E. B. More, '16, Member of State Board of Agriculture, Dies April 28

Ellsworth B. More, '16, who spent a lifetime in the service of Michigan, died April 28 in Olin Memorial Health Center at Michigan State College.

More, stricken with a heart attack ten days before as he and other members of the State Board of Agriculture conferred on college matters, was taken to the campus hospital. He remained in critical condition until his death.

Board Member Since 1948

More, 59, prominent southern Michigan businessman and civic leader, became a member of the board Jan. 1, 1948.

Active in civic and educational affairs since his graduation from Michigan State College in 1916, More was president of the Marshall, Mich., board of education for the past 24 years.

Was First Alumni Head

More was chairman of the Michigan State College Alumni Advisory Council from its organization in 1945 until he was elected to the State Board of Agriculture.

It was during his chairmanship that the Memorial Center plan to honor 341 Michigan State College students and alumni who died in World War II was instituted.

More was a member of the National and State Retail Furniture Associations; the Marshall Rotary Club and its first president in 1923; past commander of the Stanley Lamb Post, American Legion, Marshall; past commander of Knights Templar, Marshall; and vice-president of the Michigan Buyer's Association.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Merriman More, three brothers, four sisters, a daughter, Mrs. Paul Morgan, Detroit, and a son, Donald, a sophomore at MSC.

He was Calhoun County agricultural agent in 1918 and later an extension specialist before becoming a retail furniture merchant in Marshall.

Tribute Paid by Hannah

Pres. John A. Hannah, of Michigan State College, paid high tribute to More:

"It was typical of E. B. More that he was actively serving Michigan State College when he was stricken by his last illness, for he had devoted much of his time and energy to the college over a long period of years.

"He brought a unique combination of experience and interest to the State Board of Agriculture, and its decisions reflected his wide knowledge of the needs of the institution.

"It will be difficult to replace him; his counsel and support will always be missed."

Guerre, Ex-Grid Great, Quits Alumni Position

George Guerre, '48, assistant director of alumni relations since Jan. 1, 1949, and ex-Spartan football great, resigned to enter the insurance field.

Guerre

In the past year he has appeared at countless alumni gatherings all over the nation.

Guerre, a native of Flint, Mich., starred at left halfback for Michigan State from 1946, when he ranked 13th in the nation in offense, until 1948, when he played in the North-South game.

Michigan State Opens Summer School June 20

Summer academic and special workshop courses in all major schools have been planned for two six-week summer sessions at Michigan State College, according to Dean of Students Stanley E. Crowe, director.

Departments will offer a regular course schedule for undergraduate and graduate work, 15 special workshops and institutes, and a summer camp for student artists at Leland, Mich.

4,500 Enrollment Expected

Enrollment for the two sessions is expected to hit 4,500, the 1949 summer figure, said Dean Crowe, summer school director. Between 300 and 500 new students are expected, he said.

Summer session highlights will include the fourth annual Workshop in State and Local Government July 5 to 25. Educators and leading state and local politicians will study the pattern of Michigan governmental units before high school civics teachers and MSC students.

Nutrition Workshop Set

Economists will gather from all over the nation for the second annual Michigan State College Economic Workshop to be conducted during the second six-weeks summer session. Scholarships will be granted high school teachers of economics and social science.

Home economics staff members from other American colleges will participate in the Workshop in Advanced Nutrition July 10-21. Top dietitians from out-of-state hospitals, and MSC staff scientists will conduct the course.

Dates for the two sessions are June 20 to July 25 and July 26 to Sept. 2.

MSC Gives Scholarships to High School Graduates

Scholarships for the 1950-1951 school year have been awarded 375 high school seniors in 67 Michigan counties, the second annual series under a plan inaugurated in 1948.

Grants were awarded on the basis of honor scholastic average, financial need and good citizenship characteristics displayed in high school, according to Prof. A. J. Clark, chairman of the MSC scholarship committee.

Alben W. Barkley Is Commencement Speaker

By DON J. HOENSHELL, '50

Vice-President Alben W. Barkley will address the 92nd graduating class of Michigan State College in Commencement ceremonies in Jenison Fieldhouse June 4.

Will Address Largest Class

Barkley, the United States Senator from Kentucky whom Pres. Truman chose as his running mate in 1948, will speak before the largest graduating class in the 95-year history of the college.

The vice-president, a graduate of Kentucky's Marvin College in 1897, studied at Emory College, Oxford, Ga., and the University of Virginia before joining the Kentucky bar in 1901.

In Congress Since 1913

He was a county prosecuting attorney and county judge before beginning in 1913 his membership in the Congress of the United States. Majority leader of the Senate since 1937, Barkley as vice-president took over the gavel as presiding officer of the Senate in 1949.

More than 15,000 graduates, relatives and friends are expected to jam Jenison Fieldhouse for the ceremonies, officials predicted. Upwards of 70 percent of the Commencement class will be veterans, according to Registrar Robert S. Linton.

