MICHIGAN STATE COLLEGE

A Letter From The President . . .

TO THE ALUMNI OF MICHIGAN STATE COLLEGE:

Over a period of more than a year, you have been reading open letters from the deans of the several schools, and I am sure that from them you have gained new appreciation and understanding of the college to which we all owe so much.

As an alumnus I share your pride that Michigan State is becoming better and more favorably known throughout the nation, year by year. Truly, a tremendous amount has been accomplished for the good of Michigan and America in the 94 years since the Legislature established this institution.

College Looks to Bright Future

But what has been done is history, and no institution can long thrive on its record. It must ever concentrate on its day-to-day accomplishments while keeping an eye on the future. That Michigan State is never content with past accomplishments but is always diligent in self-improvement and in searching out new opportunities to be of service is one of its finest and best traditions. When we celebrate the centenary a few years hence, what we do in the next six years will be a better indicator of the vitality of Michigan State College than what has been accomplished in the 94 years that are now history.

I can promise you that the faculty and administrative officials will continue doing their best in the interests of the college and those it serves, but alumni, too, have their responsibilities. Many of you have often heard me say that alumni of publicly-supported universities have responsibilities beyond those of other alumni, for they owe an obligation to the taxpayers who have financed a substantial portion of the cost of their educations.

Alumni Play Important Role

If we believe in the philosophy that every young man and woman of talent deserves being educated to the limit of his or her ability to absorb useful knowledge—and that belief is the very foundation stone of public education—then alumni of an institution such as ours are obligated to help hold the doors of opportunity open to succeeding generations.

They are obligated to defend with vigor the system which gave them their chance for higher education, and they are obligated to help search out the youngsters of outstanding ability or promise and see to it that they take advantage of the opportunities open to them.

By approving a scholarship program commensurate with the size of the post-war Michigan State College, the State Board of Agriculture has made it possible for at least one outstanding graduate of every approved high school in Michigan to enter the college each year with the knowledge that so long as his academic work justifies it, he will be excused from paying course fees.

This plan has been put into operation for the sole purpose of making the advantages of higher education available to more young men and women of ability irrespective of their parents' financial condition. It will pay dividends in the form of better citizens.

To be fully successful, the plan must have the active support of Michigan State College alumni throughout the state. I urge you to seek out suitable candidates for these scholarships, and encourage them to apply.

But your interest in the quality of the student body at East Lansing should not end there. I urge you to direct the attention of all outstanding young people to Michigan State and what it has to offer them. You will be doing them a service as well as the college, for we can truthfully say that the quality of training available here is comparable to that offered anywhere in the nation.

I have no compunctions about asking you to urge outstanding athletes that are good students to enroll at MSC. Were I concerned only to see that Spartan teams do well in competition, I could be criticized justifiably. But at Michigan State, where intercollegiate athletics are an incidental part of the educational process and not a separate money-making enterprise, athletes are looked upon simply as young men of exceptional promise who will profit more than the average student from a college education.

Seek Outstanding Students

But we are no more interested in athletes than we are in other young people of outstanding promise—musicians, orators, scholars, and those with unmistakable earmarks of potential leadership in all fields of honorable human endeavor. Many such will gravitate to Michigan State naturally, but more must be recruited if the quality of our students is to keep pace with the quality of the opportunities available to them here. We depend on our alumni to be our most effective advocates.

Finally, I would ask that you keep yourselves informed as to the plans and the needs of Michigan State College for the years ahead. Be prepared to answer the questions of those interested in your Alma Mater, be prepared to tell them what it is that your college does in the service of the people of Michigan, and what it needs to do even better in the years ahead.

Old in years but young in spirit, Michigan State College can look to the future with the fullest confidence provided it receives the full support of those who have received so much of benefit from her.

— John A. Hannah.

Record Attendance Expected for 1949 Alumni Day

By JOHN C. LEONARD

An estimated 1,200 MSC alumni will return to the East Lansing campus for a week-end of meetings, banquets, dances and reunions with old friends and school-mates June 3, 4, and 5. Registration will begin at 2 p.m. Friday in the Student Union and conclude Saturday morning.

Official Alumni Day is designated as Saturday, according to Tom King, alumni relations director, but alumni will have a full schedule from Friday noon to Sunday afternoon when they will watch a record class of approximately 3,000 students receive bachelor's and advanced degrees.

New Union to be Completed

Alumni headquarters this year will be in one of the most modern and completely equipped college union buildings in the nation. Addition during the past year of a four-story south wing and enlargement of portions of the present Union will be completed June 1, according to Leslie Scott, union manager. He added that cost of modernizing the building came to about $3,000,000.

During leisure moments students and alumni will have access to 16 bowling alleys, the Union cafeteria, ballroom, club rooms, and other facilities.

Week-end highlight for alumni will be the Patriarchs Club golden anniversary banquet which this year honors the class of 1899. President John A. Hannah will preside at the affair, scheduled for 12:15 p.m. Saturday. With the entrance of this new "freshman" class, Patriarchs now number 250. Also highlighting the week-end will be the Silver Anniversary banquet for the class of 1924. Other classes holding banquets in the new second floor dining rooms are 1895, 1904, 1909, 1914, 1919, 1929, 1934, 1939, and 1944. All other alumni will assemble in the Union ballroom for Saturday luncheon at 12:30 p.m.

Graduates Will View Baseball Games

On both Friday and Saturday alumni will watch the Spartan baseball team in action against Bradley University at Old College Field.

