LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Second the Nomination

April 26, 1952

Dear Editor:

In the April 15 RECORD, Mr. Donahue, '32, nominates Liberty Hyde Bailey for number one spot in emphasizing Spartans who "have accomplished."

I wish to second that nomination heartily. Dr. Bailey has accomplished so much more than most of our alumni realize. I knew him first before he graduated from M.A.C. in '82. In 1888 he left M.S.C. for Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y. He still lives in the house built for him about 1898, adjoining Bailey Hortorium, which he built for himself and later gave to Cornell. It houses over 250,000 preserved plant specimens.

Bailey, now 94, has loved his work so much that vacations were not called for. "apt to be vacant."

Respectfully,

ELWYN T. GARDNER, '85

More Wheat and Chess

April 23, 1952

Dear Editor:

The article by Leslie A. Buell, '83, in the March 1, 1952 RECORD, regarding the wheat and chess controversy, brings to mind an incident along that line while I was instructor in botany under Dr. Beal, 1893-1904.

One day a farmer came into the laboratory with a head of wheat from which a spikelet of chess was apparently growing out from beneath a spikelet of wheat. Here was positive proof that wheat could produce chess. Dr. Beal dropped the specimen into a dish of water and let it soak a few minutes. Then with dissecting needles he carefully separated the wheat spikelets when the chess spikelet floated out free with no organic union with the wheat.

Those years spent under the guidance and friendship of a great educational personality like that of Dr. Beal, are treasured memories of mine.

Dr. Kenyon Payne Named New Farm Crops Head

Dr. Kenyon T. Payne, associate professor of agronomy at Purdue University, has been appointed head of the Department of Farm Crops. The appointment, which is effective August 15, was made to fill the vacancy left by the death of Prof. Roy Decker (June RECORD).

Payne

Dr. Payne, a graduate of Kansas Agricultural College, received his master's degree from the University of Nebraska, his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota.

Previous to his position at Purdue University, Dr. Payne served as a special agent for the U.S. Bureau of Plant Industry, U.S. Department of Agriculture, from 1939-41. During World War II, Dr. Payne served with the U.S. Air Force from 1941-47.

Educational Conferences Bring 14,000 to Campus This Summer

Michigan State College has more adults on its campus this summer for conferences and special courses than it normally has students during the school year.

Nearly 14,000 adults are participating in "continuing education" programs on the campus, many of them in the new Kellogg Center.

88 Groups Schedule Meetings

Educational conferences cover subjects ranging all the way from analytical chemistry and sewage disposal to speech correction and music studies. A total of 88 groups currently have programs scheduled before college classes open again in late September.

Largest single conference of the summer is the American Institute of Cooperation meeting Aug. 10-14. About 2,000 persons are expected.

Some of the other large groups include the National Rose Show, June 13-16, 400; Analytical Chemists symposium, June 20-21, 300; School Custodians, Engineers and Bus Supervisors, June 25-27, 600; and the International Council of Community Churches, June 25-29, 400.

July conferences include: National Florists Sales and Management rally, July 14-18, 700; Fred Waring Music workshop, July 20-25, 300; Homemakers conference, July 22-25, 800; and Vocational Agriculture Teachers Conference, July 28-Aug. 2, 350.

Ag. Economists Meet

August will bring 350 members of the International Conference of Agricultural Economists from the 15th to the 22nd, and the American Mathematics Association, 500 strong, will be on campus from the 31st to Sept. 6.

The Michigan Employees Institute of Government, with 400 members, is scheduled Sept. 6-7.

Thurston Will Administer New School of Education

Michigan State has a new dean and a new school.

The new dean is Dr. Lee M. Thurston, state superintendent of public instruction, and he has been named to head the newly created School of Education. He will assume his new position on July 1, 1953, at the expiration of his present term of office.

Serving as dean until Dr. Thurston assumes the post will be Dr. C. V. Millard, who has been director of the Division of Education since its establishment in 1944.

School Contains Six Units

Commenting on the new school, President John A. Hannah said, "The change in the status of the Division of Education to that of an independent school . . . was a recognition of the development of teacher training into one of the most important activities of Michigan State College."

The new school contains six departments — secondary, elementary, and vocational education as they existed previously in the Division of Education; and the new departments of guidance and counselor training, educational administration, and higher education.