Will Award 4,102 Degrees

A total of 4,102 degrees will be awarded, with 566 of these being advanced degrees. This compares with the previous record graduation of 3,250 in 1949.

Honorary degrees will be awarded three outstanding figures in their fields, according to Dean Ralph C. Huston, of the School of Graduate Studies.

Dr. Max W. Gardner, '12, professor of plant pathology at the University of California, Berkeley, will receive an honorary doctor of science degree. Major General Donald A. Stroh, '15, retired U. S. Army officer, Washington, D. C., will be given the honorary doctor of laws degree and John W. Sims, '18, general manager of the Ohio Farm Bureau, Columbus, will receive the doctor of agriculture degree.

Alumni Day Saturday

Alumni—more than 3,000 strong—are expected to gather for pre-Commencement festivities June 2-4 and the traditional Alumni Day June 3.

Registration of alumni will begin Friday at 2 p.m. in the Union building and continue through the next morning, prior to a long list of reunion banquets beginning at 12:15 p.m.

THE VEEP: Will address Michigan State's largest graduating class.

Pres. John A. Hannah will preside at the annual dinner meeting of the Patriarchs' Club, composed of alumni who were graduated 50 or more years ago. The club membership is expected to climb over 300 with the addition this year of the class of 1900.

Henry V. Clark, retired minister of Clearwater, Kan., a graduate of 1878, will be awarded the Kedzie Cane as the oldest living graduate of Michigan State College.

Many Events Scheduled

Other classes which have scheduled reunions are 1895, 1925, 1905, 1910, 1915, 1920, 1925, 1930, 1935, 1940, and 1945. All class banquets will be in the second floor dining rooms of the MSC Union building, utilizing mainly the new west wing, completed last summer.

High point of student activity will be the three-day Water Carnival June 1-3, featuring an afternoon land float parade, and later an evening float sequence down the Red Cedar River.

Baseball games have been scheduled with Bradley University for Friday and Saturday afternoons on Old College Field, and alumni will top off Alumni Day at 9 p.m. with the Commencement-Alumni dance in the Union building.

Another Enrollment Mark

Michigan State set another all-time enrollment in April, when 14,644 students registered for the spring quarter. The figure compares with the previous spring enrollment high of 14,619 recorded in 1949.

MSC to Honor Five Distinguished Alumni

Five prominent alumni of Michigan State College will be honored at Commencement June 4 when they will receive the 1950 Alumni Awards for Distinguished Service, according to R. A. Turner, '09.

Scheduled to receive the awards are: Robert J. Baldwin, '04, East Lansing, retired director of the MSC Cooperative Extension Service; Jay S. Hartt, '15, Pierson, Mich., consulting engineer; Horace W. Norton, '03, Brattleboro, Vt., executive secretary and treasurer of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America; Dr. Thelma E. Porter, '21, chairman of the Department of Home Economics at the University of Chicago; and Howard C. Rather, '17, dean of the MSC Basic College.

First Awards Made in 1946

This plan of recognizing Michigan State's most outstanding alumni and faculty members was instituted in 1946 by the Washington, D. C., MSC Alumni Club.

Baldwin retired last year after 35 years service as extension director at Michigan State College. First head of the Service, he had directed its growth from three field agents in 1914 to nearly 280 in 1949.

Hartt has been consulting engineer for many of the nation's largest public utilities and transportation companies. In addition to other important companies, he has served as president of the Midland Utilities and Midland Realization companies of Chicago since 1945.

In addition to numerous positions held in the Holstein-Friesian Association of America during the past 20 years, Norton formerly headed the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Michigan Department of Agriculture. After graduation from MSC, he served for several years as assistant dean of agriculture.

Second Woman Honored

Dr. Porter, second woman graduate to be thus honored, received her B.S. degree from MSC in 1921, A.M. degree at the University of California and Ph.D. at the University of Chicago. In addition to service with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Dr. Porter directed the MSC Department of Foods and Nutrition from 1941 to 1944.

Dean Rather has headed the MSC Basic College since its institution in 1944. He has been on the MSC staff since 1920 and served as head of the Department of Farm Crops from 1928 to 1944.

THE AFFAIRS OF STATE

STUDENT AFFAIRS

Seniors were busy last month creating something for Michigan State College to remember them by.

Events, social, academic and those with a definite alumni wrinkle, were leading up to Commencement ceremonies in Jenison Fieldhouse June 4.

President John A. Hannah received seniors in the Union building May 23 and 24, and the traditional Senior Swing-out was held May 25. Lantern Night was on the last day of May.

June was to be the last lap for 4,102 undergraduate and graduate degree candidates, the largest graduating class in the history of the college.

The annual Water Carnival, with its float armada on the Red Cedar river, was to be launched for a three-day run June 1-3. Alumni Day, which would include the Alumni-Commencement dance, was scheduled for June 3.

