kuhn

The editors of this page greatly enjoyed browsing through the scrapbook of G. H. Collingwood, '11. From this scrapbook, we have selected two pictures for "Days of Yore"—those of the poverty party and the four bathers.

The Junior Poverty Party was held January 8, 1910 in the Old Armory, located on the site of the present Music Building. Mr. Collingwood is the fourth person from the left in the front row. Says he, "One's memory plays amazing tricks. Many of the faces are faintly familiar, but I can recall the names of only nine . . . I suppose that party may have cost as much as $1 a couple—surely no more."

In a philosophical vein, he continues, "These pictures recall a much smaller college and a decidedly more simple life. We took our responsibilities seriously but had fewer doubts and fears than have many of the present generation. Neither we nor our parents had ever experienced a world war. In fact, we knew little about the world as we now think of it. Most of us were certain of the kind of lives we were going to lead. All of us may not have followed the courses that we envisioned, but most of us have had the satisfaction of playing a part in an amazing drama."

In a letter to us, Mr. Collingwood says, "The four who anticipated the Mack Sennett bathing beauties are shown on the shores of Pine Lake . . . in the early summer of 1908 or 1909." The boy on the left is Meredith Randall, w'12. The other boy is Charles Forster, w'11. Who are the girls?

These basketball players constituted the mainstays of the teams for 1901-1902-1903. Their 11-game winning streak included a victory of 102 to 3 over Alma College. Coaches were George E. Denham and Chester L. Brower.

Kerbawy Reports: Hawaii Is Wonderful

To a person, the crowd of some 18,000 stood as the University of Hawaii band played the familiarly-solenn Aloha Oe. The scene: Honolulu, Hawaii, stadium.

On the field, Green and White-clad Spartans of Michigan State College and the Green-suited Rainbows of Hawaii were shaking hands and exchanging comment.

Michigan State had just administered one of the worst defeats the University of Hawaii suffered in 25 years of playing mainland football teams. Final score: M.S.C. 58, Hawaii 19.

Thus was reached the climactic point of the longest trip in the history of intercollegiate football.

Long Trip Gets Under Way

The never-to-be-forgotten 9,000 mile trip to Hawaii commenced at 6:30 a.m. on November 26 when a party of 49, including 34 players, assembled for breakfast in the student union building on the MSC campus. Three hours later, they climbed aboard a DC-4 plane in Battle Creek enroute west to Los Angeles.

The night was spent within the elegant surroundings of the Miramar Hotel in Santa Monica. It was here the Spartans checked their top coats with tropical weather now their lot.

Thanksgiving day found the squad leaving Los Angeles airport in two separate flights across the Pacific.

A warm Hawaiian reception greeted both flights which arrived about two hours apart. There were over 1,500 persons on hand when the first flight settled at the Honolulu airport at 8:47 p.m., November 27.

As the Spartans walked down the steps from their plane, they were greeted by strains of the MSC Fight song, played by the University of Hawaii band. Cheers rose from the receiving crowd. A bevy of about 50 University coeds, each armed with the Hawaiian lei, moved in to decorate the visitors. MSC alumni residing in Hawaii were prominent in the crowd. Handshakes and greetings were profuse.

The Spartans were whisked by motorcade to the lush Royal Hawaiian hotel, situated on the famed Waikiki Beach. Here was to be their home for the next five nights.

Not losing sight of the reason for coming to Hawaii, Coach Biggie Munn and his staff confined the players to the hotel and its extensive grounds heavy with palm trees and other growth.

After the game, November 29, a reception and dance at the Royal Hawaiian was the first social item on the agenda for the players. Free pineapple juice in the lobby of the hotel, any type of foods that could be had just for the asking, special dance entertainment for benefit of the "visitors," swimming, surfboard and outboard rigger riding, and sailboating all were now declared "in bounds."

A reception by MSC alumni for visiting college officials highlighted activities on November 30.

Departing December 2 for home, the Spartans were held over an extra day at the Miramar Hotel by reports of bad flying weather.