Heading the departments of the new school are Dr. C. V. Millard, secondary education; Dr. Troy L. Stearns, elementary education; Dr. H. M. Byram, vocational education; Dr. Raymond N. Hatch, guidance and counselor training; Dr. Clyde M. Campbell, educational administration; and Dr. Milosh Muntyan, higher education.

During 1950-51, M.S.C. led all Big Ten schools in the number of teachers certified in both elementary and secondary education.

Commencement, 1952: They Saw 3,172 Join Alumni Rolls

COMMENCEMENT QUARTET: Distinguished guests at Michigan State College's 94th annual Commencement ceremonies were (left to right) Perry G. Holden, '89; Edgar A. Guest, Charles E. Wilson and Paul Hoffman. Honorary degrees were conferred upon Holden, Guest and Wilson, and Hoffman delivered the Commencement address.

Alumni Day-Commencement Activity Closes 94th College Year at MSC

Some 1,000 signatures of registering alumni and the awarding of 3,172 diplomas to "new alumni" on Alumni day-Commencement weekend officially closed another college year at Michigan State, June 7-8.

Memorial Chapel Dedicated

On a warm, bright Alumni Day old grads renewed acquaintances with former classmates at reunion banquets and informal meetings; paused in their crowded day to take part in the quiet, reverent ceremony which brought to their campus a new, all-faith chapel dedicated to the war dead of M.S.C.

Many alumni stayed on to take part in the college's 94th Commencement ceremony held in Macklin Field Stadium. They saw five of their number receive Alumni Awards for Distinguished Service—Ray A. Turner, '09; Dr. Maxwell Jay Dorsey, '06; Dr. LeMoyne M. Snyder, '19; Dr. Louis Guy Michael, '03; and Dr. Howard Remus Smith, '95.

Three Receive Honorary Degrees

Another famous alumnus received his college's highest honor—an honorary doctor of agriculture degree. He was Perry G. Holden, '89, internationally renowned pioneer in the development of hybrid corn.

Two other prominent Americans joined Holden in the honorary degree circle. They were Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors Corp., who received an honorary doctor of engineering degree; and Edgar A. Guest, journalist, poet and philosopher, who was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Hoffman Addresses Graduates

A famous American delivered the Commencement address. Paul Hoffman, Ford Foundation president, gave the 20,000 graduating seniors, parents and alumni present his formula for successfully combating Communism.

"We must convince Russian leaders that they cannot conquer the world by military aggression or by inciting internal revolts," he said. Hoffman emphasized that the Russian people must be convinced that the people of the West really want peace; that the U.S. must give a dramatic demonstration to the world that this free society of ours can better minister to the needs of men materially, intellectually and spiritually than any other form of society.

Stresses "World Investment"

"It means that we have got to send some dollars abroad, not for reasons of charity, but rather in our own enlightened self-interest. Instead of describing the economic strengthening of our allies as 'foreign aid,' we should be speaking of 'world investment.' It is an investment in an impregnable united free world," he concluded.

Scientists Find Substance Promotes Swine Growth

Agricultural researchers at Michigan State College's Agricultural Experiment Station announced recently that early tests of a new substance show promise of great benefits for swine raisers.

Ethomid C/15, a surface active agent produced by Armour and Company, has given excellent growth results when added to swine rations. Though it is not an antibiotic, it produces similar gains when added to swine feed.

Pigs Show Weight Gains

Gains of experimental pigs fed a balanced hog ration plus Ethomid C/15 were equal to gains of hogs receiving supplemental antibiotics. Both lots of pigs gained at the rate of 1.29 pounds a day.

"On the basis of research work completed to date, there appears to be no adequate explanation for the growth-promoting properties of Ethomid C/15," the nutrition authorities relate. "We can only gather from the test that antibiotics are not the only substance which can produce significant swine gains. Much research is needed before any specific recommendations can be made."

Reo Motors, MSC Start New Engineering Course

Michigan State College and Reo Motors officials got together recently and came up with an engineering program designed to give students on-the-job experience while they study for their degrees.

12 Will Enter Program

Approximately 12 engineering students will enter the new program this fall. Dean Lorin G. Miller of M.S.C.'s School of Engineering expects about 50 students to be enrolled in succeeding years.