As it must to all graduates, Commencement will come for 4,102 at Michigan State College June 4, in Jenison Fieldhouse.

Meantime, other students were astride new collegiate fads, riding them into the ground, and some thought up a few new ideas.

Karl Koths' masquerade was over. He decided to find if a man in feminine clothing could have an anonymous night on the town. He told bar patrons at Williamston that he was Carol Ann Smith, late of Oklahoma, visiting friends.

Jailed for the night, the married veteran had no comment.

Williamston officers theorized he was "too wrapped up in a psychology course at the college."

Three coeds tried to put the heat on nature with a sun lamp. Tanning their shoulders for the Spinster Spin, they got an overdose of artificial sun. Result: Three blistered, one hospitalized.

Students in late April were picking the Ugliest Man on Campus from a field of their strangely aspiring fellows. Each student paid one cent each for as many votes as he or she cared to cast, with the proceeds going to the Campus Community Chest.

One candidate, name of "Chops," wandered in and around every nook and cranny of the campus with a box over his head, dressed in a cloak and dragging chains from his shoulders. Perseverance and 20,868 extra pennies paid off for Lambert "Chops" Munir, Detroit freshman, sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha. He polled 20,868 votes out of a total of 83,741 ballots cast, followed by footballer Deane Thomas, Chicago sophomore; and James Roberts, Calumet junior.

College administrators and fellow students gaped at the antics and wondered what zany exhibitions future contests held in store.

Nine Ways to Say It

Democracy speaks nine different languages at the house at 312 Albert Street, East Lansing.

Students of nine countries, including the United States, live, study, work and play together in a unique All-Nations Cooperative house at Michigan State College.

Members pool financial resources and muscle power, cooking know-how and other housewifely skills to ease the pangs of the high cost of living. Each takes his turn at an arm-long list of household tasks.

All-Nations house came into being two years ago. Gerald E. Smith, '47, East Lansing resident, turned over part of his home to students—in the interests of better international understanding.

In early April, Smith leased the entire house and the All-Nations Cooperative house was given official campus status.

There is no pigeonholing of national traditions, according to Mrs. Lurline M. Lee, counselor for the ten cooperative houses. That's why recently a dinner menu carried Italian spaghetti prepared by a Chinese chef.

"The house gives Michigan State College a cross-section of life in America—and the world," said Mrs. Lee.

The Time Has Come

New millions had a look at Michigan State College this spring as Time and Newsweek magazines told the story of an almost unprecedented academic and physical rise.

Time, the weekly news magazine, pinned two full columns of sharply-phrased prose on the establishment of MSC as an educational guide light.

Using as its central theme the personality of Pres. John A. "Uncle John" Hannah, Time told of the enrollment boom since 1945, the vast postwar building program, athletics, the high academic rating, off-campus services, and on-campus research.

Said Time: "A $3,000,000 annex to the Union building rose, complete with bowling alleys, music and art rooms, banquet hall, barber shop, cafeteria, lounges and student activities offices.

"Near by, six new dormitories went up, along with eleven low-rent apartment houses for faculty members. A modernized stadium echoed with the yells of 50,000 Michigan State football fans. There were also new buildings for electrical engineering, agriculture, physics and mathematics and general physics.

... "but 16,000 (students) are only a fraction of those who study at MSC. Each year some 100,000 people come from all over the state to take special short term courses. They include insurance salesmen, and pickle packers, fur breeders and cattle men, farmers who come 40,000 strong for the annual Farmers' Week ..."

Newsweek used a picture of the new Robert S. Shaw Hall to mark the end of the postwar building program.

7,000 At Open House

Michigan State officials had their hands full May 12-13, when an estimated 7,000 Michigan residents took a sounding on the college, its engineering and home economics schools.

Big events of the week-end "open house" included the second annual Engineering Exposition May 12-13, and the High School Visitation Day May 13.

Student engineers displayed 70 exhibits of engineering "know-how" of past, present and future for high school and college students and their parents.

On Saturday, high school seniors and their parents looked over Michigan State's facilities in a program directed by Dr. Guy Hill, coordinator of high school cooperation. The potential college students were given counsel and information on the college's various departments.

THE AFFAIRS OF STATE

Faculty Affairs

New honors came to Michigan State College faculty members from professional and honor societies, while others were named to positions of high responsibility and prestige in operating agencies.

L. R. Schoenmann, director of the Conservation Institute, was elected president of the Michigan Academy of Science, Arts and Letters in the annual meeting at Ann Arbor in April. The society's 1951 convention is scheduled for MSC March 22-24.

Schoenmann

Walter L. Weeks, a Michigan State College staff member, will join three other physicists and ten physicians in a study of atomic rays at Oak Ridge, Tenn., this summer. He was one of 14 persons selected by Gov. G. Mennen Williams for the study of defense against atomic radiation.

Pres. John A. Hannah was named to the board of directors of Michigan Bell Telephone Co. to fill a recent vacancy.