The air trip enroute and return was near perfect. The flights over the Pacific were "smooth as glass" while enroute home only brief spells were encountered of slightly rough weather.

Great Field Expected For MSC Relays

By W. NICHOLAS KERBAWY

Sports Editor

Michigan State College again this winter will become the mecca for the nation's leading collegiate indoor track and field stars.

On Saturday, February 7, the twenty-sixth running of the Michigan State Relays will take place in Jenison Field-house. One month later, on Saturday, March 6, the Central Collegiate Conference will assemble for its twenty-first meet.

It was just a year ago that a crowd of 5,489 persons attended the Silver Anniversary of the Michigan State Relays and watched brilliant performances that resulted in the establishment of 12 new records in the 18 events. The all-time record field of athletes totaled 517 entries from 31 colleges and universities.

No team scoring is installed in the Relays, but championships are determined in each of the 18 individual events.

Michigan State's own Fred Johnson, now a sophomore, featured last year's show. Johnson hung up a mark of 24-feet, 6 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches in the broad jump and an 8.5-second trial heat in the 75-yard low hurdles. Both are records.

Jerry Thompson, of Texas, plans to return this year after establishing a two-mile record of 9:21. Bill Porter, of Northwestern, also will be on hand to show how he set the 75-yard high hurdles record last year in 9.1-seconds.

Other 1947 record breakers: Bill Mack, of Drake, mile run, 4:20; Charles Fonville, of Michigan, shot put, 52-feet, 1 $\frac{1}{4}$ -inches; Bob Richards, of Illinois, pole vault, 13-feet, 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ -inches; Bill Shuman, of Penn State, 1,000 yards run in 2:19.1; Bob Schepers of Michigan State, Tom Boswell of Illinois and Charley Park of Texas, all of whom paced their trial heats in the 75-yard dash in 7.6 seconds. Sprint medley relay by Illinois (Vranek, Cook, Shuman, Rehberg) in 3:32.5; 240-yard shuttle hurdle relay by Ohio State (Wright, Seibert, Maxwell, Duff) in 29.7 seconds; University one-mile relay by Ohio State (Cogswell, Little, Porter, Whitfield) in 3:22.6.

Alumni and friends are urged to mark February 7 as a date for attending the Michigan State Relays here in East Lansing, and March 6 for witnessing the Central Collegiate Conference indoor track and field meet for which Michigan State will be the defending team champion. The Spartans won this latter meet last year by piling up 54 points to Notre Dame's 38.5 while Drake University was third with 29.5.

Looking Back At 1947

Michigan State College's own version of the "new look" began to take shape in athletics during the year 1947.

Coach Biggie Munn's football team finished with an impressive 7-2 won-lost record. It was Munn's first year on the East Lansing campus after a term at Syracuse university.

National Collegiate championships were won by Spartans in three different sports. On deck to defend their titles in 1948 will be Chuck Davey, 135-pound boxing champion; Gale Mikles, 155-pound wrestler and George Hoogerhyde, who annexed the NCAA 1,500-meters swimming crown.

The Spartans proved to be one of the nation's power-houses both in track and swimming. Indoors, they annexed their first Central Collegiate Conference track championship in 13 years by amassing 54 points to Notre Dame's second-place total of 38 $\frac{1}{2}$. A record field in the Silver Anniversary observance of the Michigan State Relays found the Spartans romping off with a pair of record-shattering championships. A total of 12 marks fell during the meet.

Fred Johnson and Jack Dianetti, both freshmen, were standout performers on the cinders. Johnson hung up a Relays mark of 24-feet, 6 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches in the broad jump and an 8.5 second record in the 75-yard low hurdles. He was the individual high scorer of the IC-4A championships, accounting for 14 of Michigan State's 25 points that placed the Spartans second to title-winning NYU's 36 points.

Michigan State's swimming team won eight out of 10 dual meets and the CCC diadem for the fifth straight year. The team placed fourth among 22 schools in NCAA competition.