Student trainees will alternate between college classes and the Lansing company, spending three months studying and the next three months in the plant. Working on a full calendar year, students will complete their last two years of college in three years.

Pay at Reo Defrays Expenses

Students will earn enough money at Reo to defray basic college expenses during this three-year period, according to W. W. Walworth, Reo vice-president in charge of engineering.

This is the first such program established by the School of Engineering, although similar projects with several other Michigan industries are expected to go into effect in the near future, Dean Miller said.

MSC Nursing Students Begin Hospital Training Course

LEARNING BY DOING: This student nurse (left) is a member of the first class in nursing education to begin hospital training as a part of her four-year college program. Here she learns the art of caring for patients, how to treat diseases, and the many procedures of the modern hospital.

MSC's First Nursing Class Enters Practical, Hospital Phase of Training

This summer 12 M.S.C. students are in the hospital and they're not sick.

They are the first class of young women to enter the clinical training part of their four-year nursing program at Michigan State.

Having finished Basic College and preparatory nursing classes on the campus, M.S.C.'s first class of student nurses is in hospitals applying this preparation to practical experience.

Nation Needs More Nurses

These young women are important. When they graduate in 1954 they will enter a profession that needs them. Recent studies of the American Nurses' Association point out that approximately 80,000 nurses are needed for federal and civilian care.

"Although there has been an increase in the nation's nursing ranks, the supply still isn't filling the demand," says Professor Florence C. Kempf, head of

M.S.C.'s nursing education program.

One reason is that a number of civilian nurses, although remaining civilians, are serving federal agencies such as the army, air corps, navy and others to meet the stepped-up demands of national defense.

M.S.C.'s nursing enrollment is growing. Some 15 students were enrolled in 1950 when the program began, and approximately 50 are expected to enroll in the fall.

Alumni Have Place in Program

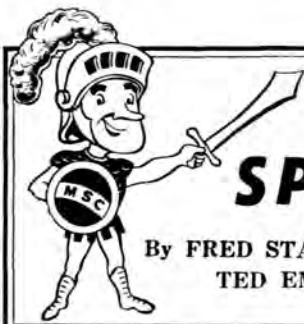

As local, state, national and international health organizations continue to expand, the need for well qualified nurses will continue to grow. Prof. Kempf points out that the nation's college alumni can help interpret these needs to young persons of their acquaintance.

"Alumni, like high school teachers and counselors, are in a good position to help interested young people learn more about nursing. They can interpret nursing to high school students in their communities who can fill the qualifications for a career in this field." Prof. Kempf has information available on request for M.S.C. alumni who know of interested high school students.

And don't overlook the male of the species. There are more than 1,000 men nurses in the field today, and their number is ever-growing.

New Conservation Series

A new series of "Conservation Bulletins" has been started by the Division of Conservation, according to Paul A. Herbert, conservation director. Bulletins are published monthly, and will be mailed to alumni wishing interesting and timely conservation news and information, Dr. Herbert said.

MSC At The Olympics

Six M.S.C. athletes were members of the U.S. Olympic team that competed at Helsinki this summer. A complete summary of their performance will appear in the September RECORD.

Clarke C. Scholes, three-times selected "All-American" by the College Swimming Coaches of America, tied the Olympics mark in the 100-meter free-style during the early July trials and nailed down a plane berth to Helsinki. His time of :57.3 nosed out Ohio State's Dick Cleveland despite a bad start, and tied the mark set by Wally Ris in the 1948 Olympics at Detroit.

Pictures of the Spartan Olympians appear along the bottom of this page.

Warren Druetzler, '51, former Spartan distance running star, qualified for the 1500 meter run with a second place finish in the event at U.S. final tryouts.

Making a repeat performance in the games was boxer Chuck Spieser, '52, who paced the field during tryouts at Kansas City in June. Also participating in the Olympics for a second time was Adolf Weinacker, '50, in the 50,000 meter walk. Fencer Allan Kwartler, '48, qualified in the sabre event.

These five were joined by wrestler Dale Thomas, M.S.C. physical education instructor, who won at 191 pounds in the Olympic wrestling final tryouts. Mel Stout, '51, was an alternate on the American Gymnastics team.