Alumni will also be on hand for the last two evenings of MSC's largest spring festival, "Water Carnival." Following the land-float parade Saturday morning will be the formal dedication of the MSC Student Union Building. Saturday evening alumni will carry out their own annual tradition, the "Alumni Dance," held in the Union ballroom at 9 p.m.

Eustace, Granger, Robb, Steere Woodbury Receive Alumni Awards

Five former students of Michigan State College will be honored at Commencement June 5 when they receive the 1949 Alumni Awards for Distinguished Service, according to Tom H. King, director of alumni relations.

Scheduled to receive the awards are: Dr. Harry J. Eustace, '01; Dr. Christopher M. Granger, '07; Dr. Elda I. Robb, '16; Dr. Douglas V. Steere, '23; and Dr. Charles G. Woodbury, '04.

This plan of recognizing Michigan State's most outstanding alumni was instituted in 1946 by the Washington, D. C., MSC Alumni Club.

Dr. Eustace, now retired, is immediate past vice-president of the Farm Market Relations, Inc., San Francisco, Calif. He was head of the MSC Department of Horticulture from 1908 to 1919, and served for six years with the New York Experiment Station at Geneva. Dr. Eustace received his M.S. degree in 1911 and an honorary degree of doctor of agriculture in 1942, both from MSC.

Dr. Robb Is First Woman Honored

Dr. Granger, who is in charge of all national forests for the U. S. Forest Service, received an honorary doctor's degree in forestry from MSC in 1933. He served as a major with the forestry engineers of the AEF in World War I, and directed the government's Civilian Conservation Corps' reforestation program. He recently directed an inventory of the nation's forest lands and timber resources for the U. S. Government.

Dr. Robb, the first woman to be thus honored, received her M.A. from the University of California and her Ph.D. from Columbia University. At present Dean of Home Economics at Simmons College in Boston, Mass., Dr. Robb received an honorary doctor of science degree from MSC in 1947.

Dr. Steere Was Rhodes Scholar

A native of Harbor Beach, Dr. Steere received his A.M. and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard University and an A.B. from Oxford University in England on a Rhodes Scholarship. Former county 4-H club agent in Presque Isle County in 1923-24, he now heads the department of philosophy at Haverford College, Penn.

Dr. Woodbury received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from Michigan State and his doctor of science degree from Purdue University. He served with the Purdue Experiment Station for 14 years, the last three as station director. For many years, he has served as director of the raw products research bureau of the National Cannery Association.

The new "south wing" of the MSC Student Union will enlarge the building to twice its former size. The addition, which adds 21 new rooms, including a large main floor lounge, is scheduled for completion June 1 in time to accommodate the expected record attendance of returning MSC graduates for Alumni Day.

THE AFFAIRS OF STATE

The Zarichny Case

On March 5, the Michigan Supreme Court upheld for a second time Michigan State College's right to refuse to readmit James Zarichny as a student because of violation of campus regulations. The action of the college in December, 1948, came as a climax to more than two years of differences between the Mt. Morris senior and the college administration.

This was a case which attracted state and national attention, particularly after Zarichny was convicted of contempt by the Michigan Senate last year for refusal to state whether he was a member of the Communist Party.

Zarichny's troubles started in 1946 when the Student Council, popularly elected governing body of MSC students, refused recognition to a campus American Youth for Democracy group. Six members of the now defunct AYD, including Zarichny, defied the Council's ruling and continued campus operations.

In February, 1947, on strong recommendation by the Council, these students were placed on disciplinary probation, which restricted all extra-curricular activities. During the next few months, all of the students except Zarichny requested and received removal of the probationary status.

Zarichny continued to engage in non-academic activities, and in June 1947 his roommate complained that Zarichny was using their room for many activities, including distribution of Communist Party literature. In the spring of 1948 he was convicted of contempt by the Michigan Senate, but the college took no action, in spite of much unfavorable publicity, because Zarichny had not violated the rules of his probation.

On Dec. 6, 1948, Zarichny arranged and conducted a meeting featuring a speech by Carl Winter, leader of Michigan's Communist Party and one of 11 Communists under federal indictment. The meeting, attended by about 50 students, was held in the College House, owned by Peoples Church of East Lansing, and a favorite meeting place of students. Church officials, unaware of the true purpose of the meeting, protested to college officials on learning the facts.

In January, the Michigan Supreme Court, in a 24-hour consideration, threw out Zarichny's petition for reinstatement. In effect, this OK'ed the college's action as within its disciplinary powers, and as not depriving him of any constitutional rights.

BROTHER ACT AT MSC: Gov. Williams congratulates brother Henry on his graduation from college short course as Dean E. L. Anthony beams approval.

The Student Council, which originally brought action against Zarichny, refused to reconsider his case, and the Michigan State News, student newspaper, voiced agreement with an editorial "Zarichny Deserved Fate." The Michigan press unanimously endorsed Michigan State for its action.

Almost everyone was satisfied—everyone but Zarichny, the Young Progressives of America and the Civil Rights Congress of New York, which added Zarichny to its list of "persecuted" Americans, along with the 11 Communist leaders under federal indictment.

As far as the college is concerned, the case was closed when it refused to readmit James Zarichny last December.

New ROTC Officers

William L. Merrill, Jr., Sacramento, Calif. junior, has been named cadet colonel and commanding officer of the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Michigan State.

This was one of 47 student appointments to high posts made in the 2,500-man ROTC unit in March, according to Capt. R. W. Samuel, corps adjutant.