Prof. J. Sutherland Frame, head of the Department of Mathematics, was named to the board of governors of the Mathematical Association of America. His term as governor of the Michigan section will run July 1, 1950 to June 30, 1953. The board supervises all scholarly and scientific activities of the association.

Harold Paulsen, Spartan hockey coach, was elected to a five-man board of governors of the American Hockey Coaches Association in a meeting in late March.

Dr. I. F. Huddleson, professor of bacteriology and public health, received the 1950 Gamma Award of the Omega Tau Sigma, national veterinary fraternity, presented annually for "outstanding service in the veterinary field." Prof. Huddleson was awarded a diploma, a key, and was guest of honor at a banquet at Ohio State University.

Huddleson

George E. Parsons, extension assistant professor in the Dairy Department, was named as one of two U. S. dairy production experts to aid in Marshall Plan projects in Germany.

Michigan State College faculty made new contributions to professional and scientific literature during the spring.

Dr. Alexis J. Panshin was senior author of a new textbook on "Forest Products" which outlines uses of forest products other than lumber. The book was the most recent addition to the McGraw-Hill Forestry series. Prof. Shao C. Lee, head of the foreign studies department, edited the second edition of "Chinese Houses and Gardens," authored by Henry Inn, Honolulu.

Two professors, F. R. Theroux and Lisle A. Smith, wrote a field book on civil engineering, "Plane Surveying," a textbook for use in college courses.

Research Projects

America was still seeking out Michigan State College researchers to throw open long-closed doors to knowledge that will benefit man.

Horticulturists, with a long record of research achievement, were set for another study of the effects of growth regulators, such as 2,4-D, on nutritive value in plants. The Rockefeller Foundation, New York, set up a $10,000 fund for the study.

The U. S. Navy gave $4,240 for a study in the Department of Chemistry and the National Sanitation Foundation provided $4,000 for continuation of a research project on dishwashing machines. Under direction of Prof. W. L. Mallmann, Department of Bacteriology and Public Health, MSC has taken the lead in scientific improvement of dishwashing standards of the U. S.

Standard Oil of Indiana selected MSC scientists in the Department of Botany for a research project on selective petroleum weed killers.

Other donors included the Sulphite Pulp Manufacturers' Research League, Inc., Appleton, Wis., $2,000; and Cero-phyl Laboratories, Inc., Kansas City, Mo., $1,900.

On The Cover . . .

Are the 1950 recipients of the Michigan State College Alumni Awards for Distinguished Service, to be presented at Commencement ceremonies June 4. (See story on page 3.) Reading clockwise, they are Jay S. Hartt, '15; Dr. Thelma E. Porter, '21; Robert J. Baldwin, '04; Horace W. Norton, '03; and Dean Howard C. Rather, '17.

ANCIENT MANUSCRIPT: Fifteenth Century translation of "Meditations" is added by Dr. Arnold Williams to college lore.

An Old, Old Story

English scholars at Michigan State College were brushing up on their most ancient verbs and nouns this spring—and the older the better.

Dr. Arnold Williams, associate professor of English, returned from Europe with an English translation of "Meditations on the Life of Christ" estimated to be 550 years old.

The book, first written in Latin by St. Bonaventure, a Franciscan monk, in 1260 A. D., was translated in the early 15th Century. Dr. Williams said he found the manuscript while browsing in a London book store. He spent last year studying in Europe under a Guggenheim Fellowship award.

The book was introduced to Michigan State College English tomes before a meeting of the Literature Club by Dr. Williams.

Conventions to MSC

Michigan State College, grown to the full stature of one of the nation's most prominent universities, has drawn two more prominent conventions for early 1951.

The Association of College Unions has chosen Michigan State for its 28th annual convention in April, 1951, and Inter-Fraternity and Pan-Hellenic council representatives from Big Ten colleges will meet on the Spartan campus early next spring.

William Rutter Named Editor of MSC Press

Administrative changes moved apace with the expansion of academic and direct public services during the spring.

William Rutter, book editor and New York publisher's aide, was named managing editor of the Michigan State College Press by the State Board of Agriculture in April.

Rutter, former assistant trade editor and assistant to the president of Oxford University Press, was named to handle the expanding services of the MSC Press.

James H. Denison, administrative assistant to Pres. Hannah, will retain directorship of the MSC Press, but Rutter takes over as its first managing editor.

Rutter

Harold W. Sponberg, assistant counselor for men, will become assistant director of placement July 1. He will be in charge of teacher placement, replacing C. M. Campbell, who will become a full-time teacher in the education department.

Mary Lee Hurt, formerly a supervising teacher of home economics and now employed by the U. S. Office of Education, Washington, D. C., was named associate professor of home economics and education. She will head the education program of the School of Home Economics, replacing Mrs. Merle Byers, retired.

MSC Luncheon Sets Available to Alumni

Luncheon sets—place mats, napkins and a runner—with reproductions of traditional campus scenes have been made available to Michigan State College alumni.