Lyle Garbe, Michigan State sophomore from Calgary, Alberta, won the 10,000 meter run in the Canadian Olympic finals, but lack of funds at the last minute caused Canada to cut its squad and Garbe

BEST IN '52: Chester L. Brewer, first full-time M.S.C. athletic director, presents three-sports star Bob Carey the award named in his honor. The award is made annually to the student who distinguishes himself both in athletics and scholarship. Another Spartan, Orris Bender, 1952 M.S.C. wrestling captain and Big Ten 167-pound champion, received the Western Conference medal as the graduating senior who attained the greatest proficiency in scholarship and athletics.

Skater Ginny Baxter competed in the Winter Olympics at Oslo, Norway.

Football Preview

These lazy summer days are the lull before the storm—football variety—at Michigan State. Things around Jenison Fieldhouse are quiet and slow-paced now, but in a few weeks they'll be the most hectic in Spartan history.

Every portent indicates this will be so:

... Mainly because of last year's great undefeated record, most football pundits will be picking State to be No. 1 in the nation this fall. This means a choice collection of headaches for the coaches.

... As a correlary, sports magazines will be loaded with Spartan material. Head Coach Munn will come in for the glamour treatment in a major glossy magazine or two, as will players like Dick Tamburo, Paul Dekker, Billy Wells, Don McAuliffe and Vince Pisano.

... Attendances at home and away will reach record proportions. Weeks before the end of the season ticket sale, 25 per cent more had been sold than ever before.

Practice opens Sept. 3, and approximately 65 to 70 men will be on hand. On them will fall the main burden of protecting M.S.C.'s undefeated skein of 15 straight games.

Win or lose, one thing is certain. This season should be the all-time thriller for Michigan State fans.

Spring Finals

Track, baseball, golf and tennis activity at Michigan State this spring brought the Spartans a record of 38 wins and 23 losses, a second place on the Big Ten tennis scoreboard, fifths in both track and baseball, and 10th in golf. Teams and team representatives appeared all over the U.S., from North Carolina to Minnesota; from Pennsylvania to California.

The season's results:

Tennis

AFFAIRS OF STATE

By DICK DANDENEAU

"And Baby Makes Three"

Commencement day was a big day for the Donald L. Smiths—all three of them.

The parents, Don and Helen, both received bachelor's degree from M.S.C., and Brian, age one, celebrated his birthday on the same day, June 8.

For his excellent cooperation during a year of blue books, term papers and other scholastic headaches, Brian arrived at commencement decked out in a pint-sized cap and gown made by his mother. College officials ruled that Brian had not fulfilled the requirements for a degree, so he had to "sit on the bench" during commencement ceremonies.

Don and Helen enrolled at M.S.C. in 1949, after they were discharged from the U.S. Navy. Married in 1946, the Smiths have alternated classes with baby-sitting for the past year.

Don earned a journalism degree, while Helen earned a degree in economics.

Helen found no time for other activities; but Don engaged in several extra-curricular activities, including a post as business manager of the Spartan magazine.

Father is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Smith, Detroit, and Mother is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lockhart, New Bethlehem, Pa.

Said the father: "The next time Brian dons cap and gown at M.S.C.—in about 20 years—he's going to have his credits in order."

MAGNA CUM "LOUDA": Brian Smith, one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Smith, June graduates of M.S.C., sports the pint-sized cap and gown his mother made for him.

Colegrove, an English major, earned an over-all point average of 3.98 out of a possible 4.0, and Miss Dawson, a zoology major, earned 3.86 out of 4.0.

Final summer school enrollment at Michigan State reached 3,967, according to Registrar Robert S. Linton.

The 3,967 total included 1,781 enrolled in the six-week session; 2,126 enrolled in the nine-week session; and 60 enrolled in agricultural training and short courses. The total also included 2,562 men and 1,345 women.

The final figure of 3,967 compared with 4,024 recorded for summer school in 1951. Linton said the drop in enrollment was due to a decrease in veteran enrollment and in the new undergraduate students.

New class officers elected for the 1952-53 school year were Seniors John Wilson, president, Donald Marentette, vice-president, Donna Means, secretary, and Franklin Creager, treasurer; Juniors Richard Lauver, president, Gene German, vice-president, Dorine Stark, secretary, and William Graves, treasurer; and Sophomores Dan Webster, president, Mimi Cumiskey, vice-president, Diane Forsythe, secretary, and Sheila Harper, treasurer.