New cadet lieutenant colonels who will serve as regimental staff members with Merrill are: Robert Bristol, Battle Creek; Ernest Rajala, Kaleva; Edward Zbiciak, Flint; Jacob Refson, East Lansing; John Main, Birmingham; and Fred Burnett, John Hayes, Harold Robinson, Lawrence Till, and Douglas Wyllie, all of Detroit.

New Research Opens

A three-year program of research studies into the cultural background of the Great Lakes area, financed by a grant of $30,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation of New York, will begin soon at Michigan State College.

The project will seek to trace the historical, political, sociological and over-all cultural development of the area bordering the Great Lakes, both in the United States and Canada. This financial grant will give added impetus to the college's growing program in the field of social studies. During the past few years, Michigan State faculty members have conducted more than 30 localized studies along the general lines of the present project.

The fund will be administered by a special committee to be appointed by President Hannah. Although it is expected that MSC will conduct the major part of these studies, funds will be available to members of other institutions whose projects are approved by the committee. According to Dr. Russel B. Nye, head of the MSC Department of English, the research work will be carried on by the School of Science and Arts, under the direction of Dean Lloyd C. Emmons.

This endowment was included in the $35,777 in gifts and grants accepted March 2 by the State Board of Agriculture, governing body of the college. At the February meeting, $8,650 in gifts and grants was accepted for the college.

Same Old Story

It's still the man who pays—and college men are no exception! Findings in a recent survey conducted by Michigan State College journalism students show that male students spend nearly twice as much money as coeds.

Fifty students enrolled in advertising research classes found the average monthly amount spent by a male student to be $44.36—by a woman student, $27.41. This was exclusive of books, tuition, room and board.

Total amount spent by 905 students queried was $35,558.50, and research students estimated that Spartans spend approximately $1,000,000 per annum in the East Lansing-Lansing area.

Major purpose of the survey, which involved well over 170 stores, shops and eating establishments in the East Lansing-Lansing area, was to make available to businessmen in a college community facts about their present and potential customers.

Faculty Affairs

Michigan State College faculty members continued to distinguish themselves during the past two months, with advancements to national positions and winning of high awards in their various fields.

The Jackson Dawson medal for outstanding work in horticulture was awarded recently to Dr. H. B. Tukey, head of the MSC Department of Horticulture. The honor, one of the nation's top horticultural citations, was given to the college scientist for skill in hybridization and propagation of hardy, woody plants.

Tukey

Dr. Judson T. Landis, of the MSC Department of Sociology and Anthropology, and his brother, Dr. Paul H. Landis, chairman of the Division of Rural Sociology at Washington State College, have completed revision of their book, "Social Living." The book, published in 1938, has become one of the leading high school sociology texts in the nation.

Recently elected secretary-treasurer of Sigma Delta Psi, national athletic honorary society, was Dr. Randolph W. Webster, chairman of graduate studies in the Department of Physical Education at MSC. Dr. Webster, who has been on the MSC faculty since 1946, has gained national prominence as a speaker, and has written numerous articles dealing with physical education which have appeared in leading athletic magazines.

Student Affairs

Nearly 15,000 students returned to Michigan State College for the final term in the 1948-49 school year after a week's vacation. At the end of winter term 450 students received degrees, including 379 undergraduates and 61 graduate students.

In addition, approximately 325 short course students participated in graduation exercises held in the MSC Fairchild theater Friday afternoon, March 4. Highlight of the day was the commencement address delivered by Governor G. Mennen Williams. Later in the afternoon Gov. Williams watched his brother Henry, who owns a ranch at Glenwood, Colo., receive a diploma for completion of study in dairy manufacturing.

During March and April students attended numerous all-college social functions. Capacity audiences heard and liked the Robert Shaw Chorale which appeared April 4 on the MSC lecture-concert series. Final concert for the 1948-49 season is to be the Metropolitan Opera soprano, Nadine Conner, April 20. Students also attended their own musical comedy production, "No Need for Knowledge" presented by the Dionysians April 6, 7, 8, and 9.

Highlighting the dance program for spring will be "Mardi Gras" and the Senior Ball. Another popular and active center during the spring quarter is the MSC Bandshell where students and faculty listen to open air concerts by the MSC concert band. Tentatively set for the latter part of May is the tenth annual Fraternity Sing sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega. Sigma Chi, winner of the event for the last two years, will be aiming for number three and permanent possession of the APO Fraternity Sing trophy.

The MSC Student Council, in cooperation with the Lansing-Ingham County health department, is completing health inspection of East Lansing eating establishments. Bud Houfek, Appleton, Wis. senior, chairman of the council health committee, announced names of eating places approved by the inspection committee, and urged students to patronize only restaurants which carried the blue "approval" door sign.

Anthony Ends Drought

Dean of Agriculture E. L. Anthony finally vindicated his school by winning the third annual Dean's Milking Contest at Farmers' Frolic, held Feb. 5 in the MSC livestock pavilion. After a two-year drought, Anthony redeemed himself by extracting four and one-half pounds of milk in three minutes to beat five other department heads.

Dean Anthony denied that he won because he had drawn an unusually cooperative cow. "I have modestly kept in the background in previous contests," he said, "because I felt my agriculture background gave me unfair advantage."

Close behind was Engineering Dean L. G. Miller, and last year's winner, Dean of Students S. E. Crowe. Other deans entered in the contest were C. S. Bryan, D. R. Rodney and L. C. Emmons, who was struck by misfortune when his cow kicked the bucket.