Elsewhere on the Spartan athletic front—Coach John Kobs' baseball team lost its first and only game in two years of southern barnstorming and finished with a season 16-8 record.

Eight Spartan players were signed by organized baseball clubs during the year.

The wrestling team won seven and lost three, boxing had a 4-2 record, basketball 11-10, fencing 5-3, tennis 11-6, cross country 3-1. Golf produced the only losing season, dropping six and winning four

Annual Grid Bust Features Awards

"I can't ever remember when I've been happier in coaching, or when I've experienced a football season that was more pleasant."

Thus did Coach Clarence L. (Biggie) Munn speak to his Michigan State College football squad which tied the Green and White ribbon around the most successful season in a decade.

Or, as one prominent college official stated, "The best all-around season for football in the history of the school."

The occasion was the annual grid bust. Varsity and junior varsity players seated themselves among members of the coaching staff, the athletic council, press and radio men. The menu featured buffalo meat, a delectable dish.

Extremely palatable were the awards. Voted by his mates as the team's "most valuable" was Warren Huey, 19-year-old veteran end from Punxsutawney, Pa. The citation gave him the "Governor of Michigan" award, a handsome gold watch appropriately inscribed with the name of Kim Sigler, Governor of Michigan.

Huey has been a Spartan mainstay ever since he broke into the lineup during the 12-7 victory over Pittsburgh in 1945. He's been there ever since, and while he's distinctly the reticent type, it might be well to state here that it'll take plenty to move him out of that left end position next fall. Warren will be going after his fourth varsity award during his senior year.

McCurry Again Named Captain

ing Robert B. McCurry captain of the 1948 team. Actually, McCurry has held three captaincies, for in 1946, when the Spartans were led by captains named for the separate games, McCurry was elected honorary co-captain of the team, along with Ken Balge, at the end of the season.

McCurry, a center, was presented an electric mantel clock by his coaches.

A new award, destined to become an annual presentation, was given to Tackle Pete Fusi for "lending the most humor to the squad." It was voted by the coaching staff.

Fusi's award? An oil can!

"Your school is proud, your coaching staff is proud and you have every right to be proud of yourselves. Next year will be a big one, starting right off with the game against Michigan dedicating our new stadium," said Coach Munn.

Michigan State's 7-2 won-lost record was compiled as follows:

MSC	OPP.
0 Michigan	55
7 Mississippi State	0
21 Washington State	7
20 Iowa State	0
6 Kentucky	7
13 Marquette	7
28 Santa Clara	0
14 Temple	6

Swimmers After CCC Crown

Michigan State College's swimming team will seek its sixth consecutive Central Collegiate Conference championship when schools gather March 19 and 20 here in East Lansing for the sixth annual CCC meeting.

Last year, the Spartans won all 10 events, six by record-shattering performances, to amass a total of 102 points. Wayne University edged out University of Cincinnati, 31 to 30, for second place among the nine competing schools.

Coach Charles McCaffree's Spartan natators currently are involved in a schedule as follows: Jan. 10, Purdue; Jan. 14, at Bowling Green State U.; Jan. 17, Intra-Squad meet; Jan. 30, at Wayne; Feb. 6, at Iowa State; Feb. 7, at Nebraska; Feb. 14, Indiana; Feb. 20, at Cincinnati; Feb. 27, at Wisconsin; March 5, Michigan; March 19, 20, CCC; March 26, 27, NCAA at Ann Arbor; April 2, 3, National AAU at New Haven, Conn.

GRIDMEN DINE AT BUST—Reading clockwise around the table starting with plaid-coated Ed Bagdon are George Guerre, Steve Sieradzki, Ken Balge, Mark Blackman and Bob Schaibly.

Alumni In Hawaii Celebrate Spartan Football Invasion

The RECORD is indebted to Lt. Col. Robert G. Platt, '39, for a complete story on the alumni gathering in far-off Honolulu, in connection with the Spartan football victory over the University of Hawaii, on November 29.