Foreign Affairs

Some 12,000 Central Michigan adults and high school pupils had a good chance to see how people from other lands live, when they attended the annual International Festival this spring.

Displays and information booths giving thumbnail sketches of 40 nations were manned by foreign students from M.S.C. and other Michigan colleges and universities.

Three stage shows produced by the foreign students highlighted the continuous operation of the festival from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m.

"The International Festival was designed to stress the similarity between peoples of other nations and Americans," according to Dr. John N. Winburne, festival director.

"We wanted Americans to learn to know these people better and to see that they are very little different from us," he added.

Features of the three stage shows were a Chinese style show, Indian fire dance, a Hawaiian dance, and an African wedding.

Featured guests at the festival were high school pupils from schools within a 125-mile radius of East Lansing, and they poured into Jenison fieldhouse by the bus loads.

Included among the nations represented were Australia, Iran, Canada, Colombia, Finland, Germany, West Africa, Israel, Japan, Siam, Turkey, Sweden and Venezuela.

In addition to the regular exhibits of nations, a special display of Nigerian handiwork was secured from Prof. William Bascom, Northwestern University anthropologist.

Foreign students from M.S.C., University of Michigan, Western Michigan College of Education and Michigan State Normal College participated in the event.

Michigan State foreign students already have plans underway to make next year's International Festival bigger, better and more complete.

Student Affairs

Glenna Satterley, Evanston, Ill., has been awarded the 1952 Chicago Alumni Club Award, presented annually to the outstanding senior at M.S.C. from the Chicago area.

Miss Satterley, a music major with a B-plus average, is a member of Chi Omega, Mortar Board, Tower Guard, Delta Omicron, Tau Sigma, a cappella choir, mixed chorus and the Union board.

Senior Swingout scholastic awards were presented to Clare L. Colegrove, Lansing senior, and Mary Ruth Dawson, Ferndale senior.

Gifts and Grants

Gifts and grants totaling $100,605 for the furtherance of research and other projects at M.S.C. were accepted by the State Board of Agriculture during May and June.

The largest single grant was $22,000 from the William and Sarah E. Hinman Endowment fund to be used under the direction of the scholarship committee for student scholarships.

Also included in the total was a grant for $10,000 from the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, to make alterations on the Kellogg Research farm, and a grant of $13,114 from the Michigan Certified Hybrid Corn Producers' Association, Fenwick, to be used to continue research in the Department of Farm Crops.

The Office of Naval Research, Washington, D. C., gave $7,774 to the botany department to continue a research project in Point Barrow, Alaska; and the Chemical Corps Biological Laboratory, Frederick, Md., gave $7,600 to continue research in the Department of Horticulture.

Faculty Spotlight

When Prof. Shao Chang Lee, head of the Department of Foreign Studies, came to Michigan in 1943, he probably didn't realize that he would have such an important part in developing Michigan State's foreign student program.

In his eight years on the M.S.C. campus, Prof. Lee's influence has been felt in many quarters, particularly in the area of the college's ever-expanding foreign student program.

Lee

This year he retired as head of the M.S.C. International Center, a program he began eight years ago, to devote full time to his duties in the Department of Foreign Studies.

Holder of degrees from five colleges, author of 10 books, and scholar in the cultures of both East and West, Prof. Lee is one of three M.S.C. educators who are listed in the World's Who's Who.

Prof. Lee came to M.S.C. from the University of Hawaii in 1943, where he was professor of Chinese language and history.

At M.S.C. his Department of Foreign Studies is concerned with familiarizing students with the culture, history and peoples of the Orient and of Latin America.

In May, 1951, he became naturalized as an American citizen. Though America is now his permanent home.

"The City No. 9," a painting by Lindsey Decker, instructor in the art department, has won the $100 first prize in the Michiana Regional Art Exhibition sponsored by the South Bend, Ind., Art Society.

The painting (see photo on this page) was done in an unusual medium consisting of oil paint and automotive lacquer, Decker said.

"The City" is one of a series by the M.S.C. artist, though he is now working almost exclusively in sculpture.