"Mothers" In Demand

"Mother's Day" may be a little late this year for men living in fraternity and cooperative houses at Michigan State College, but these students have an "eye out" for someone to call "mother" the rest of their college careers.

A new ruling, scheduled to go into effect this September, will put house mothers into all off-campus living units for the first time in college history. Faculty representatives have not been a necessary item for the 38 years since the Hesperian Society built the first off-campus house.

When the new regulation was announced last April, the various houses began remodeling and looking for suitable ladies to occupy the "maternal suites." But after a year of casting about by 28 fraternity and co-op houses, it seems that locating "mothers" to meet both student and administrative approval is not a simple task. Thus far, according to Counselor for Men Dale Faunce, only eight of the 21 fraternities and none of the cooperative houses have secured house mothers.

More than willing to jump the gun on the May 8 observance, these students are earnestly seeking someone to be a social hostess and "take the place of a mother" in their houses. She should be 40-65 years of age, preferably a college graduate, but most important of all, she should be understanding, tolerant, and capable of providing stimulation for sound social living, Faunce said.

As the deadline approaches, these Michigan State students have made every day "Mother's Day," and they hope to see their ideal materialize prior to September 19.

On The Cover . . .

Are 60 members of the MSC Men's Glee Club, under Director David Machtel, singing their version of "MSC Shadows," which may well be Michigan State's new Alma Mater. Written by Barney Traynor in 1927 while he was Spartan line coach, "MSC Shadows" polled a popular student vote of 6,087 of the total 11,383 ballots cast. The present school song, adopted in 1907 as the college's first Alma Mater, placed second with 2,070 votes. Final administrative approval is expected in late April. The election, held March 28-30 on the Spartan campus, culminated a growing agitation among students for the past two decades to secure an "original" Alma Mater. Photo by John L. Beech.

MSC Makes Major Administrative Changes

Dr. Herman J. Wyngarden has been appointed dean of the School of Business and Public Service, replacing Dean Dorsey R. Rodney who will retire July 1 after 12 years service with MSC. The appointment was one of the major administrative changes approved March 2 by the State Board of Agriculture.

Other action included appointments of Dr. Clifford M. Hardin as director of the Agricultural Experiment Station; Dr. Charles C. Killingsworth as head of the Department of Soil Sciences; Dr. Lloyd M. Turk as head of the Department of Economics; and the naming of Dr. Milton E. Muelder as head of the newly-created Department of Political Science and Public Administration. All appointments are effective July 1.

Dean Rodney to Retire

Dean Rodney was commandant of the college ROTC for six years, and served as coordinator of military affairs prior to his appointment as dean in 1944. He was an officer in the U. S. Army for 40 years after graduation from West Point in 1903. Final retirement for Dean Rodney will be in July, 1950, following a year's leave, at which time he will become Dean-Emeritus of the school.

Dr. Wyngarden came to MSC in 1924, and has been head of the economics department since 1943. Graduated from the University of Washington, he holds M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Michigan.

Dr. Hardin, who received his B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. degrees from Purdue University, joined the MSC staff in 1944. He was named assistant director of the Agricultural Experiment Station in 1943.

Muelder to Return from Foreign Duty

Dr. Muelder is at present assistant director of the Division of Educational and Cultural Relations for the U. S. Military Government in Germany. A member of the MSC staff since 1935, Dr. Muelder received his bachelor's degree from Knox College, his M.S. degree from the University of Freiburg, Germany, and his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan.

Dr. Killingsworth, a national authority in the field of labor economics, has been on the MSC faculty since 1947. He received his B.S. degree from Missouri State College, his M.S. degree from Oklahoma A & M, and his Ph.D. degree from the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Turk, who will head the Department of Soil Science, came to Michigan State College in 1932. He received his B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Missouri.

Prof. Horn Voices Need for Added Research in Public School Building

Critical need for an intensive national research program in the field of public school building has been voiced by Prof. Carl M. Horn, director of continuing education at Michigan State.

Horn directed a week-long "Flying Classroom" study of school construction, and business, industry and education co-operation in February. Approximately 60 key public school administrators and architects from a dozen states took part in the flying field study in Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis. This was the fifth "Classroom" sponsored by MSC and directed by Horn.

On basis of the recent study and a month-long national tour last summer, Prof. Horn said: "No one seems to know exactly what is needed in school buildings, although a couple of billion dollars may be spent for this purpose in the next decade."

"There is a definite need for such a research program so that local communities, as well as states, may know exactly what type of buildings to construct for the greatest benefit to the whole community, serving both youth and adult populations, and at a cost the taxpayer will be able to pay," Horn said. This proposal was unanimously endorsed by members of the "Flying Classroom."

The research program would probably take two years to complete, and at cost of at least $1,000,000. Horn suggested that this money could be secured from several sources, but preferably through a private research endowment or the U. S. Office of Education.

MSC Ranked Tops In Nation In Landscape Architecture

The Michigan State College Department of Landscape Architecture and Urban Planning ranks first in the nation in enrollment, according to survey findings released by the American Society of Landscape Architects.

The department, which was organized in 1922, now has 130 students enrolled in landscape architecture courses, according to Harold W. Lautner, campus landscape architect. He added that 26 students will be graduated during 1948-49, the highest number of majors in landscape architecture of any school in the country.

The survey rated enrollment of between 25 and 30 leading landscape architecture schools in the nation, Lautner said. Five others which ranked highest in the survey were: University of Illinois, 94 enrollment; Iowa State College, 81; University of California, 70; University of Georgia, 58; and the University of Wisconsin, 53.