The attractive hand printed sets feature replicas of original art drawings of the Auditorium building on the banks of the Red Cedar river, Beaumont Tower, Farm Lane Bridge, the Music Building and the Band Shell.

Service for four has been made available in a choice of eight guaranteed fast colors, including dark green, the major color for the Spartan colors. Other colors will be gray, dark blue, aqua, rust, brown, wine and chartreuse.

The sets will be on sale at the campus bookstore in the Union building and in East Lansing shops, according to R. L. Villars, bookstore manager.

Record Response Inaugurates 1950 Michigan State Alumni Roll Call

Response during the first two weeks of the 1950 Michigan State Alumni Roll Call has been described "extremely gratifying" by William L. Davidson, '13, director of the program.

Two weeks after announcement letters were mailed, a total of 1,022 had answered affirmatively to the invitation to contribute to the fund raising campaign. It was an encouragingly fast start for the campaign of the MSC Alumni Advisory Council, designed to rally former students to the support of college activities not adequately financed within the budget.

Initial Response Good

"This beats any previous response of former students with the possible exception of the ticket demand for the 1949 Notre Dame-MSC football game," Davidson added.

Credit for the initial success of the 1950 Roll Call was given by Davidson to the special class agents. "The success of the project is unquestionably due to the efforts of our 550 class agents, who devoted many hours in writing personal messages to their classmates," he said.

Lee O. Benner, '12, chairman of the Alumni Advisory Council, has called on all alumni to make contributions, regardless of size, and to make this "a 100 per cent effort of Spartan alumni all over the world."

Objectives of the first year's program is to provide funds for the following:

1. Providing tuition scholarships to outstanding young men and women.
2. To provide small loans to students of an emergency nature.
3. To foster research projects which will improve living conditions of people all over the world.
4. To provide certain materials and equipment lacking in research.
5. Preservation of historical data on College history.
6. To provide a small amount of money to permit entertainment of prominent guests of the College.

Four Faculty Members Get Scholarship Grants

Four Michigan State College professors have been awarded scholarship grants for advanced studies.

Art Professor Dr. Martin S. Soria is preparing for a year-long study on the history of painting in Latin America under a $3,000 Guggenheim fellowship grant, only award made to a Michigan educator.

Will Write Art Volume

Dr. Soria, 39-year-old authority on the history of Spanish painting 1550-1850 and Baroque art, will study in several Latin American countries. He will write a book on his studies, to be incorporated in a 45-volume art series to be published by Penguin Books, London.

Two other MSC faculty members were given grants for midwestern cultural studies by the Rockefeller Foundation, New York. They are Dr. C. David Mead, assistant professor of English, and Dr. C. R. Hoffer, sociology and anthropology.

Dr. George R. Price, assistant professor of English, was awarded a Huntington Library Fellowship to compile a complete edition of the plays of Thomas Middleton.

Two Long-Time MSC Faculty Members Die

Two long-time faculty members of Michigan State College succumbed recently. They were Mrs. Norma Gilchrist Roseboom, 71, and Mrs. Ledah E. Thompson, 63.

Mrs. Roseboom, who retired in 1940 after 37 years with the Department of English, died April 3 in Auburn, N. Y., after a year's illness. She was the wife of B. B. Roseboom, who retired as head of the MSC Department of Physiology and Pharmacology in July, 1949.

A native of Cedar Falls, Iowa, Mrs. Roseboom received her A.B. degree from Wellesley College, Mass., in 1904. She joined the Michigan State College staff in 1905, and rose to the rank of associate professor prior to retirement in 1941.

Was Housemother Since 1928

Mrs. Thompson, a housemother at MSC since 1928, died March 16 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Comin, of Memphis, Tenn., after a brief illness.

Mrs. Thompson's first post at MSC was as housemother for the Women's Building, now Morrill Hall. She was housemother at the Union Building when women were housed there in 1932, and in 1937 became resident advisor at North Williams Hall, a position she held until her death.

Ears of Corn May Reveal Secret Of Western Civilization's Origin

Where did Western hemisphere civilization originate? Anthropologists and historians have puzzled over this question for many years. A collection of ancient corn cobs in St. Louis, Mo., presided over by Dr. Edgar Anderson, '18, may give you some new answer.

As geneticist for the renowned Shaw's Garden and Engelman professor of botany at Washington University, Dr. Anderson has had much time to follow this unique scientific research.

Has World Famous Collection

Perhaps no crop has such a long record of cultivation as corn. Yet relatively little is known of its history and development. When Dr. Anderson began his project in 1935, existing classifications of corn varieties were 50 years old and did not suit his purposes. Now he presides over the world's most comprehensive collection of corn with specimens from every place it will grow.

Dr. Anderson was quoted recently in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, "A botanist gets interested in specific plants because of their long association with man. In a way, the history of corn is the history of civilization, and is one of the best-documented histories we have. When the evidence is joined, we shall have a record of the migrations and developments of peoples and cultures."