Dr. John W. Kidd, assistant professor of social science, has been awarded the Educational Testing Service fellowship in social studies for 1952. Dr. Kidd worked with the ETS this past summer in constructing tests relating to social studies in higher education.

Dr. Ernest B. Harper, head of the Department of Social Service, has been re-elected president of the Association for the Study of Community Organization, and elected second vice-president of the Council on Social Work Education.

A. G. Kettunen, Michigan's 4-H club state leader, is spending four months this summer visiting more than 20 European countries for the International Farm Youth Exchange program.

James H. Denison, administrative assistant to the president, has been elected vice-chairman of the Joint Committee on Educational Television of the Educational Television Programs Institute.

Honorary Degrees

Three of Michigan State administrators, including President John A. Hannah, were awarded honorary doctorates this spring at June commencements.

President Hannah received his third honorary doctorate in June when he was awarded the first honorary degree ever given by the two-year-old University of the Ryukyus, located on Okinawa.

The M.S.C. president was given an honorary doctor of humanities degree at a special ceremony held during his two-week visit to the Far East. Dr. Koshin Shikiya, president of the University of the Ryukyus awarded the degree.

M.S.C. "adopted" the Okinawan university a year ago in a program of international educational cooperation sponsored by the U.S. Department of State. Objective of the program was to establish an educational system at the Pacific university similar to the U.S. land-grant college system.

Ernest L. Anthony, dean of the School of Agriculture, was awarded an honorary doctor of science degree from the University of Missouri, Columbia.

The honor came on the 40th anniversary of Dean Anthony's graduation from Missouri with a bachelor of science degree in agriculture. Two years later he received a master of science degree from Pennsylvania State College.

Dr. Clifford M. Hardin, director of Michigan State College's Agricultural Experiment Station, received an honorary doctor of science degree from Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.

Dr. Hardin received his bachelor's, master's and Ph.D. degrees from Purdue, the Ph.D. being awarded in 1941. Dr. Hardin has been director of the experiment station since 1949, and he also serves as assistant dean of agriculture.

Roy Underwood, head of the Department of Music, received two honorary degrees this spring—one from one of the nation's best musical schools and the other from his Alma Mater.

He received an honorary doctorate from the Chicago Musical College and also another honorary degree from Bethany from which he graduated in 1917.

PRIZE-WINNING ART: Lindsey Decker, M.S.C. instructor in the art department, poses with his painting, "The City No. 9," which won the $100 first prize in the Michiana Regional Art Exhibition sponsored by the South Bend, Ind., Art society. The painting was done with oil paints and automotive lacquer, a new medium Decker was experimenting with.

COVERING THE CLUBS

By STARR H. KEESLER, '41

OUT-OF-STATE CLUBS

Aloha!

Out among the swaying palms of Hawaii not long ago Michigan State alumni began to notice quite a few of their number had established permanent residence. So they called a meeting.

When all had gathered in the Smile Cafe at Honolulu they discovered 53 claiming Spartan backgrounds. They also decided to have a club and appointed a steering committee to look further into the idea.

Acting Chairman Lt. Col. Lowell R. Eklund, '39, showed football movies and "Postmark East Lansing" to the group, then introduced two people he felt were "the two most courageous people in Honolulu"—Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. MacArthur, members of the local University of Michigan alumni chapter. The MacArthurs presented a program of tips on alumni club organization and functions.

Patriarch Arthur Kocher, '02, was another program speaker. He gave a review of his career as senior soil scientist with the U.S. Government. Kocher, incidentally, was the alumnus who travelled the farthest distance to Alumni Day this year, and was present with his classmates to become a new member of the Patriarch's Club.

In June the club honored President Hannah, who was in the area visiting the University of Ryukyus at Okinawa (see Honorary Degrees, page 7). Special guests were President and Mrs. Gregg Sinclair, of the University of Hawaii.

The group has officially named their club, elected officers for the coming year (see picture), and defined their purpose. As Lt. Col. Eklund puts it, "... the Aloha Chapter is in business with a bang ... a chapter which we intend soon to be second to none in degree of activity. We solicit information on any alums moving to Hawaii or just passing through. If they give us notice, we can arrange to meet them and show them a few of the sights in this paradise isle ... hula dancers and traditional leis furnished on short notice!"