MSC Friends of the Library Elect Russel Nye President

Dr. Russel B. Nye, head of the Department of English at Michigan State College, was elected president of the MSC Friends of the Library at a dinner meeting in East Yakeley Hall Feb. 17. He succeeds Col. John L. Whitelaw, formerly commanding officer of the Reserve Officers Training Corps at MSC, who resigned last September after being assigned to Trieste, Italy.

Other officers elected were Dr. W. O. Hedrick, first vice-president; Tom King, second vice-president; Dr. Irma Gross, third vice-president; Philip J. May, treasurer; and Jackson E. Towne, secretary.

New MSC Research Laboratories Will Give Insects a Rough Time

By W. Lowell Treaster

Some mighty unfavorable weather conditions are in store for bugs housed in the entomology laboratories at Michigan State College. They'll have to be prepared to brave temperatures ranging from torrid to frigid, with no galoshes or fur-lined overcoats furnished. If and how they survive these extremes will be of great importance to both Michigan food growers and consumers.

Will Provide Helpful Information

Included in the modern facilities of the new Natural Science building, now nearing completion on the campus, is a series of controlled temperature rooms especially designed for insect discomfort. Learning the facts about survival or death of harmful insects due to extreme weather conditions will make possible accurate prediction of insect invasions and abundance during growing season, and the devising of improved control methods.

"We're preparing to hit them where they're most vulnerable," Ray Hutson, head of the entomology department, promised in discussing the expanded insect study program at MSC.

Losses to Michigan crops from insects run into astounding figures, despite great progress during recent years in developing new sprays and other control methods. The bean maggot alone extracts approximately $1,000,000 from the bean output in the state each year, Dr. Hutson said.

Ice fishermen may find the corn borer and white grubs excellent bait, but they're only a pain in the pocketbook to the farmer. Guessing conservatively, white grubs grub $300,000 from the bill-folds of Michigan potato farmers in one year. Michigan muck farmers in particular have nightmares over the wire worms' inconsiderate habit of dining on the choice vegetables.

Opens Research in Many Fields

Even fishermen stand to gain from the soon-to-begin studies. When insects, which make up the major part of a fish's diet, disappear from the streams and lakes, so do the fish, and the angler wonders why his catches are so poor. With the proper selection of water bug species that will withstand Michigan weather extremes, the less hardy can be replaced by the stronger, to the delight of fish and fishermen.

A wide variety of insects, both harmful and beneficial, need concentrated study in relation to weather in Michigan, according to Dr. Hutson. He explained that work of this kind has been out of the question because of lack of facilities. Much headway, he believes, can now be made in checking the inroads insect pests make into production of Michigan food products and lending a helping hand to helpful bugs—thanks to the new Natural Science building.

Music Courses for High School Students Offered

The fourth annual School Music Special Courses for high school students will be held at Michigan State from June 27 to July 16, according to Prof. William R. Sur, director of the short course.

More than 250 aspiring musicians from high schools all over the state of Michigan are expected to enroll in the three-week session. A wide variety of courses will be offered, including instruction and practical experience in voice, band conducting, radio broadcasting, and all instruments used in band and orchestra performance. All students will participate in the specially organized band, orchestra or choir during their stay on the Spartan campus. Private lessons in all fields will also be available, Dr. Sur said.

The Music Department is also offering 26 courses, designed for school music teachers, during the first six-week summer session of the college starting June 21. All of these courses may be applied for college credit.

Job Security Rated High By High School Students

A majority of high school students would prefer to work where labor unions are allowed, a survey by the Social Research Service of Michigan State College has revealed.

In the study directed by Dr. Christopher Sower of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, 7,000 sophomores and seniors from 56 Michigan high schools were quizzed. The project was financed by a Michigan Bell Telephone Company grant and carried out in cooperation with the Communication Workers of America.

Fifty-nine per cent of the boys and girls would prefer to work where labor unions are allowed, although only nine per cent would like to work where union membership is compulsory and 17 per cent where labor unions are forbidden.

These students exhibited security consciousness, Dr. Sower said, with only eight per cent of the girls and 23 per cent of the boys preferring a job with high income but with little security.

Other conclusions reached in the study were: The typical student believes he will get ahead by working hard, and he wants to work, regardless of financial necessity; he prefers a boss who frequently checks employee's work, and allows employees to make many job decisions; and the average student wants a "white collar" job, although he does not necessarily expect to get it.

Forced Warm Air Meeting Attracts 250 Engineers

Approximately 250 leading mid-western engineers in the field of heating and ventilation participated in the eighteenth annual Forced Warm Air Conference held at MSC March 21-24. The conclave, believed to be the only one of its type in the nation, is sponsored by the School of Engineering.

Engineers gathered during the three-day meeting to discuss problems in heat losses, practice design of forced warm air heating and ventilating systems, and work out experimental problems in resistance and distribution from registers. Three prominent authorities, Charles O'Connor, president of Reichhold Chemicals, Inc.; Cyril Tasker, director of research for the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers; and C. H. Schuttenberg, Holcomb and Hoke Manufacturing Company, Indianapolis, Ind., discussed various phases of the field with members of the Conference.

Engineering Exposition To Be Held May 13-14

The School of Engineering will play host to more than 700 Michigan high school seniors, junior college students, and MSC alumni May 13 and 14 at the first annual Engineering Exposition, according to Harold P. Skamser, associate professor of engineering.