Platt reports: "Just a few lines to let you know of the latest developments among the State grads over here. By the time this reaches you President Hannah, the squad, coaches and other officials will have returned to East Lansing and you will have learned all about the trip. The game, altho rather one-sided, was interesting, and we were very successful in our efforts to have a Michigan State cheering section. The Punahou High School band consented to assume the mantle of the 'official Michigan State band' and met the team at the airport and did a marvelous job at the game. They played the Fight Song and Alma Mater and even helped in cheering our team along.

"Although the M.S.C. alumni are not strongly organized here, we did manage to have nearly 50 people present for a Sunday reception November 30, at the Officers Club at Fort Shafter. President Hannah made a fine talk, and we met all the coaches and others in the official party. It was good to see so many familiar faces. Among those attending the party I noted the following: Lt. General and Mrs. Hull, (Commanding General, U. S. Army, Pacific); Maj. General H. Decker, Deputy Commander; Col. and Mrs. D'Elisey, Director of Athletics, Univ. Hawaii; Prof. and Mrs. C. B. Minneapolis Plans Annual Meeting

Richard Reeves, '40, president of the M.S.C. Alumni Club of Minnesota, has announced that the annual meeting will be held at 3:00 p.m. Saturday afternoon, January 31, in the Building for Continuation Study at the University of Minnesota campus. After dinner the group

Columbus, Ohio, Organizes

A new Michigan State College Alumni Club of Columbus, Ohio, came into being at the Neil House, in Columbus, December 5, when Glen O. Stewart and his assistant, Joseph K. Gaundie, Jr., met with an enthusiastic group of grads and former students.

Those of us present were indeed happy to have these alumni office men present and immediately decided that at least two or three meetings a year in or near Columbus would be a fine thing for the Michigan State crowd. All present voiced the approval of establishing an alumni club, electing officers and, as soon as possible, mailing each person a list of Spartan alumni in the area.

Chosen for the first officers were Dr. Glenn W. Dell, '20, Auditorium Building, Newark, president; Mrs. O. H. Cleveland (nee Leta H. Hyde, '09), 1842 Andover Rd., Columbus, vice-president; and R. Clark Dawes, '31, 91 W. Riverglen Drive, secretary-treasurer. Anyone living within driving distance of Columbus should contact one of the above officers about future club meetings.—R. Clark Dawes, '31, secretary.

Flint Hears Munn

The M.S.C. Alumni Club of Flint honored "Biggie" Munn and the five Flint boys on the Spartan varsity team at a big dinner meeting held in the dining room of the Home Dairy on December 12. More than 185 men and women attended the party, including many new alumni in the area.

Patrick Fagan, '41, opened the meeting and presented M. B. Crossman, sports editor of the Flint Journal, who served as toastmaster for the evening.

Glen O. Stewart, '17, brought greetings from the campus and lauded the new coaching staff for the excellent work done not only in finishing a .777 percentage season but for assisting and re-building a new Michigan State spirit. Bob Reynolds, local radio announcer, told of his interest in the Michigan State team, particularly with so many Flint boys on the roster. Short informal talks were made by Guy Huston, coach of Northern high school; Howard Auer, coach of Central high school, and four Spartan varsity players, George Guerre, Lynn Chandnois, Pete Fusi and Rex Parsell.

Coach "Biggie" Munn told about the 1947 season but spent most of the time discussing the Hawaiian trip, showing movies of the game and a travelogue film depicting the entertainment given the Spartan squad.—Karl D. Streiff, '45, secretary, 2569 Thomas ave., Flint.

M.S.C. Alumnus Owns Largest Mortgage Firm

Another Michigan State alumnus has reached the peak! This time we honor T. J. Bettes, class of 1912, president and owner of the T. J. Bettes Company of Houston, Texas—recognized by many to be the largest individually owned mortgage company in the United States. The Bettes company now has nine offices in three southwestern states and averages over $1,000,000 in loans each week.

Four of the nine offices are located in Texas, and 150 employees work in the Houston office alone. Altogether more than 400 people are employed by Mr.