Chicago Greet Hannah

Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, sketched the growth of the institution, and Miss Glenna Satterley of Evanston was honored as the year's outstanding M.S.C. senior from the Chicago area at the May 2 meeting of the STATE Chicago Alumni Club (see Student Affairs, page 6).

President Hannah reviewed the campus building program during the last 10 years and predicted a doubling of enrollment in the next decade.

Club members elected to office were: Fred W. Trezize, '16, president; Frank D. McCally, '26, first vice-president; Thomas Broucek, '26, second vice-president; Sheldon B. Lee, '17, secretary; Fred W. Dunn, '29, treasurer.

Columbus Hears Hunter

Approximately 30 members of the Columbus, Ohio, alumni group were present Friday evening, April 25, for their annual spring dinner. Following the dinner, Elmer Longnecker, '49, club president, introduced Dr. Armand L. Hunter, director of television development at M.S.C. Dr. Hunter spoke on the growth of M.S.C. and the television development program.

Cleveland Meeting

A general meeting of the M.S.C. Alumni Club of Northeastern Ohio was held recently at the Hotel Statler in Cleveland. Guest speaker of the evening was Mr. Harry Myers, a representative of the investment brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Beane. He gave a short talk, illustrated with movies, depicting the operation of such a firm as it handles its numerous accounts.

The class of 1902, which joined the distinguished ranks of the Patriarchs in June, looked mature more than 50 years ago when this picture was taken, early in their college careers. At Commencement, 1902, the College calendar (right) showed Professor Vedder, of Civil Engineering, and Professor Babcock, of Mathematics. College Hall was on the site of the present Beaumont Tower. Williams Hall, a men's dormitory, stood until 1919 on about the site of the Library. The ever-present surveyors were working in front of the old engineering shops.

Ten "Tics" in a gay mood. Eclectic Society, now a chapter of Alpha Tau Omega, was founded in 1877 and built its present house in 1907. In 1902 the society had rooms for its meetings and parties on the fourth floor of Williams Hall. The picture was given by Mrs. Florence Sly Lane, '02.

Days of Yore

By MADISON KUHN and
JOSEPH G. DUNCAN

In the College collections there is no picture of the interior of the old chapel. Have you one?

Former Student Receives Silver Star for Heroism

The Silver Star for "outstanding gallantry under enemy fire" recently was awarded a Michigan State man serving with the 30th Infantry Division in Korea. He is Pfc. Edward Wilkerson, who won the medal while helping to recover the body of a fallen comrade under fire.

Wilkerson was a member of a patrol which sighted the missing man's body on a slope near an enemy emplacement. He volunteered to accompany a medical aidman to recover the body.

The citation relates that "as they neared the objective, they were subjected to intense enemy small arms and grenade fire . . . Wilkerson provided such a devastating cover of fire that the aidman was allowed to cross the short distance to the body." Despite intense enemy fire, Wilkerson and the medic carried the body back to the patrol.

Zane Amell, MSC's First Jet Ace Dies in Crash Near Oscoda Air Base

JET ACE: Major Zane Amell and Mrs. Amell in their East Lansing home shortly before the jet pilot's fatal crash June 24.

M.S.C.'s top airman was killed June 24 while on a routine training flight near Oscoda air force base in Michigan.

His name: Major Zane S. Amell, w'49, who was the first Michigan State man to become a jet ace. Amell shot down or damaged more than five MiG fighters in 100 Korean missions.

Twice Decorated in World War II

Maj. Amell was twice decorated during his 71-mission tour in World War II. Since his entry into the Korean theater, he had won the third and fourth clusters to his Air Medal, the Bronze Star and recommendation for the Silver Star.

Following six months of duty in Korea, he returned early this summer to his home in East Lansing for a 30-day furlough, then was reassigned to the Midwest Air Defense Command.

Was Flying Sabrejet

Maj. Amell was flying an F-86 Sabrejet fighter and was approaching the Oscoda air field at the time of the tragic accident.

He is survived by his wife, Virginia, and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Amell, of Lansing.

His death brings to 13 the number of Spartan casualties in the current period of emergency. The list reads as follows:

Dead — Eight.
Missing — Three.
Wounded — One.
Prisoner of War — One.

Thompson, and C. J. VanHalteren.