Main purpose of the Exposition, Skamser said, "is to acquaint students with the school, and to give alumni and other interested persons a chance to see the progress being made in the engineering program at Michigan State College."

Tours of the complete engineering plant have been arranged, and numerous displays, industrial movies, and new teaching facilities will be on display, Skamser said. The Exposition will mark official dedication of the new MSC Electrical Engineering building.

Spring Practice Starts Football 'Rolling'

Football again are spiralling through the air over Old College Field as Coach Clarence L. (Biggie) Munn and his aides direct more than 200 hopefuls through a six-week grind of spring training.

Practice began Monday, April 4, and will be climaxed Saturday, May 14, with the annual spring intra-squad game in Macklin Field stadium.

Six Home Games Scheduled

The current training session, according to Coach Munn, is probably the most important one in Michigan State history. A rugged nine game schedule, featuring some of the best teams of the nation, is on tap for next fall. The Spartans open against Michigan at Ann Arbor Sept. 24, followed by six home games on successive Saturdays against Marquette, Maryland, William and Mary, Penn State, Temple and Notre Dame, in that order. The last two games will be away from home, against Oregon State Nov. 12, and Arizona Nov. 19.

To insure a successful season, good replacements must be found for left halfback George Guerre, already assured a spot as one of the Spartans' all-time grid greats. Bob McCurry at center, Ends Warren Huey and Ed Sobczak, and many others. All other members of last year's outstanding team, including Capt. Hal Vogler, are expected to be on hand for the opening of the rugged 1949 football season.

Spartans Have Depth

As of now the battles for starting positions vacated by Guerre, McCurry, Huey and Sobczak are wide open, but top candidates include:

For Guerre's left halfback spot—Everett Grandelius, Bud Crane, John Poloncak, Jesse Thomas and possibly Horace Smith, all of last year's team, and sophomores Bob Ciolek and Allen Jones.

Michigan State, Southern California Will Clash for Mythical Track Title

By Fred Stabley

Michigan State versus Southern California in Los Angeles' huge Coliseum for the unofficial dual track and field meet championship of the United States!

That was to be the picture Saturday, April 16, as a direct result of the Spartans' amazing sweep of indoor track and field honors last winter.

Will Decide Mythical Champs

After Coach Karl Schlademan's thinclads had swept victorious through the Michigan AAU's, Michigan State Relays, IC4A championships at Madison Square Garden, New York, and the Central Collegiate Conference indoor meet, Southern California's athletic powers got busy.

They saw the dual meet of this or any other year in a contest between the Spartans, acknowledged national indoor champions, and their own team, perennial outdoor champions.

After much cross-country telephone and telegraph wire-burning, the meet was arranged and Schlademan made plans to fly a full team to the California city.

Schlademan wasn't kidding himself. He recognized, and said so, that in an outdoors meet with its numerous field events, the Trojans figured to win.

However, he also knew that in the running events from the quarter-mile through the two-mile and in the relays, his Spartans would look very good indeed. Schlademan also knew that the meet would bring the prestige of Michigan State in the track and field world to an all-time high. Few even attempt to challenge Southern California's supremacy any more, and the eyes of sportswriters and track followers all over the country would be on his team.

Schlademan's great hope is to get Southern California in an indoor meet at Jenison Fieldhouse perhaps next winter. There the Green and White clad Horace Smiths, Jack Dianettis, Bill Macks and Fred Johnsons would figure to stop the Trojans handily.

Double Header Cage Tilt Set For MSC Next Year

Doubleheader basketball bills are big attractions from New York's Madison Square Garden to San Francisco's Cow Palace, and now Michigan State plans to join the parade of sponsors.

Athletic Director Ralph H. Young has announced that next Dec. 28-29 the Michigan State Basketball Classic will be inaugurated. It will feature four outstanding college teams in two evenings of doubleheaders as follows: Dec. 28—Michigan State vs. Harvard; Ohio State vs. Cornell; Dec. 29—Michigan State vs. Cornell; Ohio State vs. Harvard.

No champion will be crowned but the games will give a good idea of the relative strength of the Western Conference and the Ivy League.

Next winter's Classic will be the inaugural of an annual series of such events to be staged regularly between Christmas and New Year's.

The best teams from various sections of the country are to be brought in for the action in Jenison Fieldhouse, where last year over 15,000 people were accommodated for the Michigan State-Kentucky basketball game.

Michigan State's outstanding schedule of home football games next fall has produced an early demand for tickets, according to Lyman L. Frimodig, athletic ticket director.

All former season ticket holders will receive a letter for renewal of seats from the athletic ticket office around May 1, Frimodig said. Regular alumni and all other persons wishing season tickets may procure reservations starting June 1.

Annual Spring Grid Game Is Scheduled for May 14

The Central Michigan Alumni Club of Michigan State College again will sponsor the annual spring game between selected squads of the Spartan varsity. Hugh Zweering, of Lansing, is general chairman.

The game is set for Saturday, May 14, at Macklin Stadium, with kick-off at 2 p.m. Special half-time entertainment is being planned and after last year's thrill-packed game, a record crowd is expected to attend.

MSC Spring Sports Schedule Includes More Than 80 Events

Spartan Sports Teams Rank High in Nation

Michigan State sports schedules for the spring term have been announced by Director of Athletics Ralph H. Young. During the next few months, the Spartans will engage in more than 80 athletic contests in baseball, track, tennis and golf.