It is expected that Dr. Anderson's study of corn will help solve the riddle of whether civilization in this hemisphere developed spontaneously or had its roots in the East.

Previous research has had to depend on study of tombs and similarity of Mayan and Egyptian architecture. A crop such as corn, with its many world-wide varieties, can provide more concrete proof as to migrations of civilization.

Speakers' Bureau Formed By School of Engineering

Engineering professors have set up machinery to take their favorite lectures on a series of one-night stands in Michigan.

Dean of Engineering Lorin G. Miller heads a list of approximately 60 speakers available to service clubs, business and professional organizations, high school and technical groups.

The subject list includes eight major areas and ranges from concrete design to how to become an engineer.

"Speakers will go anywhere in Michigan to speak before organizations on any phase of our activity here," said Dean Miller.

HISTORY OF CORN: Dr. Anderson believes it may reveal new facts on the origin of Western Civilization.

Dr. Anderson grew up in East Lansing where his father was a member of the Dairy Department staff at MSC.

Following his graduation from MSC, he moved to Harvard and received M.S. and Sc.D. degrees. Dr. Anderson was arborist for Harvard's Arnold Arboretum from 1931 to 1935, when he returned to Shaw's Garden.

To show their devotion to plants, the Andersons have a party each spring to celebrate the blooming of their prized Rosa alba, the white rose of which the troubadours once sang.

State Department Will Use MSC In Film War Against Communism

Cameras of the U. S. State Department will transfer life at Michigan State College to all parts of the world as one phase of a gigantic anti-Communist pictorial campaign.

Shooting began in May on a series to be offered European publications, depicting MSC as a "typical American college," according to William F. Bennett, chief of State Department photographers.

Cited As Leading University

Michigan State was selected for the series for three reasons:

1. It was the first land-grant college established in the United States and is today one of the nation's leading land-grant universities.

German Police Officials Enrolled in MSC School

Twelve high-ranking German police officers were retooling their concepts of crime prevention and detection this month in a Michigan State College police administration institute.

The four-month institute was authorized for a screened group of officers when U.S. occupation forces faced the dilemma of a peaceful Germany under a police force trained in a wartime philosophy.

Will Study All Over U.S.

This is part of the program which took Prof. Arthur Brandstatter, head of the Department of Police Administration, to Germany early this year for a 90-day assignment as "visiting expert" with the U.S. military government in Germany.

After a short study at MSC for German police officers last summer, Michigan State was selected by the U.S. Department of State for a continuing four-month institute in American police techniques, training programs and court procedures.

The Germans spent the first month at Michigan State in classroom instruction by staff members of the Department of Police Administration. This month, they were well into an additional three-month study tour of the nation's outstanding police agencies, training schools, traffic institutes and judicial systems.

One German officer, Paul Teichmann, a sergeant at Offenbach, said one problem of German police work was co-operation of the citizenry and a return to pre-Nazi respect for police authorities.

2. It's highly-advanced agriculture and veterinary medicine schools are of particular interest in foreign countries.

3. It is an excellent commentary on the life of an average American college student.

World-wide Distribution

Primary objective of the photographs, Bennett explained, is to show how the U. S. government participates in education and to counteract unfavorable Russian propaganda currently being circulated.

The pictures will be used in Amerika, Russian language magazine of the Department of State which penetrates the Iron Curtain; motion pictures; film slides; and in newspaper and magazines all over the world.

MSC Tracksters Lose to Injuries, Weather and Superb USC Team

Things looked black for the Michigan State College track team before the season began—what with frigid practice weather, ailing aces and the prospect of their toughest meet 3,000 miles away.

Coach Karl Schlademan's Spartans were scheduled to take on two of the nation's track powers, Yale and USC in an intersectional meet in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Johnson Lost for Season

The toughest blow came first. Fred Johnson, hurdle and broad jump star, and distance man Warren Drentzler were sidelined with practice injuries.

Then an unseasonable—and unreasonable—spring moved in on East Lansing, drove the outdoor track team inside and tightened up muscles.

"The rotten weather back home licked us before we ever got on the plane for California," said Coach Schlademan. "After all, today (the meet) was the second road outdoor workout we've had this spring."

The real trouble came, however, when one of the greatest USC teams started to burn up the cinders. The Trojans of Southern California took first place in 10 of 15 events, Michigan State took three and Yale, two.

"When our best men slowed up a little there were Trojans to move in and grab off the places," said Schlademan.

But there were those whom nobody could catch.

Big Jim Fuchs, Yale's burly shot putter, heaved the shot 58 feet, 5½ inches, bettering the world record of 58 feet, ¾ inches set in 1948.

Michigan State came through with firsts when Bill Mack ran the mile in 4:13.9, Jack Dianetti took the 440 in 48.6 seconds and the Spartan team took the mile relay in 3:17.