T. J. Bettes, '12

Bettes is servicing more than 30,000 current loans which total in excess of $100,000,000.

A native of Grand Rapids, Bettes conducted successful mortgage operations in Atlanta, Georgia, up to 1923, and in

Owens 1,000 Acre Salad Bowl In Florida's Everglades

When she was very young Ruth Springer Wedgeworth pulled an occasional weed from her father's garden in Eaton Rapids, Michigan—but only under protest. To her gardening was a distasteful chore. Today it's a different story. On her large farm in the Florida Everglades at Belle Glade she grows vegetables by the hundreds of acres. She measures production by carloads, not by bushels. Quite a jump for the Ruth Springer who enters Michigan State College with the class of 1925 to study home economics. Mrs. Wedgeworth was a reserved co-ed who hoped to become a hospital dietitian or a bacteriologist, until one morning she looked up from a laboratory bench in the old chemistry building (now the physics laboratory) into the eyes of Herman Hamilton Wedgeworth. He was a Mississippian doing graduate work in plant pathology. When he left East Lansing to return to Mississippi State College, she went with him as his wife. From Mississippi they went to Cornell, and then, in 1930, to Belle Glade where he began a new phase of work in plant pathology at the Everglades Experiment Station.

At that time the 'Glades were covered with sawgrass, willows and elder trees. Early settlers had drained portions of the huge swamps and attempted to control the water level. The muck soil was tremendously fertile, but mineral deficiencies handicapped farmers. Mr. Wedgeworth worked with Dr. R. V. Alli-

Dallas from 1923 to 1928. After 17 years in Houston he says: "As long as I have been acquainted with Houston I have considered property here a sound investment. True, prices are up, but so are they in every growing city. Houston property has long been a good buy—it still is and I think it will be for a long time."

Having assumed mortgages on Houston buildings ranging from a few thousand dollars on a modest cottage to 4½ million dollars on a modern Houston skyscraper, he closes real estate transactions with characteristically efficient mildness. The nature of his business and its great volume have made him one of the best informed men in Houston—and in the South—on real estate, mortgage and insurance affairs.

son and they soon discovered that the yellowing and failure of beans on sawgrass soils could be prevented by manganese sulphate, either through spraying or by incorporation into fertilizers.

F. Emory Sharp of Bradenton, one of Florida's best known growers, recalls vividly the trying days Mrs. Wedgeworth faced after her husband's death in October, 1938. By then the Wedgeworths had become vegetable growers on a big scale.

Mrs. Wedgeworth, dark-haired, small and slender, makes the whole complex business seem as simple as operating a country store.

Today, in addition to growing carloads of vegetables, she packs and markets her neighbors' crops. She has her own fertilizer and insecticide mixing plant, a packing house covering 48,000 square feet, and a precooling plant. More than 1,500 carloads of vegetables are shipped from her plant each year.

Farming is not her only interest. Mrs. Wedgeworth has served as a delegate to the State Democratic Convention, is a director of the Everglades National Bank and the Everglades Memorial Hospital. She keeps her interest in Michigan State College through her son George who is a sophomore in Agricultural Engineering. One of her daughters, Helen Jean, is married but the 14-year-old Barbara is still with her mother.

M. M. Cory, Veteran Engineering Prof, Nearing Retirement

M. M. Cory, professor of electrical engineering at Michigan State College since 1916, is going to Boston this month for a Tau Beta Pi conference and to ride a train.

Trains are good, solid observation posts of engineering technique and a graduate engineer could do a lot worse than fit his theory to practice by getting a look at the inner workings of a train.

That's just one of the ideas that Professor Cory has picked up over the years. Forty-six thousand members of Tau Beta Pi, national engineering honorary, have elected him president for 1948. He previously served as advisor to the Michigan State College chapter for 20 years.

Retirement for Prof. Cory will be the beginning of another part of an active life. His presidency of Tau Beta Pi entails wide travel, conferences, speeches.