Coach John Kobs' baseball team has carded 23 games in the regular season after completing a nine game southern tour. The Spartans open the home season April 15-16 with a two-game series against Iowa at East Lansing.

Other games at home will include: April 22-23, Northwestern; April 30, Wayne; May 6-7, Notre Dame; May 21, Michigan; May 30, Detroit; June 3-4, Bradley; and June 6, Western Michigan. Games away from home will be: April 26, Michigan; April 30, Western Michigan; May 11, Michigan Normal; May 13-14, Purdue; May 16-17, Wisconsin; May 23, Detroit; May 28, Notre Dame; and May 31, Wayne.

Track Team Has Full Schedule

The Spartan track team, rated as one of the top cinder aggregations in the nation, will be busy with an ambitious schedule of dual meets and championship events. The schedule includes: April 16, Southern California at Los Angeles, Calif.; April 23, Notre Dame, here; April 29-30, Drake Relays at Des Moines, Iowa; May 7, Ohio State, there; May 14, Penn State, there; May 21, Marquette, here; May 27-28, IC4A championships at New York; June 4, CCC meet at Milwaukee; June 17-18, NCAA match at Berkeley, Calif., and June 24-25, NAAU championships at Fresno, Calif.

Coach Ben VanAlstyne's golf team has 10 matches scheduled with some of the top teams in the Midwest. Home games include: April 19, Wisconsin; May 2, Michigan; May 7, Marquette and Detroit; May 13, Illinois; and May 20, Wayne. Away from home, the golfers will meet: April 16, Ohio State; April 30, Detroit; May 16, Notre Dame; May 24, Michigan; and in late June will take part in the NCAA tournament at Ames, Iowa.

Coach Frank Beeman's tennis team took a spring training trip into the "Deep South" and are now ready for the 14-game regular season. The home schedule is: April 23, Detroit; April 28, Michigan; May 21, Western Michigan; and May 23, Wayne. The Central Collegiate Conference will be held at Detroit June 1-3; the NCAA championships at Austin, Texas, June 15-19; and the East Collegiate Tennis Association at Montclair, N. J., June 25.

Football players Pete Fusi, tackle, and Ed Bagdon, guard, are expert puck chasers whom Michigan State ice hockey coach Harold Paulsen says he'd like to have on his team next winter.

Michigan State has competed in the Central Collegiate Conference swimming meet every year since the meet was originated in 1942 and has won the team title each time with record-breaking performances.

Spartan teams, averaging well over the .500 mark in winter sports competition, were ranked with the nation's leading teams in track, swimming, wrestling and boxing.

Karl Schlademan's thinclads proved themselves the finest track team in Michigan State history by sweeping through some of the nation's toughest competition to take the Michigan AAU championship, the Michigan State Relays, IC4A championship, and the Central Collegiate Conference indoor meet. In dual competition, the cindermen romped to an easy 79½-34½ victory over Ohio State, Western Conference co-champion.

Boxers Tie Wisconsin 4-4

Spartan swimmers chalked up eight wins and one loss, the latter being at the hands of Michigan, in addition to taking the CCC meet with 105 points against second place Wayne, who scored 30. The tankmen registered victories over Wisconsin, Toronto YMCA, Cincinnati, LaSalle, Iowa State, Bowling Green, Wayne and Purdue.

The boxing team, after losing three outstanding sophomore prospects due to scholastics and injuries, got off to a shaky start. Coach George Makris' boxers, however, improved enough to fight Wisconsin's "Battlin' Badgers," perennial national champions, to a 4-4 tie at East Lansing March 12. Previously, the Spartan mittmen had lost to LSU, Army and Maryland, while scoring victories over DePaul, Penn State and Minnesota.

Wrestlers Have 6-1-1 Record

Michigan State's wrestlers, runner-up in last year's NCAA competition, continued their winning ways with six victories against one loss, first in two years, and one tie. The Spartans dropped a 15-9 match to Iowa Teachers and were tied by Illinois 13-13, while defeating Kansas State, Ohio State, Purdue, Cornell, Purdue and Indiana.

The Spartan cage squad ended an erratic season with a record of nine wins and 12 losses. It was one of the few losing seasons in the 23-year coaching tenure of retiring Ben Van Alstyne. Forward Bill Rapchak tallied 29 points against Virginia Feb. 19 to set a modern scoring record and come within one point of equaling the all-time MSC scoring record.

The Spartan fencing team finished with a three won-five lost record, registering victories against Wisconsin, Detroit, and Northwestern. The gymnastics team, in its second season of competition, dropped five matches and tied one while scoring a single victory against Wisconsin.

Coach Karl Schlademan talks it over with Spartans' Bill Mack, left, and Jack Dianetti, acknowledged as two of the nation's top milers. Mack and Dianetti, who specialize in the distance events, are also members of the crack MSC two-mile relay team.

The pictures on this page came from a scrapbook which someone seemingly put together with care and preserved through many years. But it was found on a dump pile recently and brought to Miss Gladys Franks, alumni recorder, who passed it along to us. We are grateful to our unknown benefactors.

Where is your scrapbook? Can you be certain that it, too, won't be thrown away during some spring housecleaning? Why don't you send it to the College Historian, 432 Morrill Hall, M.S.C.?

Following Alumni Clubs

By Tom King

Alumni clubs continued to organize as winter blew its last hearty blast and spring returned to Michigan. To date there are 41 clubs now fully organized in Michigan, while out-of-state groups number 23.