Many Team Members Place

Warren Drentzler made the trip and took third place in the mile and two-mile runs; and Horace Smith won third places in the 100-yard dash and 220 low hurdles. Joe Corbelli placed fourth in the 120 high hurdles, Dave Peppard and Don Makielski fourth in the half mile, Jesse Thomas fourth in the javelin throw, Richard Henson third in the 220-yard dash, Clark Atchison fourth in the two-mile, and Bob Carey third in the shot put.

But Schlademan, who, like most coaches plays to win, was glum and determined when he brought his team back to Michigan. He hoped for some consolation May 20, when he was to take his nine top stars back to Los Angeles for the Coliseum Relays.

The final score: Southern Cal 96, Michigan State 34 and Yale 32.

1950 Boxing Tourney Scheduled for MSC

"Always a bridesmaid but never the bride" told the story of the 1950 Spartan boxing team which finished up as runner-up to Gonzaga and Idaho in the NCAA boxing tournament at Penn State in April.

It marked the third consecutive season that MSC boxers had been edged for the coveted title. Michigan State finished in second place behind Wisconsin in 1948 and Louisiana State in 1949.

Selection of MSC as the site for the 1951 NCAA tournament provided some consolation for Spartans, who had ruled as favorites to take the title.

Three Finalists Lose

Michigan State placed three men in the finals, a repeat performance of last year, and needed only one victory to gain a tie for the crown.

In the lead-off bout of the evening, Hank Amos dropped a clear cut decision to scrappy Mac Martinez of San Jose State. Chuck Spieser, a sterling sophomore performer all season at 175-pounds, lost his first collegiate bout, a split decision to Carl Maxey of Gonzaga in a bout packed with action. In the finale, Gabby Marek, free-swinging heavyweight, pounded Penn State's Chuck Drazenovich almost at will in the second and third rounds, but lost in a unanimous "home-town" decision.

"Pete" Newell Is New MSC Basketball Coach

Peter Francis "Pete" Newell, highly successful young coach of the University of San Francisco basketball team for the past four years, is the new head basketball coach at Michigan State.

Replaces Al Kircher

He replaces Al Kircher, who resigned recently to take a post as backfield football coach at Washington State College.

Newell

Also hired was Newell's varsity assistant at San Francisco, John Bennington, who has had charge of spring hoop practice.

Newell's 1948-49 team at San Francisco was the surprise of the season, going to the National Invitational Tournament at New York's Madison Square Garden a rank underdog and winning the title. His team had a season record of 25 wins against five losses.

Had 19-7 Record Last Year

His 1949-50 team also entered the NIT, but lost in the first round to City College of New York, which eventually won the championship. His past season's record was 19-7.

Newell graduated from Loyola University of Los Angeles, where he was a varsity guard in basketball and an outfielder on the baseball team. He had a brief fling at professional baseball before taking over as coach of all sports at St. John's Military Academy in Los Angeles. His basketball and football teams were undefeated in three years of competition.

He went to San Francisco as head basketball and baseball coach in 1946 and began building the court teams that brought the Dons to national prominence. His four-year record was 69 wins and 36 losses.

Schlادeman Pays Off

Horace Smith, crack Michigan State hurdler and dashman, thought he could break 15 seconds in a 150-yard dash during early season workouts. Karl Schlademan, head track coach, thought he couldn't and said so. "I'll kiss you right here in front of everybody if you do," he declared. Smith did the distance in 14.9 seconds. Team members started a chorus of "I Love You Truly" as Schlademan puckered up.

Bad Weather Causes Net Team No Worries

Although most spring sports were retarded due to cold and rainy weather, Coach Frank Beeman's tennis team played its scheduled matches undisturbed.

After returning from the Southern tour, the team moved into Demonstration Hall to escape the foul weather. Four regulation courts gave the Spartans the only indoor arena in the Midwest.

The arrangement gave Coach Beeman more time to prepare his squad, which included only one returning letterman, Dan Perillo, Cleveland, O., senior, and one junior, Capt. Ken Kimble of Grand Rapids. Sophomores listed on the roster included: Dan Guy, Jr., Grosse Pointe; Keith Kimble, Grand Rapids; Dave Mills, Cadillac; Dick Rieger, Kalamazoo; and Len Brose and Doug Curley, Detroit.

Tennis results: MSC 9, Detroit 0; MSC 6, Wisconsin 3; MSC 5, Notre Dame 4.

MSC Baseball Team Gets Off to Fast Start

By "BUD" ERICKSON, '48

Home from their annual southern training tour, Coach John Kobs' Spartan baseball team got away to a flying start on the home season by racking up three straight wins at the expense of Big Ten opponents Purdue and Michigan.

Kinney Is Star

As was the case in the South, during which time the Spartans won three games while dropping five, Captain Jack Kinney, Owosso rightfielder, was the constant power threat. Kinney returned from the Dixie junket with a .400 average, including five home runs and fifteen runs batted in.