Branch County Elects

Howard G. Minier, '31, was elected president of the Branch County MSC Alumni Association Feb. 17 at a dinner-meeting held at Coldwater. Sixty-three members of the newly formed group also elected Charles Hilton, '25, vice-president, and Edward Carpenter, '41, secretary-treasurer. Elected to the board of directors were Oscar Fischer, '40, Hale Pearce, '28, Gordon R. Schlubatis, '24, W. C. Whorley, '32, and B. B. Adams, '15. Donald L. Eppelheimer, '42, presided as chairman of the meeting.

Another new group, the Grosse Pointe chapter of MSC alumni, elected Tom Crowley, Jr., '47, president; Starr L. Wade, '29, vice-president; Joyce Schumann, '47, secretary; and Minard Mumaw, '41, treasurer.

Kinek Heads Montcalm Club

In another part of the state members of the MSC Alumni Association of Montcalm county elected Mike Kinek, '44, of Greenville, their president. Other officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Victor Beal, '28, vice-president; Mrs. Harold Christiansen, '40, secretary-treasurer. Elected to the board of directors were: James Lieffers, '41, John Ranger, '21, Thomas Pilkinton, '41, and Mrs. C. Homer Miel, '30.

Clark Heads St. Clair Group

In Port Huron, members of the St. Clair County Alumni Club elected Donald J. Clark, '47, president; Max E. Dalrymple, '40, vice-president; and Mrs. C. A. Ludwig, '44, secretary-treasurer. Elected directors were: J. E. Johnston, '39, Mrs. Donald E. DeMerritt, '41, H. B. LaFrance, '47, Mrs. George A. Hardy, William Brown, '35, Miss Margaret Stevenson, '31, Max F. Cheney, '24, Mrs. Walter Boughner, '26, and Mrs. George Peterson, '27.

At Cadillac the Wexford-Missaukee Alumni Club elected C. G. Dickinson, '27, president in the group's first meeting held March 7. Also elected were M. D. Porter, '36, vice-president; and Harry Wernert, '44, secretary-treasurer.

Large Meeting at Ionia

Louis E. Webb, '39, was elected president of the newly formed Ionia County Alumni Club. Sixty-three members who attended the meeting held Feb. 28 at Ionia, also elected Harold Lakin, '27, vice-president; Kenneth McKee, '42, treasurer; and Mrs. Fred M. Kidd, Jr., '39, treasurer. Members of the board of directors are as follows: Lawrence Smith, '38, Kenneth Schepers, '29, Richard Bird, '36, and John Wortman, '36.

New Clubs Forming

As many clubs elected officers and became permanently established, others set-up temporary boards for the purpose of organizing. At Manistee, where there are over 100 MSC graduates, temporary officers were elected until an organization meeting is set. They are Wayne Crampton, '21, president; Win Kuehl, vice-president; Robert Harper, '24, secretary; and Carl Pinney, '14, treasurer.

Organizational meetings were also held in Hastings, Ludington, Centreville, St. Johns, Reed City and Big Rapids, Plymouth, Hillsdale, Owosso, St. Louis, Fremont, Fowler, Charlotte, and Coldwater.

Many Gather in Detroit

The Alumni Club of Detroit and two Ohio alumni groups also held large meetings in February and March. Approximately 100 persons attended a Founder's Day Dinner and Dance held in the Masonic Temple in Detroit, Feb. 12. Principal speaker of the evening was President John A. Hannah, and Harry Wismer, '37, sports director for the American Broadcasting System, spoke on the athletic situation at MSC. President Hannah was also principal speaker at a meeting of Cleveland alumni held in the Carter hotel Feb. 26. Approximately 50 persons who were present elected Lee Tucker, '18, their president.

South Haven Has Banquet

In South Haven 120 members of the Allegan-Van Buren County Alumni Club listened to Spartan grid-men Forest Evashevski, Bob Flora and George Guerre at their annual alumni banquet held March 8. Mr. and Mrs. George Guerre were guests of the Calhoun County Alumni Club at its semi-formal cabaret style dance held Saturday evening, March 12, attended by approximately 100 couples.

Other clubs which held "busts" and parties were Tuscola county, Midland county, Jackson, and Bay City. All meetings featured speakers from MSC which included President John A. Hannah, Dean L. C. Emmons, of the School of Science and Arts, Coach "Biggie" Munn, and King, Worthington and Guerre of the MSC Alumni Office.

Loew Gets Top Position At Boston University

Dr. Earl Randall Loew, '29, discoverer of Benadryl, one of the first anti-allergic drugs, has been appointed head of the Department of Physiology at the Boston University School of Medicine.

Formerly an associate professor of pharmacology at the University of Illinois medical school, Dr. Loew has made important contributions to knowledge of gastro-intestinal activity, the relation between vitamin deficiency, and susceptibility to specific infections.

Dr. Loew Receives Porter Fellowship

After graduation from Michigan State College, Dr. Loew was research bacteriologist at Wayne University. He later joined the physiology department as an instructor, and in 1936 obtained a master of science degree. Receiving a Porter Fellowship in physiology in 1948-49, Dr. Loew earned his doctor of philosophy degree at Northwestern University. In 1941 he began research studies in physiology and pharmacology at Parke, Davis and Company, and it was here that he discovered anti-allergic properties of Benadryl and related compounds.

Dr. Loew's discovery of the anti-allergic organic compounds, together with research in progress, is leading toward the means of alleviating distressing symptoms of certain allergic conditions caused by specific pollen and protein allergies.