Vince Magi, Detroit centerfielder, teamed with Kinney to give the Spartans a deadly "one-two" power attack. Magi's .412 southern average led all regulars and his four home runs in the first eleven games was a big factor in the team's successes.

Kinney

With the return to familiar home territory, State's pitching corps was bolstered by the return of letterman Lou Bloch, Dearborn senior, and the Kobsmen benefitted greatly by the steady hurling. Bob Carlson, a sophomore from Jamestown, N. Y., sparkled in five Dixie appearances to record a 0.40 earned run average, winning one and dropping one. Herb Schroeter, 30-year-old sophomore from Detroit, and Tom Lawson, a former Motor City school boy ace, turned in commendable performances to bolster the staff, along with Harry Simcox, a control-artist reserve from '49.

Promising Sophomores Emerge

Coach Kobs' regular batting order was a combination of veteran talent and improving sophomore prospects, which augurs well for the Spartans' first entry in Big Ten baseball competition in 1951. Art Ronan, a junior from Detroit, held sway in left field; Dick Blanchard, Detroit sophomore, third base; Joe Bechard, Detroit senior, and Bob Ciolek, first base; Al Cummins, second base; Joe Barta, Detroit senior, shortstop; and sophomore Charley Joblonski, E. Rochester, N. H., catcher.

Regular schedule: MSC 6, Michigan 5; MSC 8-9; Purdue 5-3; MSC 3-5, Ohio State 6-4; MSC 11, Notre Dame 10; MSC 3-7, Iowa 5-6.

Coach Munn Displays 1950 Gridiron Aerial Arm

Something New Has Been Added -- Two Platoons for Spartan Football

New names and different faces are bound to appear in vital places!

Such is the case for the 1950 Michigan State football team based on the six weeks spring drills completed recently.

Coach "Biggie" Munn welcomed 185 prospects to spring drills and lost little time seeking out replacements for the 21 lettermen lost through graduation. As a result of position changes, several of last year's established players have taken over vacated spots in an all-out effort to mold a smooth-working unit.

Grandelius Is Fullback

Notable among the personnel changes was Munn's shift of Al Dorow to the left halfback spot to replace Everett Grandelius, Muskegon Heights, who moved to fullback.

Perhaps the chief outgrowth of the Spartan spring workouts was Coach Munn's apparent plan to employ the controversial platoon system.

Running with the Spartans offensive unit at the conclusion of the session were Dorne Dibble and Hank Minarik, ends; Don Coleman and Bill Horrell, tackles; John Yocca and John Tobin, guards; center duty, Jim Creamer and Sid Stein; Bill Carey, quarterback; Al Dorow, left halfback; Everett Grandelius, fullback; and sophomores Ray Vogt, Vince Pisano, and Wayne Benson alternating at the right halfback spot.

Don McAuliffe, a transfer from the Navel Academy, proved to be one of the most promising left halfbacks, both as a passer and a runner, and should fill a big role in fall plans. Another top left halfback candidate is Willie Thrower, a former Pennsylvania prep ace, who has impressed coaches with his passing ability.

Coach Hugh "Duffy" Daugherty fashioned a defensive line to include Jim King and Minarik at the end posts; Gene Stroia, a newcomer, and Dewey Stevens, a '49 reserve, at tackles; letterman J. C. Williams and sophomore Frank Kush at guards. Dick Tamburo, Ed Timmerman, and Doug Weaver, all sophomores, were used as linebackers throughout the spring session to rate with Captain Leroy Crane, held out of workouts by an injury, as top choices for the important defensive positions. Dorow and John Wilson, the latter a sophomore, were used at safety; McAuliffe and Jim Ellis, sophomores, were assigned as defensive left halfbacks; and Benson and Vogt took over defensive right halfback duties.

(Below) A history of the class of 1900 would be incomplete were it to omit the epic of the famous stone, beside which they posed for this picture. Some persons—perhaps they were juniors—buried the memorial one night beneath a marker that read "'00 Stone Dead." Thereupon 75 or 100 copies of the Wolverine of that year—prepared in those days by the junior class—disappeared mysteriously. Some persons—perhaps they were juniors—broke the stone into fragments by building a fire beneath it and pouring water on the heated surface. Later the class of 1900 erected the fountain (right) that stands beside the walk from the Library to the Administration Building.

Days of Yore

Joseph G. Duncan*

Several of the pictures on this page were recently received from the following members of the class of 1900: Mrs. Mark (Irma Thompson) Ireland, Miss Bertha E. Malone, Mrs. F. J. (Grace Lundy) Drolett, Mrs. Ralph M. (Kate Nichols) Lickley, and Mr. C. W. Bale.

Ellis W. Ranney, '00, was captain of the football team, but the game was different then. The ball was rounder and the pass untried; the nose-guard that hangs at his chest was more than a decoration; and the tattered uniform bespeaks some rugged playing.
